SOUTHERN PACIFIC'S GAME OF BLUFF

The Southern Pacific Co. sent its surveyors back to Eugene the moment the news was printed that the Lane County Asset Co. had financed its line. It is probable, also, that the bluff will be carried even to the extent of doing some actual construction work if this step is necessary in order to scare everybody out of the field.

The occurrences of the past few days should be conclusive evidence to our people that the S. P. Co. will spend a considerable sum of money to prevent Eugene and Lane county from securing an outlet to the coast. That they are acting in good faith no one for a moment believes, but they are expending thousands of dollars merely to delude and divide the people here into factions in order to withdraw local support from the Asset company, which is the only concern acting in good faith in the premises by making an honest effort to build a railway to the coast. The Southern Pacific is doing just what The Guard has said all the while it would do, and every fair-minded man can see now why the corporation has been so anxious to silence this paper. They know that the Eugene-Siuslaw-Coos Bay railroad offers the best field for investment of independent capital on the Pacific coast today. Railroad men who have investigated the field declare this to be a fact, and the S. P. Co. is aware that constant advertising and advocacy of the coast railroad by this paper will result in attracting the attention of capitalists to the project. Therefore, they have endeavored to coerce The Guard into silence, going so far as to enlist the services of certain officials of the Commercial club, and having them go among the business men, talking boycott of this paper--a dirty, disreputable method, worthy only of Dagoes, Chinamen--and the S. P. Co. and its hirelings.

The people of Eugene should not be fooled this time, knowing as they do that the moment the Asset company's activity ends, the S. P. Co. will lose all further interest in a railroad from Eugene to the coast.

CENSUS FARCE IN EUGENE

in Portland and elsewhere, Eugene has over 14,000 people. Polk's city directory estimate a year ago was 12,500. At the time the census was being taken it was generally recognized as a farce, and the incompetency of the enumerators was generally commented upon.

Salem and Medford alone, of the Oregon towns, seem to have been fairly enumerated.

The census cost the United States millions of dollars, and if all figures are as unreliable as those of Oregon, it is practically useless.

In this state the supervisors were given their jobs as rewards for political service, and not because of any special fitness for the work, and in turn the enumerators seem to have been selected by virtue of their "pull" with the powers that be.

The result is seen in the ridiculous figures given out, of which Eugene is a sample.

THE WHITE MAN'S BURDEN

For the Philippine Islands the United States paid the sum of $20,000,000. This country was also required to quell the insurrection and keep it quelled. The lives of many brave American soldiers went out as a part of this cost. Since the acquisition of the islands the United States has always tried to do its duty by the natives. Schools have been established there and modern methods have been introduced into the business and industrial life of the country. Life and property have been made safe and the Filipinos have enjoyed privileges that were never theirs before.

How grateful the natives feel toward this country may be gained from the open declaration of one native assemblyman that he hoped the Japanese would blow the hated Americans off the islands.

Uncle Sam is bearing the white man's burden and he is reaping the old reward.

The Oregonian's editorial on the Siuslaw country, reprinted in yesterday's Guard, is wrong in the statement that the route from Eugene to Coos Bay is less satisfactory than some of those further to the south. The editor of that paper falls into this error very naturally, because he has not had the opportunity to study the topography of the country. As a matter of fact, a railroad from Coos Bay via Eugene is the shortest route that can be secured from that point to Portland, and presents fewer engineering difficulties; the pass through the Coast mountains west of Eugene being much lower and less difficult than any other proposed route to Coos Bay. The distance from Eugene to Mapleton, head of tide on the Siuslaw, is less than 45 miles by the permanently located railroad line, and beyond that there are no construction difficulties.

The morning paper is in an envious mood just now. It says the Guard's new press is an old worn-out machine, etc. Well, printing machinery--they never turned out an inferior press during their entire career. Naturally the morning paper, which has done nothing but brag about its new press for a year past, is a little sore because the Guard is putting in a real perfecting press, when its own machine, an inferior flat-bed affair, printing from type, was pretty well worn out before it was shipped to Eugene. The editor of the Guard saw the press run in Boise, Idaho, some six years before the Statesman there discarded it for a modern stereotype press, and sold it to the Register for some more than it would have brought for scrap iron at the foundry.

While we must commend Acting-Governor Bowerman for his course in refusing to pardon Bank Wrecker Ross, we cannot refrain from criticizing him for his inconsistency. The whole career of the Condon man has been one in which political trickery and jobbery has been the salient feature, and had he extended clemency to the cold-blooded Portland bank wrecker as his last official act it would have been consistent with his course in other matters, completing a political career that might have been held up for many years to come as an example of all that a public official should not be.

The original Harmon club has just been organized in Cleveland by 500 anti-Tom Johnson democrats. The purpose of the club is to boom Governor Harmon for president in 1912. New York democrats, as well as leaders of other states, said they did not understand the anti-Johnson part of it, for the reason that ex-Mayor Johnson, of Cleveland, sorely ill at the time and against the advice of his physicians, got out of bed in the recent campaign in Ohio to speak for Governor Harmon, and that Governor Harmon personally thanked him for the act.

The morning paper speaks of journalistic dignity, something unknown in the sanctum of that sheet. But if dignity in journalism means low down, contemptible and petty carping at its competitor, and the employment of underhand methods in a futile effort to injure its competitor's business, then the outfit across the street are paragons of dignity to whom we all must bow.

If Doctor Cook will go to work, seek an honest living and hold his tongue, all may be forgiven. The assertion that he did not know he was perpetrating a fraud may do for the marines, but the great majority of the American people live far inland. Several of them were not born yesterday, and quite a number have cut their eye teeth. Evidently Dr. Cook has no special need of a nerve tonic.

"Hobson has a dream that the Japanese will eventually annex the United States," says an exchange. That will be an easy way of doing away with all this war talk.

SHOULD BE TAUGHT A LESSON IN MANNERS

(Salem Daily Journal)

Oregon should have a state institution to teach public officials lessons in common politeness.

The State Board of Health has a secretary who has just published a valuable advertisement for Eugene.

It tells how typhoid fever menaces that city, and gives it some very undesirable publicity.

The people of Eugene put up their money to advertise the city as a charming place to live in, and it is

It is one of the most desirable home cities in the West, and should not be given a black eye by any official.

Instead of going to the Oregonian with his bucket of tar for Eugene, he should have gone to Eugene.

He should have met the public authorities and should have consulted them as to what should be done to help their city.

But he had no more right to go into the Oregonian with his typhoid story than he would have had to hit a brass band and parade the streets and shout his statements on the street corners.

But Oregon has a number of officials who have just as little sense as would have been disclosed by the brass band act.

These performances of some of the officials cost this state a great deal of bad advertising, that it takes years to overcome.

GOOD FOR BOWERMAN

(Salem Daily Journal)

For once all the wrath in the state and all the corporate influence was turned down in its efforts to secure a pardon for one of the representatives of the system.

The carload of millionaires and corporation lawyers and beneficiaries of special interests could not get a pardon from Governor Jay Bowerman for J. Thorburn Ross.

At the same time it is whispered Bowerman granted a pardon to a poor man without a dollar, who has a sick wife with six little children, against the protest even of the district attorney who prosecuted him.

For once in Oregon a poor man could get justice without a dollar, and all the dollars in the state could not get less or more.

These things happen so seldom one is almost tempted to say a miracle was performed at the state house Saturday.

Acting Governor Bowerman has risen several notches in the estimation of the common people.

Ben B. Lindsey, the juvenile judge of Denver, arrived in Eugene this afternoon and is registered at the Osburn. He spoke to a large audi-
