OREGON GOVERNORS AND HOLIDAYS.

The governors of Oregon from the first settlement of the state to the present time have been as follows:

Provisional—George Abernethy, 1845-1849.

Territorial—Joseph Lane, 1849; J. P. Gaines, 1849-1853; Joseph Lane, 1853; George L. Curry, 1853; J. W. Davis, 1853-1854, George L. Curry, 1854-1859.

State—John Whiteaker, 1859-1862; Addison C. Gibbs, 1862-1866; George L. Woods, 1866-1870, Lafayette F. Grover, 1870-1877; S. F. Chadwick, 1877-1882; Zevas F. Moody, 1882-1887; Sylvester Pennoyer, 1887-1895; William P. Lord, 1895.

Legal holidays in this state are as follows. The courts of justice may be held, and judicial business transacted, on any day with the following exceptions: No court can be opened nor can any judicial business be transacted on a Sunday, nor the first day of January, nor the twenty-second day of February, nor on the thirtieth day of May, nor on the fourth day of July, nor on the first Monday in September, nor on the twenty-fifth day of December, nor on a day on which an election is held throughout the state, nor a day appointed by the president of the United States or by the governor of this state as a day of feasting, thanksgiving or holiday, except for the following purposes:

First—To give instructions to a jury then deliberating on their verdict.

Second—To receive the verdict of a jury.

Third—For the exercise of the powers of a magistrate in criminal actions, or proceedings of a criminal nature. Whenever any non-judicial day created by this act, except Sundays, fall upon a Sunday, the next preceding Monday shall be observed as such non-judicial day. (Hill's Code, Sec. 8897.)

A BIG WASTE OF MONEY.

Pendleton E. O.: The East Oregonian is in receipt of a pamphlet entitled "monthly report of the Oregon state weather service, report for October, 1895." It is issued by B. S. Pague, local forecast official of the United States weather bureau. It is to be presumed that the report has been sent to every newspaper in the state, several hundred in number; to many prominent citizens; to all local observers, and probably a large number will lie in the office of Mr. Pague at Portland and never be used. It would be no violent presumption that at least a 1000 copies were issued. It is a monthly publication, and consists of an average of over 30 pages. It can cost no less than $100 per month, or about $1200 per year. The work is done by W. H. Leeds, the Oregon state printer at Salem. The report contains page after page of matter which is of no practical value to the newspapers or people, and possesses as much interest to the taxpayers as would information showing how many wharf rats there are about the docks at Astoria.

An exchange says: Don't ask an editor to suppress an item of news; some other paper will get it anyway. The next day something will happen to your neighbor and if he asks to have it suppressed you will be the first one to jump on the editor for not "daring to say that his soul was his own." Take your medicine when the news happens to fall your way, for you really have no more claim on the paper than your neighbor. Nearly every day the editor is called on for roasts and several other kinds of cookery for the benefit of this and that one, and yet those who request this would no more think of writing what they want the editor to write and assume the responsibility for it, than they would attempt to fly.

It is said that Rudyard Kipling never reads criticisms on his own works now; either laudatory or condemnatory, as he finds that it perplexes his imagination and diminishes his creative energy. He says: "A writer finds his happiness in creating, not in critics."
