EUGENE FLOURING MILLS.

The people of Eugene are to be congratulated that the flouring mills, water power and property connected therewith, have fallen into excellent hands.

The new proprietors are thorough business men, have the confidence of the public, and dealers with whom they must do business, and, what is very important, have the necessary capital with which to do business.

The farmers of Lane county may rest assured that no pains will be spared by the new management to render business relations agreeable as well as profitable to both.

Prof Douglass Archibald, who is considered one of the most eminent meteorologists, forecasts another hot summer for the northern hemisphere, great masses of ice in the Atlantic indicating an early polar spring. The abnormal heat is attributed to solar conditions, which have been unsettled since the maximum period of sun spots in 1893. A severe drouth prevails now in Australia, and the spectroscopic shows that the sun is hotter than usual.

There is no question but one important factor in producing hard times in the up to date bicycle. The money sent out of the country for wheels* would astonish one in the aggregate could be learned. Besides there are many people who really cannot afford to own wheels, yet pay for them on the installment plan and deprive themselves even of the necessities of life to make payment, else leave other creditors to wait and suffer for their money.

Citizens of Pendleton are engaged in the laudable undertaking of suppressing the selling of whisky to Indians on the reservation adjoining that town. The only way to suppress the illegal traffic is for the United States court to impose the maximum penalty for awhile. The sixty or ninety day sentences in county jail, to be fed at the expense of the government have no effect on the depraved wretches who engage in the traffic. The penitentiary is what they need.

The San Francisco newspapers will feel like they have lost an old friend when they lose Durrant, which will happen five weeks from yesterday, if Providence does not intervene and the rope proves true. His is but one life and he sacrificed but one life, yet as much or more has been written about the case than would be usual for description of a good sized war.

The Dalles has a bank suspension. A government official has taken charge of the First National bank pending an investigation. Ex-Gov Moody is the president of the institution. The Dalles city and Wasco county have $10,000 tied up by the suspension.

Farmers are happy oh account of the splendid rains. It was getting rather late, in fact it seemed as if the Willamette valley was liable to lose her reputation as a sure crop country. The rain has made that safe.

News come that Gould and Sage are not in harmony about certain of their railroad investments. It is a case of dog eat dog and the public cares little which one triumphs. The public has to pay the piper however their affairs terminate.

Gov Lord does not appear to be in a hurry about calling that extra session of the legislature. He is probably feeling the pulse of public opinion before deciding what kind of medicine he will prescribe.

Tomorrow morning Archbishop Riordan will administer the sacrament to over one hundred prisoners confined in San Quentin, Cal., penitentiary. A very unusual place for a religious revival.

The Greeks appear to be kept busy retreating. They do not have time to fight.

Some men are afraid of death, some are not. Most of us would rather not meet the grim destroyer to-day. We would rather put it off until to-morrow, or until next year. Mere wishes do not count for much in the matter. A man may not want to die. He may not want to be sick. He may wish and hope and pray that he will not be one or do the other, but wishing and hoping won't help him. It is what he does, and not what he wishes that serve his purpose. If a man is losing flesh, and is nervous, irritable, sleepless and debilitated, he may wish he would get well, but one bottle of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will do more than an ocean of wishes. If a man is on the way to consumption, he should make a stop as quickly as possible. He should put on brakes. He needn't be afraid he has consumption, if he will do the right thing—if he will just take the right medicine. The "Golden Medical Discovery" cures incipient and well developed consumption. Consumption is a germ disease and a blood disease. The "Golden Medical Discovery" kills the germs and purifies the blood. It increases the appetite, helps digestion, makes assimilation perfect, and so builds up solid, wholesome flesh. Hundreds of grateful people afflicted with consumption, bronchial, throat and kindred diseases, have testified that it has actually saved their lives. For the sake of the information they contain, some of these letters have been included in Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, a thousand page, illustrated book, which will be sent free on receipt of twenty-one (21) one-cent stamps to pay for mailing only. Every family should have a copy for ready reference in case of sudden sickness or accidents. World's Dispensary Medical Association, No. 663 Main Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

During the winter of 1893, F M Martin, of Long Beach, West Va., contracted a severe cold which left him with a cough. In speaking of how he cured it he says: "I used several kinds of cough syrup but found no relief until I bought a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, which relieved me almost instantly, and in a short time brought about a complete cure." When troubled with a cough or cold use this remedy and you will not find it necessary to try several kinds before you get relief. It has been in the market for over twenty years and constantly grown in favor and popularity. For sale at 25 and 50 cents per bottle by Osburn & DeLano.

THE PLOT SPOILED.

She was sitting in the corner of the carriage opposite to me, and we had got into conversation via the window, which I pulled down for her, and a magazine, which I lent her. She agreed with me that it was a hot day and that the magazine was stupid. A chance incident gave a more personal turn to the conversation. I took out my pocketbook to see that my ticket was safe, and let a letter drop on the floor of the carriage. The letter was addressed to the Earl of Dunmore. Her eyes fell on it, and she looked at me with a pleased smile.

"Is that you? Are you an earl?" she asked.
 Now I may at once state that I am not an earl, and that the letter was not addressed to me, but was intended for my autograph collection. Yet she was pretty, and I thought she seemed pleased at the idea that I was an earl. The only other occupants of the carriage were two somnolent old ladies, who were not likely to overhear me, so I decided to be an earl, and condescendingly admitted the fact.

"I'm so glad," she answered. "I did so want to meet a real lord."
 "I am gratified that my presence is any pleasure to you," I said, wondering whether she was an American or merely an ordinary radical.

"You see," she replied, "I write a little."

"You're not going to interview me?" I exclaimed in real alarm, for the Earl of Dunmore might be a choleric man and the consequences unpleasant.

"Oh, no," she answered. "I don't write things like that. I write novels."
 "A milder form of fiction," I suggested. "Perhaps I've read your novels."

"I'm afraid an earl wouldn't have read them. They only come out in penny editions," she said wistfully. "But I'm writing a serial story for a Sunday paper now. That's better, isn't it?"

"Much better. You're getting on," I replied, with increased interest in my companion, for I had long wished to know what kind of person writes penny dreadfuls. "But are you going to put me into the serial story?"

"Would you mind much?" she asked.
 "Well, if you don't give my name," I said.

"It's awfully good of you," she answered gratefully, and you can tell me a lot of things I want to know. You see, people who buy penny books like them to be about lords, and it's so hard to write about lords when you've never met one."

"If I can be of any assistance," I said.

"Thank you very much," she said. "Now tell me, are you a bad lord or a good lord? They're always very bad or very good, aren't they?"

"Generally," I said. "I'm afraid I'm one of the bad kind."

"I'm so glad," she answered. "There's a good marquis in my story. He's the hero, and I can write about him pretty easily, because he comes to see the humble heroine. And there's a bad earl. He's the villain, and he lives in his castle, and that's what makes it so hard. How are you so bad?"

"Oh, I'm pretty bad all round," I said. "It's not necessary to be particular to a crime or two in drawing my character. I'm sorry that I can't tell you much about my crimes. The police, you know. That's the worst of a democracy."

"Oh, I like that," she replied. "I'll certainly put that in. But you might let me about them. I wouldn't let any one know they were yours."

"I am not alone in these matters," I said mysteriously. "I am sworn to a silence as deep as the grave. I wish I could be more explicit. Our crimes are so unlike the petty crimes of the people."

"Are you going to your castle now?" she asked.

"No," I said; "I'm going to Kinton to stay with a man there. He's a mere commoner, but he's got money, and dice can be copped, you know."

"You play with copped dice, do you?" she answered. "How lovely! I'm going to Kinton, too," she added after a pause.

"Do you live there?" I asked, beginning to feel uneasy.

"No," she said. "I'm going to Mrs. Dawson's."

"Mrs. Dawson's?" I inquired faintly. "On a visit?"

"No," she said; "I am going as maid to Mrs. Dawson. I was in service, you know, before I took to literature, and I generally take a place for my summer holiday. It will be jolly. I've never been at so big a house before."

I was very uncomfortable, for I was going to stay at the house too.

It occurred to me at first to pretend that I was traveling incognito, but she would be certain to find me out. In all probability Mrs. Dawson would be in possession of the whole conversation in a day or two, and I should become a laughing stock. I am a shy man and averse to ridicule. Besides, for several reasons, I wished to produce a good impression on Mrs. Dawson.

I decided to make a clean breast of the whole thing to the young woman. When I had told her, she looked at me with unutterable contempt.

"Then you're not a lord at all," she said. "And was everything else you told me just as untrue?"

"I am afraid so," I answered.

"You ought to be ashamed of yourself," she went on. "You might have spoilt my novel altogether. I shall write to the Authors' society about you."

"I want you," I said, "not to tell any one."

I reasoned with her for some time, and eventually agreed to give her a sovereign down and three more if she kept the secret while I was at Kinton. We had only just concluded the agreement when we reached our destination. As we stopped, the young woman handed the sovereign back and said, with a smile:

"Mr. Trevor, you shouldn't pretend to be the Earl of Dunmore when your name is on your hatbox."

"Hello, Lena, here you are," exclaimed Mr. Dawson from the platform. "How do you do, Trevor? I didn't know you knew my niece."

"Please don't tell," I whispered.
 "Of course not," she answered. "I have the eyes of a well bred countess." And she did not tell.—Exchange.

Poor Blood

When a horse is poor in flesh, a new harness won't give him strength. If a house is cold new furniture won't warm it. If your strength is easily exhausted; work a burden; nerves weak; digestion poor; muscles soft; if you are pale and worn out, the trouble is with the blood. It is not so much IMPURE blood as POOR blood. Pills won't make this blood rich; nor will bitters, nor iron tonics, any more than a new harness will give strength to the horse, or new furniture will make a house warm. For poor blood you want something that will make rich blood.

SCOTT'S EMULSION of Cod-liver Oil with Hypophosphites is the best remedy in the world for enriching the blood.

We have prepared a book telling you more about the subject. Sent Free. For sale by all druggists at 50c. & $1.00.
