INGERSOLL ON SPAIN.

An Eloquent Plea for the Freedom of Cuba.—A Terrible Arraingment of Spain.

Few men in public life, on the platform, or with the pen, equal Robert G Ingersoll, the celebrated agnostic, in descriptive powers. A recent contribution from Ingersoll on the Cuban question lacks none of the fire and vividness of description which have made him famous. He writes:

"At one time Spain was the greatest of powers, owner of half the world. Now she has only a few islands, the small change of her great fortune, the few pennies in the almost empty purse, souvenirs of departed wealth, or vanished greatness. Now Spain is bankrupt, bankrupt not only in purse, but in the higher faculties of the mind, a nation without progress, without thought; still devoted to bull-fights and superstition, still trying to affright contagious diseases by religious processions. Spain is a part of the mediaeval ages, belongs to an ancient generation. It really has no place in the ninsteenth century.

"Spain has always been cruel. S S Prentice, many years ago, speaking of Spain, said: 'On the shore of discovery it leaped an armed robber, and sought for gold even in the throats of its victims.' The bloodiest pages in the history of this world have been written by Spain. Spain in Peru, in Mexico, Spain in the Low Countries—all possible cruelties come back to the mind when we say Philip II, when we say the Duke of Alva, when we pronounce the names of Ferdinand and Isabella. Spain has inflicted every torture, has practiced every cruelty, has been guilty of every possible outrage. There has been no break between Torquemada and Weyler, between the Inquisition and the infamies committed in Cuba.

"When Columbus found Cuba the original inhabitants were the kindest and gentlest of people. They practiced no inhuman rites; they were good, contented people. The Spaniards enslaved them or sought to enslave them. The people rising, they were hunted with dogs, they were tortured, they were murdered, and finally exterminated. This was the commencement of Spanish rule on the island of Cuba. The same spirit is in Spain today that was in Spain then. The idea is not to conciliate, but to coerce; not to treat justly, but to rob and enslave. No Spaniard regards a Cuban as having equal rights with himself. He looks upon the island as property, and upon the people as a part of that property, both equally belonging to Spain.

"Spain has kept no promise made to the Cubans, and never will. At last the Cubans know exactly what Spain is, and they have made up their minds to be free or to be exterminated. There is nothing in history to equal the atrocities and outrages that have been perpetrated by Spain upon Cuba. What Spain is, all know as only a repetition of what Spain has done, only a prophecy of what Spain will do if it has the power.

"A country that can't conquer Cuba certainly has no flattering chance of overwhelming the United States. Of course, there is some wisdom even in Spain, and the Spaniards who know anything of this country know that it is absolute madness and the utmost extreme of folly to attack us. I believe in treating even Spain with perfect fairness. I feel about that country as Burns did about the devil: 'Oh, wad ye tak' a thought an mend!' I know that nations, like people, do as they must, and I regard Spain as the victim and result of conditions, the fruit of a tree that was planted by ignorance and watered by superstition.

"I believe that Cuba is to be free, and I want that island to give a new flag to the air, whether it ever becomes a part of the United States or not. My sympathies are all with those who are struggling for their rights, trying to get the clutch of tyranny from their throats; for those who are defending their homes, their firesides, against tyrants and robbers.

"I am in favor of an international court, the members to be selected by the ruling nations of the world; and before this court I think all questions between nations should be decided, and the only army and the only navy should be under its direction, and used only for the purpose of enforcing its decrees. Were there such a court now, before which Cuba could appear and tell the story of the wrongs, of the murders, the assassinations, the treachery, the starvings, the cruelty, I think that the decision would instantly be in her favor and that Spain would be driven from the island. Until there is such a court there is no need of talking about the world being civilized."

The Strength of Nature.

According to the ancient mythology, when Hercules wrestled with Antæus, every time he was thrown he jumped up again stronger than ever, gaining fresh power from every contact with the earth. Hercules conquered him at last only by holding him in the air away from the source of his strength, until he grew weaker and weaker and finally became exhausted.

Antæus is a perfect symbol of mankind. Nature is the real source of health and vigor. The closer we keep to Nature's laws the stronger and healthier we grow. When we get away from them we are sure to be overcome by weakness and disease.

When sickness gets hold of a man the only remedy to really cure him must be a natural remedy. It must work according to natural laws and bring him right in touch with Nature. Any unnatural stimulus or mere temporary "appetizer" does no permanent good to a person who is debilitated and "run down."

In these conditions the most perfect, natural strength-builder is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It acts directly upon the natural nutritive processes, and creates solid, permanent strength and vital force in the same way that Nature creates them.

It capacitates the stomach and liver to vitalize the circulation and feed the nerve-centres with pure, healthy blood. This is exactly Nature's way of curing nervous exhaustion, debility, insomnia, and neuralgia.

During the past 30 years, Dr. Pierce's medicines have become recognized standard remedies throughout the world. His "Pleasant Pellets" are a perfect and permanent cure for constipation.

Sister Elisa L. de Falcon, of Corpus Christi, Nueces Co., Texas, writes: "This is to tell you that I have been ill for twenty-one years and was finally cured by your medicines 'Golden Medical Discovery' and 'Favorite Prescription.' I was completely cured after taking the medicine."
