One of the finest and best equipped railroads is the Chicago, Milwaukee & St Paul. On our recent trip through South Dakota, Iowa, Minnesota and Illinois we tried this railroad and know whereof we speak. The road is splendidly equipped with fast trains, the coaches are all furnished with the latest improvements and it is a pleasure to ride with these people. They employ none but sober, industrious men who constantly look after the comfort and safety of the traveling public. Anyone traveling in the above or adjoining states should take the Milwaukee road by all means if it is convenient to do so. If you wish information concerning this excellent and popular road, ask any ticket agent or write to C J Eddy, General Agent at Portland, Or, and he will gladly give it.—Genesee, Idaho News.

A Common Superstition.

Many people believe that the breaking of a looking glass is a certain sign of death. The newspapers report that a mother recently became insane after dropping a mirror because she feared that some of her loved ones would soon die. There are other signs much more dangerous than this. The most common is a disordered stomach, which causes nervousness, dyspepsia, indigestion and constipation. These symptoms tell the sufferer that his days will be shortened unless he sets things right in his digestive organs. For this purpose there is nothing so certain to cure as Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. It regulates the bowels, steadies the nerves and whets up the appetite. It is the standard remedy. There is no substitute for it.

SCRATCHED CONSTANTLY

Baby Badly Afflicted with Eczema. Medical Treatment Useless. Cured by Cuticura.

My niece's little baby boy had Eczema all over his face, so that he needed constant washing, and he scratched the sores constantly. Mornings, his face, hands and clothes would be stained with blood. She never could take him out, his face was so full of sores, she had medical treatments, and tried everything she heard of. She commenced using the CUTICURA REMEDIES. The sores left his face and began entirely cured, and now his face is smooth and rosy.

BOHEMIA MINES.—Cottage Grove Messenger: "P J Jennings and a party of expert mining men and capitalists from Idaho and Montana, Messrs H H Hingham, J P Irwin and A Stewart came down Sunday from inspecting the Helena mine and the Bohemia district. They expressed themselves as well pleased with all the appearance of the mine and district, and their belief that in the near future Bohemia will be a great mining camp. Mr Jennings is doing good work in bringing in prominent parties to view this district and deserves a whole lot of credit for the prominence Bohemia is securing as a great mining district."

STREET GAMING IN REAL LIFE.

Not so Noble as it seems, as the Story of the Game of the Street.

"I have read a number of stories," said the city editor, "about the honest newsboy who saves up three blocks to return the money to a poor widow in mistake for a fine. The sympathetic bootblack who helps the widow's son, or the livery street gamin who gets run over by a dog while rescuing another boy and his mother. 'Is Jimmy all right?' and 'I have come to the conclusion that these stories are written by girls fresh from school or rotted old maids who live in a village, and they are read by men who thoughtfully stick the tongue into the cheek while reading. Yet there are men who read and believe."

"I saw one of this class the other day who went to the rescue of a bootblack who was trying to fix his broken box."

"My lad," said the good man—they always call them 'lads' in these stories—"you are in trouble. Let me assist you."

"Then he knelt on the sidewalk in his good clothes, used a half brick for a hammer, raked up some tyme from his pocket and after 15 minutes' hard work made a creditable job. Meanwhile about 30 street boys gathered around. One slipped a piece of old iron into his pocket, the grateful bootblack with a bit of chalk decorated his back with a hideous caricature, his hat was knocked into the gutter as he arose, and one of the boys accused him of stealing a flash."

"The man dashed with natural indignation, and immediately there arose a whoop of derision, and as he strode away he was gazed by the whole crowd for two blocks. While in this frame of mind it would have done him good to have interviewed some of the ladies who write the picturesque tales about the imaginary street boys."—Chicago Times-Herald.

PANBESA'S LETTER.

An Account of an Egyptian City Thirty Centuries Ago.

Probably the oldest letter in the world is the letter of Panbesa, written 15 centuries before Christ to his friend Amenemhat, a scribe.

"The manuscript is of perishable papyrus, and it is amazing that it should have survived for more than 30 centuries and still be legible.

It is preserved in the collection of the British museum. It has been several times translated during the present century. It presents an interesting picture of life in Egypt in the time of Rameses II. It is more in the nature of a literary production, a poem composed in celebration of the visit of Pharaoh to the city of Pa-Rameses, than an ordinary letter of today.

Panbesa "greet his lord, the scribe Amenemhat, to whom he life, health and strength," and then goes on to describe the verdant fields, the thrashing floors, the vineyards, the groves of olives, the orchards of figs, the great daily markets, with their fish and waterfowl and swarms of purchasers.

The citizens had their "sweet wine of Khemi, pomegranate wine and wine from the vineyards," and to these they added "beer of Kati."

There was music in plenty furnished by the singers of the school of Memphis.

On the whole, Pa-Rameses seems to have been a pleasant place to live in.

"The lesser folk are there equal with the great folk," and Panbesa writes that its maidens were "in holiday attire every day" with locks "redolent of perfumed oil."—Washington Star.

L. A. OVERTON, Eighth st, Eugene. 3 doors west of bridge.

A Method in His Manner.

It was raining cats and dogs outside, and the Columbus avenue car was crowded. A young woman stood looking from one seated man to another, but the men would not budge. She looked timidly, then appealingly, then daggers, but they did not care.

Finally the worst dressed and roughest looking man in the car got up.

"Here is a seat for you, mum," he said suavely.

"Oh, thank you ever so much," said the young lady, shooting glances at the other men which said, "You are gentlemen, but this uneducated laborer could give you a lesson in manners."

Presently she was shifting about on her seat, shielding now her face, now her white stand up collar and looking, with a troubled face, at a point in the ceiling from which the water came down at irregular intervals in splashes as big as a cent.

The well dressed men buried their smiles in their newspapers. The laborer, now ensconced in a corner near the driver, gave his vis-a-vis a wink.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

Gooseberries on Trees.

Travelers in Burma see many strange things, and perhaps one of the strangest is the way in which some kinds of fruit grow.

For instance, gooseberries that at home grow on small bushes in this part of the world grow on trees over 25 feet high. They are not a soft, pulpy fruit, but are as hard as marbles.

The real Burma grapes also grow on high trees and not on vines. They hang from the branches and trunk of the tree in clusters on a long stalk and are covered with a thick outer skin, which cannot be eaten.

The cashew, or monkey nut, is also peculiar and consists of a large, juicy fruit of soft pulp, with its nut or kernel attached to the outside of the fruit at the end farthest from the stalk from which it hangs.—London Standard.

A Logical Conclusion.

In a recent Walla Walla divorce suit, in which the defendant failed to appear, the referee made the following report:

"The plaintiff appearing in person and by her attorney, and the defendant not appearing and no one appearing for him, therefore he did not appear."—Walla Walla Statesman.
