DEATH OF PRESIDENT FAURE

Graphic Account of the Sudden Event.

"Emily Crawford," Paris correspondent of the Associated Press, sends a graphic account of the death of M Faure, president of the French republic. We take a few extracts:

"I have been to see the Abbe Renault, who gave M Faure absolution in extremis. Mme Yauro, on seeing that death was hastening, begged that messengers should be sent to summon three different priests and a Dominican. All the priests she thought, would not be out dining, and the Dominican would surely be at his monastery. She also begged that if any messenger met a priest in the streets he should bring him at once to the Elysee.

"Abbe Renault is the humblest of the humble, being chaplain to the house of detention, or look-up at the prefecture of police. Yesterday he had dined with some relatives who have a small shop in the Faubourg St Honore. After dinner he was going home when suddenly a soldier on a bicycle came up, descended from the machine and caught him with a visible agitation by the arm, saying: 'Come with me.' Father Renault went, and only learned where he was going at the palace gate. There the soldier said:

"The president is dying. Do what you can for him. He is not a bad chap."

"At the door a porter met the abbe and conducted him to the sitting-room. The president was lying upon a mattress upon the floor. He was in a flannel shirt and covered with draperies; his feet were wrapped in steaming flannels, his nostrils assailed with the mingled smells of mustard and ether, and blood was flowing from his temples, neck and forehead, for leeches, cupping, hypodermic injections and bleeding had been tried. The face was almost black from congestion. One doctor had drawn the tongue to keep the lungs alive; another held a bag of oxygen to the nose; another was rubbing the hands. But no sign of returning animation was given. Dr Lanne-Longue said:

"We have done all we can. Let religion to console the family now come in."

"The abbe dropped on his knees, all present doing likewise, and gave absolution in extremis. He had no holy oil to administer extreme unction. In the next room the ladies were sobbing. The ministers came in and dropped on their knees.

"As the clock on the mantle struck 10 a doctor said: 'All is over.'"

"Some persons went into the next room to inform Mme Faure and her daughters. She soon came out and with great composure, as if her grief was suddenly hushed, ordered that the body be placed on the president's brass-railed bed and kept unembalmed as long as possible. She thanked the priest for rendering the last offices to a Christian, and said that before the president lost consciousness he had prayed for forgiveness of all whom he might have offended.

"His tongue was paralyzed as he spoke," she said, and again, "the poor have lost in his death a good friend."

"At her request some prayers were recited by the abbe, who was profoundly affected by the whole scene."

A MISCELLANEOUS LOT.

Here is how the Salem Statesman reporter notes the departure of the aggregation that held high carnival at the state capitol, and vicinity, for forty days:

"The special train for Portland and the overland train last night carried away the most of the solons, that for the past forty days have made the capitol hum with business for the benefit of the great state of Oregon. The special train was composed of four coaches and started to Portland immediately after the departure of the California express. It was well filled with legislators, members of the third house, lady clerks, waste baskets, ink stands, etc."

"The old obstacles that used to prevent the marriage of loving couples are out of date. The blood-and-thunder villain is a myth nowadays. The cruel father is only a tradition. Distance, absence and shipwreck in these days of cheap, safe and swift transportation do not count. The new obstacle is a common sense one. It is ill-health on one side or the other, and sometimes on both.

"Men nowadays hesitate to marry a woman, no matter how beautiful, no matter how attractive, or interesting, or witty, if she is a sufferer from ill-health. All men wish to have healthy, healthy children. Any woman who will, may fit herself for the duties of wifehood and the exalted function of motherhood. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription banishes all hindrance in the nature of local ill-health. It gives healthy power and capacity to the delicate and important organs concerned in wifehood and maternity. It corrects all displacements. Always indolgent, benign, liberating, stops exhausting drains and soothes pain. It prepares for natural, healthy motherhood. It makes maternity easy and safe and almost painless. It ensures a new-comer constitutionally strong and able to withstand the usual ills of babyhood. It is the greatest of nerve tonics and restoratives. Medicine dealers sell it and an honest dealer will not urge a substitute upon you.

"After suffering untold tortures," writes Mrs. J. Ferguson, of Bow St, Douglas station, Selkirk Co., Manitoba, "I thank God I found relief and cure in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription."

"The profit side of life is health. The balance is written in the rich, red, pure blood of health. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation and make the blood rich and pure. They never gripe. By druggists.
