MYSTERIES OF SLEEP

SOME QUEER WORKINGS OF "NATURE'S SOFT NURSE."

Instances of Slumber Under Extraordinary Conditions - Why We Can Awaken at a Set Time - How Sleep is Ruled by Habit.

One of the most remarkable facts to be found in the history of sleep consists in the utter inability to resist its onset in cases of extreme fatigue. Several remarkable instances are given in which persons have continued to walk onward while sleep has overcome them, the automatic centers of the brain evidently controlling and stimulating the muscles when consciousness itself had been completely obliterated. It is recorded that at the battle of the Nile, amid the roar of cannon and the fall of wreckage, some of the over-fatigued boys serving the guns with powder fell asleep on the deck. Dr. Carpenter gives another instance of allied kind. In the course of the Burnside war, the captain of a frigate actively engaged in combat fell asleep for two hours within a yard of one of the biggest guns, which was being actively worked during his slumbers.

It is a matter of common medical knowledge that extreme exhaustion in face of the severest pain will induce sleep. Here the imperative demand of the body—a demand implanted, as we have seen, in the constitution of our frames—asserts its influence, and even pain, the ordinary conqueror of repose, has in its turn to succumb. One of the most extraordinary cases in which the overruling power of sleep was ever exemplified was that of Daniels, condemned for treason in Paris in 1797. He was barbarously tortured, but remarked that the deprivation of sleep had been the greatest torture of all. It was reported that he slept soundly even in the short intervals which elapsed between his periods of torture.

Among the Chinese a form of punishment for crimes consists in keeping the prisoner continually awake or in arousing him incessantly after short intervals of repose. After the eighth day of such sleeplessness one criminal besought his captors to put him to death by any means they could choose or invent, so great was his pain and torment due to the absence of "nature's soft nurse." Persons engaged in mechanical labor, such as attending a machine in a factory, have often fallen asleep despite the plain record of pains and penalties attending such dereliction of duty, to say nothing of the sense of personal danger which was plainly kept before their eyes.

One of the most interesting phases connected with sleep is that in which a determination, formed overnight, that we should wake at a certain hour acts true to the appointed time. In certain instances with which I am acquainted the idea acts perfectly, in others it acts occasionally, and in other cases, again, it fails completely. The explanation of this habit depends on what one may term a "dominant idea," or an idea fixe, as the French term it. There is something akin in this waking notion to the "dominant idea" with which a hypnotist may impress his facile subject. If we substitute for the hypnotist the individual himself, or maybe the idea of the friend who has been impressing upon him the necessity for sounding the reveille at a given hour in the morning, we can discern the rationale of the action with a fair degree of clearness.

The dominant idea in the shape of the necessity for awaking at a certain time is impressed on the brain and is probably transmitted to those automatic or lower centers which rule our mechanical acts which are responsible for the visions of the night and which are capable of carrying out, either in the entire absence of consciousness or in the exercise of a subconscious condition, many complex actions. Through the hours of sleep the dominant idea remains impressed on these lower centers. The head of the business sleeps on while the night watchman is awake, and so prompt to the time or shortly before or after it, the desired result is attained and the slumbering brain is awakened to the full measure of its activity.

That sleep is ruled by the habits of the individual is extremely evident. An instance is given in which a person who had taken passage on board a warship was rudely awakened by the morning gun, which startled him exceedingly. On succeeding mornings the gun woke him at first sharply and then much more quietly, until at length he slept on without being disturbed at all in his slumbers by the report. It is also notable that when a special habit of life has become part and parcel of the daily routine sleep is liable to be disturbed by even the slightest appeal which ordinarily wakes the individual in the exercise of his profession, while noises of much more grievous character fail to effect that result. The doctor wakes on the slightest agitation of his night bell, while the click of the needle awakes the tired telegraphist when a loud noise might fail.

Sir Edward Coddington was serving in the early days of his naval expedition as a signal lieutenant to Lord Hood on the battle of Toulon. His duty was that of watching for and interpreting the signals made by the lookout frigates, and in this capacity he remained on deck for 18 or 19 hours out of the 24. Exhausted with the strain of watching he went below to obtain sleep, and reposed soundly, undisturbed by any ordinary noise. Yet whenever a comrade lightly whispered in his ear the word "signal" he at once awoke, ready for duty. The cause of sleep is as yet a matter of scientific debate. In the present state of our knowledge there can be no absolute certainty in the matter. "The Ape of Death," by Dr. Andrew Wilson, F. R. S. E., in Harper's Magazine.

The picnic at Pleasant Hill, and many from the country around assembled in the beautiful grove at that place on Saturday last to celebrate the annual Woodman's picnic. The weather was all that could be desired, and the crowd, estimated at from 1000 to 2000, came for a good time and was not disappointed. The local band furnished excellent music, one of the members, John Parker, wore a regular Philippine suit of white, for it is a short time since he received an honorable discharge, having served under his country's flag for three years, part of the time at Manila.

A picnic would not be complete these times without a game of baseball, which was not lacking. There was woodworking also which caused a great deal of merriment. A merry-go-round was well patronized. Vocal music was very interesting, also some speaking by the children, as well as some by older persons. A lunch counter was very much in evidence about 12 m., also the ice cream and soda water stands, all except one, run in the Woodman's interest.

The writer is aware that the above is a poor description of what was to be seen, and to the disappointed ones would say, always go to a social gathering at Pleasant Hill and you will have "a good time."

I am imposing too much on the space and good nature of THE GUARD. I will name a few of the old pioneers whose friendly clasp I once again enjoyed, all of them the bone and joy of Lane county: A. J. Cramer, Dan T. Hendricks, James Parvin, Aunt Almira Brown, Robert A. Gibson, James Parker, Joseph Parker, S. Baughman, Alex. Matthews, T. H. Sawyer, G. W. Guley, W. L. Grislow.

"When shall we meet again?" "N. S." '03 '09.

His Life Was Saved.

Mr. J. E. Lilly, a prominent citizen of Hamilton, Mo., lately had a wonderful deliverance from a frightful death. In telling of it he says: "I was taken with typhoid fever, that ran into pneumonia. My lungs became hardened. I was so weak I could not even sit up in bed. Nothing helped me. I expected to soon die of consumption, when I heard of Dr. King's New Discovery. One bottle gave great relief. I continued to use it, and now am well and strong. I can't say too much for its merits." This marvelous medicine is the greatest and quickest cure in the world for all throat and lung troubles. Regular size 50 cents and $1.00. Trial bottles free at W. L. Wilkins' drug store; every bottle guaranteed.

Goshen News.

June 15, 1899.

Miss Elsie Kelley, of Cloverdale, was visiting relatives here the first of the week.

Many from Goshen will attend the Pleasant Hill picnic by the Woodmen Saturday.

Morton Kenney, of Brownsville, attended the picnic Saturday and visited relatives here.

J. B. Oretton, of Rowland, was a visitor to this vicinity Saturday. "Brad" seems to enjoy his visits to Goshen.

Several from here went to Salem Sunday on the conductors' excursion.

The picnic Saturday by the Maca-bees was well attended and proved a pleasant occasion. The dance in the evening was a success. The baby show during the day resulted as follows: Best looking boy under one year, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Smith, Creswell; girl under one year, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Brewer, Goshen; boy over one and under two years, Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Dillard, Goshen; girl over one and under two years, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Bristol, Creswell. The tug of war between Goshen Tent K O T M and Creswell Camp W O W, was won by the former. The baseball game between Goshen and Jasper also was won by the latter with a score almost two to one.

C. M. Kissinger made a good address for the boys.
