in every state in the Union and in many foreign countries that Chamber-ventive and cure for croup. It has become the universal remedy for that believe that it is not only the best cough remedy, but that it is a sure cure for croup. It has saved the lives of our children a number of times." This

RED-HEADED GIRLS.

They Are Found in Every Land and of All Nations.

The geographical distribution of red-headed girls is, fortunately, wide. They can be found in every inhabited quarter of the world.

The so-called dark races are frequently glorified by the glowing locks. The Spaniards are swarthy as a race, but the purest blooded Castilians frequently show traces of the Visigothic blood by blue eyes and red hair.

The Infanta Eudalia, who visited this country in 1893 is red-headed.

Red-haired Italians are fairly numerous in Italy. They are most numerous in the northern provinces, where there is the greatest infusion of German blood.

And there is no girl in the world prettier than a red-haired Italian or Spanish, except it be a red-haired American.

In Ireland a red-haired girl is made miserable by being called a "Dane". This epithet is a legacy of a thousand years or more—more than the time when the Danes actually did invade the island.

In a similar manner the Norsemen, who invaded Spitsbergen centuries ago and intermarried with the inhabitants, left descendants with beaming blue eyes and red hair.

Two Turks are a light-haired, blue-eyed race, and their children are everywhere scattered about Asia and Northern Africa.

And where there aren't any red-haired girls by nature—as among the Moors and Arabs—the glowing locks commonest of all the women all dye their jetty tresses to a lovely red with henna.

FACOMA, Jan. 16.—The steamer Farallone brings the brief news from Skagway that a large part of the business portion of Dawson burned last Wednesday night. The loss exceeds $500,000. No particulars. The steamer left Skagway before the details were received by wire from Dawson.

AN EXCITING LIFE.

Why the Chicago Girl's Brown Hair Turned Golden Red.

"Gosh, Marler, but that wuz a close shave!" exclaimed Uncle Eben as he dragged his worthy spouse out of the way of a street car that was yet 20 feet away. "This yer Chicago life is 'nough to make a man's hair turn gray."

"Turn gray?" snarled his wife. "I wouldn't be so bad of that wuz all it done. It's decent and respectable to have gray hair, but when it comes to makin' a poor young gal's hair turn yaller just on account of the excitement 'er all these cars an' railroads an' suttin' an' howlin' people there's when I say it's a sin to hev sich big cities. I'n a-goin' right out to 'Liza Jane's house, of I kin ever find it, an' stay right in it till we leave Chicago."

"How do you know it makes people's hair turn yaller?" asked Uncle Eben. "I ain't never heard tell of enything of that kind."

"Well, I see it with my own eyes—leastwise I see it turn brown agin after the poor dears wuz rested all summer in the country. You know them four gals what staid all summer over at Cousin Ellen's? When they fust come, they'd big brown eyes an' fair complexion an' right yaller hair. Purty soon every one of 'em's hair begin to get streaked in spots, an' before the summer wuz over they all had rich brown hair. Then I ast one of 'em what made their hair turn brown, an' she said it wuz alla brown, but that the excitin' life she'd been livin' in Chicago, whar she had to act in a theater every night, made it turn yaller. Poor thing! She looked so much better at the end of the summer that I hate to think of her comin' back to this great, wicked-city."

Steel Combs.

A man who saw in a sidewalk show-case some steel combs and who wondered what steel combs could be used for found upon inquiry that they were used by furriers in combing furs. There was one of these combs that looked much like a comb of the ordinary kind, coarse toothed for half its length and finer toothed the other half. And then there was one comb that had teeth for half its length, the solid end serving as a handle.

There are other steel combs that are used for a similar purpose, as steel combs made to comb dogs with. The dog comb looks somewhat like the fine toothed comb in its general shape, but it is larger, toothed on one side only and coarser toothed than the so-called fine comb. The untoothed side combs of this sort are used on various kinds of dogs, including, for instance, long haired dogs like the French poodle.

—New York Sun.

Too Small.

Uncle Zeke Watson was accustomed to seeing good sized squares of cup cake, lemon cake or gingerbread on the supper table, and when he had his first plate of ice cream in a day restaurant he looked with some disfavor upon the macaroons and small sponge drops which accompanied it.

"How do you like it?" asked his niece, who was doing the honors of the city for her uncle.

"The ice cream is first rate," said Uncle Zeke. "I call it extra good. But when you come to these things," he added, lifting one of the sponge "lady fingers" and surveying it doubtfully, "I presume to say they're all right enough, what there is of 'em, but there isn't enough of 'em; just nothing but gape and swallow!"

Historic Willow Spared.

McMinnville Reporter.

The new electric lines are being stretched about town, which necessitates clearing out a good many trees. The famous weeping willow in front of the Cooper residence was put for consideration to cut or to cut. Mr. Cooper and the boys had voted to cut it down, but after consulting some of the neighbors, they reversed the edict. This fine tree is about the only one of its kind in town.

It was planted in 1854 as a small twig, by Mrs. Susan Grant, grandmother of Gus, Sam and Henry Grant, who formerly lived there. Some of the limbs were lopped off, and the wires were run through the top of it.

Having a Great Run on Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

Manager Martin, of the Pierson drug store, informs us that he is having a great run on Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. He sells five bottles of that medicine to one of any other kind, and it gives great satisfaction. In these days of influenza there is nothing like Chamberlain's Cough Remedy to stop the cough, heat up the sore throat and lungs and give relief within a very short time. The sales are growing, and all who try it are pleased with its prompt action.—South Chicago Daily Calumet. For sale by W. L. DeLano.

The Apple Canker.

Of special interest to fruitgrowers on the coast is the work done by Professor Cordley, of the Oregon experiment station at Corvallis. The apple canker and its constant spread among orchards has been a source of alarm to Oregon fruitgrowers. The disease attacks the branches, especially branches less than three inches in diameter, of apple trees. It usually leaves a depressed area of greater or less size to the bark, for the healing over of which several years are required. If the affection encircles the limb, it results in its death.

For several years Oregon orchardists have been concerned over the disease and its probable results. There has been talk among them of having an Eastern specialist come to the coast to study the disease, which, by the way, is not prevalent in the East. The disease, in fact, is not described or named in any of the scientific books.

Six months ago Professor Cordley, of the Oregon station, who was doing special work at Cornell university, took up the apple canker. He took the spores of diseased limbs, and after some disappointments, finally grew them in pure cultures.

With these he inoculated a healthy limb of an apple tree, and succeeded in reproducing the disease as it exists on the coast. The solution of the problem of the character of the disease will be of much value to the fruit interests. The spores from which the tree was inoculated, and the disease reproduced, grew during the month of September.

They failed to grow at other times, from which Professor Cordley believes that apple canker may be averted or cured by spraying in the month of September. This, however, is a part of the problem that remains yet to be determined.

What Tim Told Them.

Some weeks ago a bridal couple came in from Sacramento and put up at the Palace. The bridegroom was very sensitive, and so he told his valet not to tell any of the servants of the hotel that he was newly married. Notwithstanding all precautions the young couple seemed to be the center of attraction. In the dining room they were ogled by the ladies and in the corridors by the men. Finally they could stand it no longer. Calling his valet, the bridegroom said severely: "Tim I thought I told you not to tell anybody that we were married." "Shure, sorr," was the reply, "an I tont thim all who wuzent married."—San Francisco Wave.

From a G. A. R. Man

"My attack of miller's Asthma was very bad. I was afraid to lie down at night for fear of smothering. I couldn't get my breath. No matter all the doors and windows in the house were open, it seemed as if there was no air and that I must surely smother to death. Mr. W. B. Long, of this city, called my attention to Acker's English Remedy for Throat and Lung Troubles. I bought a bottle of it but thought it might be a little. It gave me wonderful relief, and the second bottle cured me completely. My recovery is permanent, too, for ever since I have not had the slightest return of my old enemy. I consider Acker's English Remedy by long odds the best medicine in the world for hacking coughs, asthma and bronchitis. It completely cures these stubborn diseases that many people wrongly suppose to be incurable. If sufferers will try just a single bottle, it will prove every word I have said, and more." (Signed)
