AN IMPARTIAL COMPLIMENT.

The Newspaper Blue Book for 1900, published by the 20th Century Press Clipping Bureau of New York and Chicago, gives a list of the best papers published in each state in the Union, and in our outlying colonies. In explanation the Blue Book says:

"Every paper in the list has been selected because of its superior excellence compared with others covering the same territory."

"In every instance the comparison has been made upon the scope of the news columns and quality and variety of special articles and editorials."

The EUGENE GUARD is one of five named in Oregon, the others being located one each in Portland, Astoria, Salem and Baker City. This testimonial coming unsolicited from such an impartial authority is received with pleasure by this paper, and is only another inspiration to constantly increase the already good service given.

A NEVADA GREYNA-GREEN.

More than one thousand divorced Californians have wedded at Reno, Nevada, in the past three years. The business is on the increase and the little city is fully prepared for the regular trade. Justice Linn alone has united over three hundred divorced Californians. But the days of his monopoly are over for there are now active, vigorous preacher competitors in his way.

Two by two they arrive over the state line with small grips, go to the Riverside hotel, the sign of which is painted high, in full view, on the gable ends of a three-story, all built house, above the second-story windows. County Clerk Porter is called and goes on issuing licenses up in the second thousand. Miss Conroy is a professional witness, always on hand. The revenue thus obtained in the little town of six thousand souls is wonderful. It is called Gretna-Green, but the old name suffers by its namesake.

TWO POINTS OF VIEW.

A farmer drifted into a hardware store, and was asked by the manager: "Don't you want to buy a bicycle to ride around your farm on?" They're awful cheap this spring. Can give you one for $30." "I'd sooner put $30 in a cow," said the farmer. "But think," replied the manager, "how foolish you would look riding around your farm on a cow." "Oh, I don't know," said the farmer, "no more foolish perhaps, than I would milking a bicycle."

Though Johannesburg is the great commercial center of the Transvaal, Pretoria, which has just fallen into the hands of the British, held political ascendancy. For years the Boers were content with the most primitive forms of stores, but time changes all things, and latterly Pretoria has become one of the jewels of South Africa. The population is estimated at about 11,000 people, of whom about one-half are colored. The city was named after Commandant Pretorius, the first and greatest president of the South African Republic.

Certain so-called philanthropists are inviting the Boers to take up residence in the United States. There is no evidence that the people of the two South African republics are anxious to leave their homes, even though they have tasted the bitterness of defeat. While Great Britain makes no quest of territory she gives the conquered all the rights enjoyed by her own citizens. The Dutch burgher will only know that a change of government has taken place by the enlargement of his liberties.

Trust solicitor (after laboring man's vote): "Mike, do you know if Bryan were elected president all wages would be reduced 50 per cent?" Mike: "Faith, if that's so you'd be votin' for him yerself."—New York Verdict.

Don't get angry when the census-taker asks you a lot of questions about your business and family relations. He is not inquisitive by choice but is paid for asking questions.

BURDENED WOMEN.

We look in amazement at the burdens some women carry upon their heads. Yet how light they are compared with the burdens some women carry upon their hearts. There are childless women whose hearts ache ceaselessly because of the childless home. That burden of childlessness has been lifted from the heart of many a woman by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. Many of the obstacles to maternity are removable. Such obstacles are entirely removed by "Favorite Prescription." It contains no alcohol nor narcotic.

Married Six Years and Childless.

"I have never written you how grateful I am to you for your help in securing good health and one of the sweetest, dearest, thirteen pound girls that ever came into a home," writes Mrs. M. Vastine, of 447 South Liberty Street, Indianapolis, Ind. "I took six bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, four of the Golden Medical Discovery, and four vials of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. Before I had taken four bottles of the Favorite Prescription I was a new woman. I cannot make pen describe my heartfelt gratitude, so will close by saying if any one disputes the value of Dr. Pierce's medicines I will be pleased to confirm the truth of all I say if they will enclose stamped envelope for reply."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are a ladies' laxative. No medicine equals them for gentleness and thoroughness.

Would Not Suffer So Again for Fifty Times Its Price

I awoke last night with severe pains in my stomach. I never felt so badly in all my life. When I came down to work this morning I felt so weak I could hardly work. I went to Miller & McCurdy's drug store and they recommended Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. It worked like magic and one dose fixed me all right. It certainly is the finest thing I ever used for stomach trouble. I shall not be without it in my house hereafter, for I should not care to endure the sufferings of last night again for fifty times its price. G. H. WILSON, Liverman, Burgettstown, Washington Co., Pa. This remedy is for sale by W. L. DeLano.

A Card of Thanks.

I wish to say that I feel under lasting obligations for what Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has done for our family. We have used it in so many cases of coughs, lung troubles and whooping cough, and it has always given the most perfect satisfaction. We feel greatly indebted to the manufacturers of this remedy and wish them to please accept our hearty thanks. Respectfully, Mrs. S. Doty, Des Moines, Iowa. For sale by W. L. DeLano.

MODERN MINE SALTING.

The Way This Swindle Is Artfully Worked in Mexico.

"Mine salting nowadays has developed into a very nice art," said an engineer and assayer who has lately returned from the inspection of some properties in old Mexico. "In former times it was done crudely. A rascal who wanted to give fictitious value to a worthless prospect hole generally bought or stole a sack of high grade ore and simply scattered it about the excavation, where the victim would be likely to pick up a few pieces for sampling. If an exposed ledge was to be dealt with, he sometimes filed up a $20 goldpiece, loaded the dust into a shotgun and fired it against the surface from which specimens would be taken. "But at present greater finesse is needed. The up to date purchaser insists upon having fresh ore blasted out from beneath the surface, where it could not possibly be tampered with, and seals it up in a little canvas sack for the assayer with his own hands. It is then that the latest development, the hypodermic syringe, comes into play. The scientific mine salter has one of these handy little implements in his coat pocket, charged with a solution of chloride of gold. "He watches for an opportunity, and when one presents itself quietly thrusts the tip of the needle through the canvas sack and gives the piston a gentle push. The consequence is that a few drops of the liquid are discharged over the surface of the ore. The quantity of gold in the solution is almost infinitesimal, but it is enough to 'run up' an assay $1,000 to the victim in tranquility in the knowledge that he has selected the samples himself and has them safely sacked under his own private seal. Hypodermic mine salting is all the go in Mexico at present. It beats the old method to death."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

RUSSIAN POLICEMEN.

New Governor's Test For Their Alertness Was a Failure.

A good story is being told in St. Petersburg of the Russian police which the papers pronounce to be exceedingly characteristic. A new governor was sent to a certain town in the interior, and the inhabitants at once began to complain that the police were badly organized, since, however much they were wanted, they would never come when they were sent for. The governor determined to test this for himself, so one night he set out for the barracks where the police and the fire brigade were quartered. He accosted the sentry:

"Do you know me?"

"Yes, your excellency."

"If a man was being murdered close by, would you quit your post?"

"Never, your excellency."

"Good," said the governor. "You know your duty. Well, what would you do?"

"I would blow my whistle to rouse the guard."

"Good. Let us suppose some one is being murdered here. Whistle."

The soldier blew, but not a soul answered. He blew again and again, but the same silence prevailed.

"That will do," said the governor at last. "You have whistled your utmost, and nobody has come; but, at any rate, your conscience is tranquil. Now you can go to sleep. The man could have been murdered two or three times over. It is unnecessary to overdo it by trying to wake your comrades, who appear to sleep like the dead. The czar should be proud of such steady soldiers."

With that the governor went off, congratulating himself that no one would be likely to accuse his police of having a share in the midnight murders of the town.

Out of Sight.

An English cotton buyer in Memphis was talking with the clerk of one of the hotels the other day when a commercial traveler came up. "How you feeling, Bill?" said the clerk as he extended his hand. "Oh, I'm just out of sight," replied the drummer.

After the commercial man had been assigned his room the Englishman turned to the clerk and inquired what he meant by "out of sight." The clerk explained that he meant he was feeling fine, and the Englishman recorded it in his little book.

The next morning when he came down to breakfast the clerk, following his usual custom, asked how he felt. The Englishman thought it a good time to try some of his newly learned slang and, with the air of one who has solved a difficult problem, replied, "Oh, you can't see me at all!"—Memphis Scimitar.

Motion and Color.

The relations between light and the eye are wonderful, and the rapidity of the vibrations of the atmosphere necessary to produce color sensations are amazing. To get the sensation of redness our eyes are affected 482,000,000 times in a second; of yellowness, 540,000,000, and of violet, 707,000,000. So that the seven hues rainbow, whose firm and subtle frame is reared out of drops of water that are ever shifting, plays upon the human eye in a manner so astounding that the strongest mind might stagger beneath the awful revelation.—London Opinion.

Too Long to Wait.

"If you will get my new suit done by Saturday," said a customer to a tailor, "I'll be forever indebted to you."

"If that's your game," replied the tailor, "the clothes will not be done at all."—Indianapolis Journal.

Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington are red brick cities, red brick being the predominant building material. In Washington the sameness is relieved by the granite public buildings and marble business structures.

An Epidemic of Whooping Cough.

Last winter during an epidemic of whooping cough my children contracted the disease, having severe coughing spells. We had used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy very successfully for croup and naturally turned to it at that time and found it relieved the cough and effected a complete cure.—John E. Clifford, Proprietor Norwood House, Norwood, N. Y. This remedy is for sale by W. L. DeLano.
