How to Cure Croup.

Mr R. Gray, who lives near Astoria-Ducess county, N. Y., says: "Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is the best medicine I have ever used. It is a fine children's remedy for croup and never fails to cure." When given as soon as the child becomes hoarse, or even after the croupy cough has developed, it will prevent the attack. This should be borne in mind and a bottle of the Cough Remedy kept at hand ready for instant use as soon as these symptoms appear. For sale by W. L. DeLano, druggists.

Choice City Property Bargain.

A fine residence piece of property for sale at a bargain. Corner lots with improved streets, fine shrubbery and shade trees. In a good neighborhood, and convenient to the business portion of town. Inquire of or address J. R. Campbell, GUARD office, Eugene, Oregon.

The Best Plaster.

A piece of flannel dampened with Chamberlain's Pain Balm and bound to the affected parts is superior to any plaster. When troubled with lame back or chest, give it a trial and you are certain to be more than pleased with the prompt relief which it affords. Pain Balm also cures rheumatism. One application gives relief. For sale by OSBURN & DELANO, druggists.

The Rector's Wife.

Herbert Byington and his wife were there alone enjoying the ruddy light of the coal fire and the warmth and coziness of the room, entirely at variance with the scene without.

Just opposite him on a low footstool Jessica sat with the bright freckled flashing in her lovely face, the scarlet dewy lips curved in an unmistakable pout and her eyes sparkling with suspicious moisture.

"Jessica, my love," pleaded the rector, with a countenance of sore bewilderment. "I thought you would look at the matter reasonably."

"So I do," said Jessica, raising the lovely hand eyes with a sparkle of indignation to her husband's face. "I'm not a woman of ice nor a dried up old fossil, never to want any change or relaxation."

"I'll be obliged to you to go to this side. Every body in the restaurant is going, and I don't see why I should be pined at a table. I'm only 17 and haven't worn the pink and silver dress since we were married."

"But, Jessica," gravely interrupted her husband, "the manager's bill is not exactly the place for a daughter's wife. 'I don't see when the harm is,' perked Jessica.

"You're burst into tears."

"I'm not crying," she said. "I might as well be a prisoner in a stone cell at now. I wish I were single again. I wish I hadn't married a minister!"

"Jessica," he began sadly, "if you—"

But a knock at the door interrupted his sentence.

"If ye please, sir," said the round eyed and smiling Irish girl, "John Mooney from the mountain, and his father's just gone intirely wid the fever, and he says would the minister please to come quick, or it'll be dead he'll be. I tould him the minister likely couldn't come, being 'twas three miles off and the river all swollen wid the freshet, and the night as dark as a wolf's mouth, and—"

"Tell him to wait one instant, Sarah," said Mr. Byington, rising at once and putting his papers hurriedly into their portfolio. "Of course I shall go with him. Poor Mooney! I did not think he would have lasted so long as this."

And as Sarah closed the door he bent carelessly over his wife.

"Goodby, Jessica," he said. "It will probably be some hours before I shall return. Try and not be lonesome, my dear."

But Jessica only turned her head away. "Will you not tell me goodby, my love?" he pleaded, trying to look into her averted eyes, but she never looked up nor answered his appealing words.

He waited an instant as if for her to speak and then left the room. As the door closed behind him Jessica half rose from her seat, as if to call him back, but she checked herself before the action had become defined.

As time passed Jessica became oppressed with loneliness. She opened the door and crept softly into the kitchen. Even the companionship of the rough, untutored Irish girl was better than none at all. But here again she was disappointed. Sarah had gone to bed and to sleep, and Jessica stole back again, shrinking from the sound of her own footsteps, and sat down by the fire. From a brief reverie she was roused by the sound of the little bronze mantel clock striking 12.

Twelve o'clock! Surely she should have been home long ere this. It was barely 7 when he went away. A new terror took possession of Jessica's mind. Suppose anything should have happened to Herbert! The river, she knew, was swollen to its utmost height by the spring rains, the road was intricate, the night dark, the bridges were now the better, as she remembered these things a feeling came over her as if she had been grasped by a hand of ice.

Worried and worn out by the conflicting emotions that racked her mind, Jessica dropped off into a sort of doze, a half slumber, half fevered unrest, through which the sharp, bell-like tone of the clock striking 1 sounded like the tolling of a knell.

She was roused by the sound of hoarse voices and the tramp of feet, springing wildly up, she rushed to the door and threw it open.

"Herbert! Merciful heaven! Who is there?"

"Don't be skeered, ma'am," answered the rough voice of Farmer Althorpe, so close to her as she felt his ruddy nature would admit. "Maybe he ain't so badly hurt arter all, and—"

But Jessica had rushed past him out into the night and tempest, for the keen eyes of the wife had discerned the motionless burden carried by two or three men in the background.

"Herbert, my husband! Is he dead?" she gasped, with a face whiter than the white snow on the mountain sides beyond.

"We hope not, Mrs. Byington," said a soothing voice, that of Dr. Daleson, "but the fall was a serious one."

"How? Where?"

The choked voice refused to give utterance to the incoherent words, but the kind hearted physician comprehended her meaning.

"We were crossing the bridge near the old box factory on our return from John Mooney's when the timbers at the upper end gave way. I always thought they were insufficiently staid to resist our heavy spring freshets. I caught at the rail where it ran up on the bank and saved myself, but poor Byington was not quick enough."

"That half hour by the side of the injured man when death stood opposite claiming its prey and the flame of life flickered as it every second must see its total extinction—the young wife never forgot it. And when at last Dr. Daleson whispered to her that their efforts had prevailed and that the sweet sleep into which he had fallen would be the precursor of eventual recovery she wept like a child. Heaven had indeed given him back to her, through trial and terror, and the rush of happiness to her heart was almost overwhelming.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The Origin of Greenhouses.
William Watson of Kew says that the first greenhouse erected in England was in the Apothecaries' garden at Chelsea in 1634. It merely had glass sides and was heated by a kind of oven. In 1717 a glass covered house was built by the Duke of Rutland at Belvoir castle for foreign grapes, heated by furnaces placed under the floor of the house. Steam was first used in 1788, and hot water soon afterward was applied to a small house in the Jardin des Plantes at Paris.—Meyers Monthly.

Volcanic Eruptions.
Are grand, but skin eruptions rob life of joy. Bucklen's Arnica Balm cures them; also, old, running and fever sores, ulcers, boils, felonies, warts, cuts, bruises, burns, scalds, chapped hands, chilblains. Best pile cure on earth. Drives out pains and aches. Only 25 cents a box. Cure guaranteed. Sold by W. L. DeLano, druggist.

No Right to Ugliness.

The woman who is lovely in face, form and temper, will always have friends, but one who would be attractive must keep her health. If she is weak, sickly and all run down, she will be nervous and irritable. If she has constipation or kidney trouble, her impure blood will cause pimples, blotches, skin eruptions and a wretched complexion. Electric Bitters is the best medicine in the world to regulate stomach, liver and kidneys and to purify the blood. It gives strong nerves, bright eyes, smooth, velvety skin, rich complexion. It will make a good looking, charming woman of a run-down invalid. Only 50c, at W. L. DeLano's drug store.

No Cure No Pay.

That is the way all druggists sell Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic for Chills, Malaria and Biliousness. It is as pleasant to take as Lemon Syrup. 50 cents.

Treble Clef Concert.

The U O Treble Clef will give its annual concert Dec 20 in Villard Hall.

Notice.

All bills outstanding against the University should be presented to the registrar on or before December 19, 1900.

To Cure a Cold in One Day

Take Laxative Bromo Quinine Tablets. All druggists refund the money if it fails to cure. E. W. Grove's signature is on each box. 25c.

TO LOAN.—$1,000 on first class real estate security, at 8 per cent. For particulars call at GUARD office.

JERSEY COWS.—Two fine Jersey cows for sale. Inquire at GUARD office.

"Necessity Knows No Law."

But a law of Nature bows to the necessity of keeping the blood pure so that the entire system shall be strong, healthy and vigorous.

To take Hood's Sarsaparilla, the great blood purifier, is therefore a law of health and it is a necessity in nearly every household. It never disappoints.

Blood Disorders.—"My step-daughter and I have both been troubled greatly with blood disorders and stomach troubles, and several bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla have been of great benefit." James F. Thompson, Wilmington, Ohio.

"We were crossing the bridge near the old box factory on our return from John Mooney's when the timbers at the upper end gave way. I always thought they were insufficiently staid to resist our heavy spring freshets. I caught at the rail where it ran up on the bank and saved myself, but poor Byington was not quick enough."

PITY AND BEAUTY

The most beautiful thing in the world, is the baby, all dimples and joy. The most pitiful thing is that same baby, thin and in pain.

The dimples and joy have gone, and left hollows and fear. It is fat that is gone; gone with it, comfort and color and curve; all but pity and love.

The little one gets no fat from her food; has had none for weeks; she is living on what she had stored in that plump little body of hers. She is starving for fat; it is death; be quick!

Scott's emulsion of cod-liver oil is the fat she can take. It will save her.

Write and you a little to try if you like. SCOTT & BOWNE, 439 Pearl Street, New York.

For Malaria, Chills and Fever

THE BEST PRESCRIPTION IS Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic.

The formula is plainly printed on every bottle—hence you know just what you are taking when you take Grove's. Imitators do not advertise their formula knowing that you would not buy their medicine if you knew what it contained. Grove's contains Iron and Quinine put up in correct proportions and is in a Tasteless form. The Iron acts as a tonic while the Quinine drives the malaria out of the system. Any reliable druggist will tell you that Grove's is the Original and that all other so-called Tasteless Chill Tonics are imitations. An analysis of other chill tonics shows that Grove's is superior to all others in every respect. You are not experimenting when you take Grove's—its superiority and excellence having long been established. Grove's is the only Chill Cure sold throughout the entire malarial sections of the United States. No Cure, No Pay. Price, 50c.
