SATURDAY - - APRIL 13

One family is in terrible mourning out in Jackson county. The son killed the father mistakenly for a deer.

The accidental explosion of one thousand pounds of powder out in Josephine county the other day was plainly felt at Grant's Pass, twenty miles away. It was heard a distance of thirty miles.

The Southern Pacific railroad will furnish the Portland Board of Trade drills and other apparatus necessary for boring prospect wells for oil throughout the Willamette valley. The wells will tell the tale.

The Baker City postmaster asks the government for additional clerical assistance. During the last three years the business of the office has doubled—from seven thousand to fourteen thousand dollars a year.

They don't give newspaper men any chance down in Cuba. Captain Young, captain of the port of Havana, has just sent the editor and manager of a paper to jail for sixty days each for printing a report that the captain lied. Probably they told the truth; that is what usually hurts.

Mike De Young of the San Francisco Chronicle has returned from a several months' trip abroad and expresses himself surprised at the consideration shown Americans since he last visited Europe. Perhaps Mike is more generous than formerly, and makes substantial tips. Nothing like liberality when traveling.

This is the time of year when Eastern Oregon sheepherders having got their flocks fairly on the summer range, begin quarreling over the use of the free government lands over which they feed their sheep, occasionally settling the difficulty by killing. Already one homicide has resulted from such a dispute, with another herder shot, though not fatally.

The Linnton horse abattoir and cannery will open for business in the latter part of May, when it is expected the otherwise worthless cayuse ponies of the Inland Empire will be good and fat and fit for canning. It is estimated that not less than three-quarters of a million of cayuse ponies range the country tributary to the Columbia river and its branches. They are fit for nothing but the slaughter-house.

There are more ways to kill a dog than by choking him to death. After the allied powers had the Chinese situation substantially corralled they unanimously agreed that they would preserve the territorial integrity of China. All they wanted was indemnity for their expenses in putting China on a peace footing. In that innocent looking "indemnity" lay the diplomatic joker. China is bankrupt, cannot pay nor borrow. It will all end by the powers taking whatever territory they want in pay.

The telegraph brings the important news that John Albert Skoog, a New York counterfeiter, led a double life. A man with such a name could hardly do otherwise. He contributed very liberally to his church and generously remembered the poor of the district in which he resided. A man who made his own money could well afford to be liberal. But Skoog no longer has the opportunity to pose as a philanthropist. If he recovers from self-inflicted wounds Uncle Sam will take care of him for many years to come. The United States courts have no mercy to waste on counterfeiters.

The April issue of Braun's Iconoclast (Texas) contains a long letter purporting to come from Bob Ingersoll who writes from hades to Mr Dowie, a fake healer of Chicago. Among other passages this one occurs:

I have shaken hands with Tommy Paine and Voltaire. They seem to be very pleasant gentlemen. Said they had watched my career for some time and were expecting me daily. Ben Franklin called on me this morning. He is wearing his hair short and has stopped inventing stoves. He is forming a stock company for the manufacture of ice. Of course the "trust" is down here too. Solomon and Brigham Young have all the women cornered.

Automatic Bath Tub.

A certain lazy man of Junction City, in order to save himself any inconvenience when he had his house remodeled included an automatic bath tub. The tub was arranged so that he could lie in bed and, upon pushing a button the door opened and the tub glided in from the next room to the side of the bed; then all he had to do was to roll over into the bath tub, and take his morning bath. One day he was showing a party of gentlemen friends over the house when he came to his room and said: "Let me show you my automatic bath tub." He pushed the button. There was a scream, and the tub came sailing into the room with his wife in it. She now takes her bath in the wash pan.

PRETTY TOUGH.—Salem Journal in X Rays: "The importance of towns is indicated by the president's itinerary in Oregon: Eugene, asleep; Albany, five minutes; Salem, three hours; Portland, a day." In another place it says: "The president will go through Eugene at 5 a m and the people of that town will be up to see him."

Jacksonville Times: H D Norton, of Grants Pass, one of the ablest members of the Southern Oregon bar, and who has been attending the present term of circuit court, returned home Friday. He made many friends while here.

Albany Democrat: Poundmaster Catlin yesterday had his pound full of horses belonging to a band of gypsies. Johnny is an old soldier and they couldn't do him the way they did the Eugene poundmaster, and so had to put up, then they departed at double-quick time. Good riddance.

Portland Pacific Farmer: "Apples 5 cents each." "Oranges 5 cents per dozen," are a couple of signs seen at a fruit stand in this city recently.

A Dakota buyer has secured a lot of yearling wethers at Heppner at $2 per head, after shearing. This is 50 cents less than the price last year.

The Truth

Is told by most people. If it were not, the whole commercial and social fabric would fall to pieces. There are thousands upon thousands of people who testify to the cures effected by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. They are representative people in their communities. You would believe their word on any question of knowledge. They speak the simple truth when they testify that Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures dyspepsia, "weak" stomach and other diseases of the stomach and its allied organs of digestion and nutrition. It cures when all other remedial means have failed. It cures perfectly and permanently.

There is no alcohol in the "Discovery." It is free from opium, cocaine and all other narcotics. Accept no substitute for Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. There is nothing "just as good."

"I was a total wreck—could not eat or sleep," writes Mr. J. O. Beers, of Berryman, Crawford Co. Mo. "For two years I tried medicine from doctors, but received very little benefit. I lost flesh and strength, was not able to do a good day's work. I commenced taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and when I had taken one bottle I could sleep and my appetite was wonderfully improved. I have taken five bottles and am still improving."

Dr. Pierce's Medical Adviser, paper-covered, is sent free on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps to pay expense of mailing only. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

GOOD OFFICE NOW.

New Duties, New Powers and New Emoluments for County Surveyors.

Corvallis Times.

The office of county surveyor has suddenly leaped into prominence as one of the most important offices of the county. The change is the result of a new law enacted at the last legislative session. One of the new features is that the surveyor has complete supervision of the construction of bridges, culverts, roads, ditches or other public works to be constructed under the authority of the county court. He is also to superintend the construction of all such public works, unless otherwise ordered. Whenever the estimated cost of any bridge to be constructed exceeds $200 the county surveyor advertises for bids and in conjunction with the county court opens said bids and the court awards the contract.

The plat and survey of any public road or private road is hereafter to be copied into the records at the county court house by the surveyor, a work that has hitherto been done by the county clerk. He shall also make out complete description of all or any part of the real estate of the county to be made out and entered in proper rolls furnished by the county clerk.

He may exact from private parties payment in advance for chainmen and markers or flagmen required in making any survey of the lands of such private parties. The law evidently contemplates that the surveyor shall keep an office at the county seat. It provides for payment bi-monthly of the salary of the surveyor by the county court. He is given power to locate boundary lines between the lands of individuals, and to apportion the damages between the parties at interest. In any survey affecting a county line he serves notice upon the county surveyor of the adjoining county, and shall make such survey in the same manner as other surveys, and each surveyor shall make a copy of the plat and field notes of such survey, and file in the surveyor's office. The boundaries so established shall be held to be permanent and shall never be changed. Provision is made in case of differences between the surveyors for an appeal to the circuit court of the county in which the action for the survey is first taken.

The law also gives the surveyor large powers as follows: "The surveyor shall procure at the expense of the county the materials and requisites for carrying into effect the provisions of this act, and the county court shall pay for the same and all expenses incurred therein out of the general fund of the county."

Another section says: "The county surveyor shall receive fees for his services, the sum of five dollars per diem for each and every day necessarily employed in the performance of the duties above enumerated, and ten cents per mile for each mile actually traveled in going from the county seat to and from the place of survey."

The law did not receive the approval of the governor, and was allowed to become a law without his signature. It is apparent from the provisions that some interested surveyor has had a finger in the preparation and passage of the measure.

The law goes into effect May 28th.

THE TALE OF IVAN

From the Celtic.

There was once a man named Ivan who left his wife and went to work for a farmer, hiring for £3 a year. At the end of a year the farmer instead of giving Ivan his wages gave him a piece of advice, "Never leave the old road for the sake of a new one."

After that they agreed for another year at the old wage, and at the end of it Ivan took instead a piece of advice, and this was it, "Never lodge where an old man is married to a young woman."

The same thing happened at the end of the third year, when the piece of advice was, "Honesty is the best policy."

But Ivan would not stay longer, but wanted to go back to his wife.

When Ivan was going to leave—"Here," said his master, "here is a cake for thee to take home to thy wife, and when ye are most joyous together then break the cake, and not sooner."

So he took fair leave of them and traveled toward home, and at last he came to Wayn Her, and there he met three merchants from Tre Rhyn, of his own parish, coming home from Exeter fair. "Oh, ho, Ivan!" said they. "Come with us. Glad are we to see you. Where have you been so long?"

"I have been in service," said Ivan, "and now I'm going home to my wife."

"Oh, come with us. You'll be right welcome."

But when they took the new road Ivan kept to the old one. And robbers fell upon them before they had gone far from Ivan, as they were going by the fields of the houses in the meadow. They began to cry out, "Thieves!" and Ivan shouted out, "Thieves!" too. And when the robbers heard Ivan's shout they ran away, and the merchants went by the new road and Ivan by the old one till they met again at Market Jew.

"Oh, Ivan," said the merchants, "we are beholding to you. But for you we would have been lost men. Come, lodge with us at our cost, and welcome."

When they came to the place where they used to lodge, Ivan said, "I must see the host."

"The host!" they cried. "What do you want with the host? Here is the hostess, and she's young and pretty. If you want to see the host, you'll find him in the kitchen."

So he went into the kitchen to see the host. He found him, a weak old man, turning the spit.

"Oh, oh," quoth Ivan, "I'll not lodge here, but will go next door."

"Not yet," said the merchants. "Sup with us and welcome."

Now it happened that the hostess had plotted with a certain monk in Market Jew to murder the old man in his bed that night while the rest were asleep, and they agreed to lay it on the lodgers.

So, while Ivan was in bed next door, there was a hole in the pine end of the house, and he saw a light through it. So he got up and looked and heard the monk speaking. "I had better cover this hole," said he, "or people in the next house may see our deeds." So he stood with his back against it while the hostess killed the old man.

But meanwhile Ivan out with his knife and, putting it through the hole, cut a round piece off the monk's robe.

The very next morning the hostess raised the cry that her husband was murdered, and, as there was neither man nor child in the house but the merchants, she declared they ought to be hanged for it.

So they were taken and carried to prison till at last Ivan came to them. "Alas, alas, Ivan," cried they, "bad luck sticks to us. Our host was killed last night, and we shall be hanged for it."

"Ah, tell the justices," said Ivan, "to summon the real murderers."

"Who knows," they replied, "who committed the crime?"

"Who committed the crime?" said Ivan. "If I cannot prove who committed the crime, hang me in your stead."

So he told all he knew and brought out the piece of cloth from the monk's robe, and with that the merchants were set at liberty, and the hostess and the monk were seized and hanged.

Then they came all together out of Market Jew, and they said to him, "Come as far as Coed Carrn y Wylfa" (the Wood of the Heap of Stones of Watching in the parish of Burman). Then their two roads separated, and, though the merchants wished Ivan to go with them, he would not go with them, but went straight home to his wife.

And when his wife saw him she said: "Home in the nick of time. Here's a purse of gold that I've found. It has no name, but sure it belongs to the great lord yonder. I was just thinking what to do when you came."

Then Ivan thought of the third counsel, and he said, "Let us go and give it to the great lord."

So they went up to the castle, but the great lord was not in it; so they left the purse with the servant that minded the gate, and then they went home again and lived in quiet for a time.

But one day the great lord stopped at their house for a drink of water, and Ivan's wife said to him, "I hope your lordship found your lordship's purse quite safe, with all its money in it?"

"What purse is that you are talking about?" said the lord.

"Sure, it's your lordship's purse that I left at the castle," said Ivan.

"Come with me, and we will see into the matter," said the lord.

So Ivan and his wife went up to the castle, and there they pointed out the man to whom they had given the purse, and he had to give it up and was sent away from the castle. And the lord was so pleased with Ivan that he made him his servant in the stead of the thief.

"Honesty's the best policy," quoth Ivan as he skipped about in his new quarters. "How joyful I am!"

Then he thought of his old master's cake that he was to eat when he was most joyful, and when he broke it, lo and behold, inside it was his wages for the three years he had been with him!—St. Louis Post Dispatch.

Sarcasm.

"Beg your pardon, kind lady," began the polite beggar, "but I'm badly in need of money."

"I wonder if you deserve help," said the kind lady suspiciously. "If I was to give you a penny, what would you do with it?"

"Your generosity would overwhelm me, ma'am; I'd buy a postal card and write you a note of thanks."—Philadelphia Press.

HOW TO GAIN FLESH

Persons have been known to gain a pound a day by taking an ounce of Scott's emulsion. It is strange, but it often happens.

Somehow the ounce produces the pound; it seems to start the digestive machinery going properly, so that the patient is able to digest and absorb his ordinary food, which he could not do before, and that is the way the gain is made.

A certain amount of flesh is necessary for health; if you have not got it you can get it by taking Scott's Emulsion.

You will find it just as useful in summer as in winter, and if you are thriving upon it don't stop because the weather is warm.
