SAURDAY - JULY 6.

TRIBUTE TO PROFESSOR McELROY.

The following is an excerpt from a tribute to the late Prof. E. B. McElroy, paid by Prof. J. B. Horner recently before the Memorial Association at Corvallis:

"Near the home of Professor McElroy in the city of Eugene there is a neat church built on a stone foundation thickly studded with marks of pebbly white. Upon approaching the building, however, the stones prove to be ancient cimetaries filled with shells of animals which lived long ago upon the shore of some forgotten sea; and here and there you may observe the traces left by the waves, the tracks of the birds that walked along in the sand one day, and the print of the leaf that fell and lay there. Within a million years or more the shore hardened into rock, and the rock has held every trace throughout the subsequent centuries. In like manner will be preserved the work of Prof. McElroy, who has done so much for the promotion of Oregon public schools; for that which is taken into men's lives leaves its permanent impressions, more enduring than time, more precious than shell or leaf or templed stone. Therefore if the shell of an animal exist a thousand or a million years to adorn a temple for a man to worship in, how much longer will the man live for whom the shell was created.

"A drop of dew on the leaf in the early morning, mirrors and absorbs the whole sky above it whether it be blue and clear or whether it be covered with clouds; likewise thousands of children from generation to generation will mirror and absorb into their lives the influence of Prof. McElroy's school work in Oregon. And when the superstructure of the temple decays and the foundation crumbles and the shells have all been exposed to view and then have disappeared forever, and men forget even the edifice where once multitudes assembled for worship, the enduring work of the Oregon educator will live, and be more beautiful as it grows to assume grander proportions. And centuries hence when the schoolhouse and the chapel will have done their mission, scholars have made classic the story of Oregon, and literature has winged her flight to the western shores of America, teachers and students will make pilgrimages to yon little hill where a pathway will be worn across the green to the grave of him we love; and when the little oak which shelters this hallowed spot will have older grown, fallen and been forgotten, kind hands will gently smooth the ground and plant a vine by the grassy mound where we laid him. And there will be a quietude and pensiveness, a flower plucked a memento, and a prayer breathed by the last resting-place of him who contributed his best endeavor to the establishment of common schools; and men will return to their homes to resume their labors with renewed determination, to emulate the noble qualities found in their fellow beings. 'Tis true the flowers will bloom as beautiful and the birdsong be as gay, the men build and occupy, and the earth swing through space as safely as if in the hands of God, and the sun, moon and stars sustain their glory then as now, but the undimmed lamp of learning our benefactor lifted to the Oregon schoolhouse spire will shine with greater effulgence, illuminating the pathway of men, brightening their future and blessing their labors; and the world, ever changing, ever improving, ever growing heavenly, will be better for the life of this educator, patriot and gentleman, who gave the choicest within him for the betterment of mankind."

The Portland Telegram, republican, after recounting the numerous republican candidates for governor says this of one of the most popular democrats in Oregon: "But our friend Chamberlain is yet to be considered. He, like Furnish, was never beaten yet."

Trying to build up a business that will abide, and keep on abiding, without advertising, is very much like a married man trying to have his own way—just a sheer waste of nervous energy.

The Engineer

Learning from the cab window does more with his ears than his eyes. The rumble and scumle and roar of his engine are to him articulate speech, and a false note in that jumble of sounds would catch his ear as quickly as a discord would strike the ear of the leader of an orchestra.

He thinks more of his engine than himself. That is why he neglects to notice symptoms which are full of warning. The foul tongue, the bitter taste, sour risings, and undue fullness after eating are but symptoms of dyspepsia, or some form of disease involving the stomach and organs of digestion and nutrition. It purifies the blood and builds up the body with sound healthy flesh.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and organs of digestion and nutrition. It purifies the blood and builds up the body with sound healthy flesh. "I used ten bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and several boxes of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets a year ago this spring, and have had no trouble with indigestion since," writes Mr. W. T. Thompson, of Townsend, Broadwater Co., Montana. "I would tell how thankful I am for the cure, as I had suffered so much and was unable to work at all. Now I feel like a new man and can do my work as usual. I have recommended your medicine to several, and shall always have a good word to say for Dr. Pierce and his medicine."

DR. ROBERTS EXPLAINS.

Apparently Perfect Vision is Not Always a Proof That the Eye is Perfect.

The science of optics and refraction have developed and proven it a fact that a perfect eye never fails in its vision for distance. Even though a person may have perfect distant vision they may be compelling it through an imperfect eye. The eye being completely controlled by the brain, means a constant brain strain if the eye is in the least imperfect. The brain in turn draws upon the nervous system to regain the strength necessarily used to get perfect vision; therefore, the brain or nerves are generally affected before the vision, which only grows bad because of loss of power to compel perfect vision through an imperfect eye. Now, as a perfect eye never fails for distant vision, it is the refractometer's business to make it perfect with glasses, and then it should never fail. Why? Because it has been made perfect. If your glasses are not so good that they absolutely correct every error—and there may be several—you will still have trouble and be compelled to change your glasses time after time, and your eyes will be a constant source of annoyance and expense to you. This change and expense is absolutely unnecessary.

Dr. A. T. Roberts has fitted glasses for distant vision for the last 15 years, with the distinct understanding that if at any time in the future the vision could be the least improved, the change should be made without extra cost.

If you have headache, or suffer from nervousness, it is almost absolute proof that your eyes are imperfect. When failure to obtain relief by the use of ordinary remedies demonstrates the fact that the trouble does not lie in ordinary causes, call on Dr. Roberts and he will make a free examination and give you such an explanation of your eyes and their connection with the nervous system that you cannot help but see why the eyes may be the cause of your trouble.
