BURNT-UP IOWA.

A Subscriber Writes of the Terrible Conditions There.

WANTS TO COME AWAY.
FARMINGTON, Iowa, July 24.
EDITOR GUARD: I thought I would address you a few lines if they will be of importance to you in regard to old Iowa.
Everything is burnt up in this section. I don't see what people will do here. The principal crop here is corn, and it is all burned up, and they are shipping hundreds of head of stock out of the country daily on account of the lack of feed and water.
You mentioned in your paper the hot weather. Now I will give you some statistics of my own observation. There hasn't been a day for two weeks that the thermometer hasn't ranged from 100 to 115 degrees in the shade, and last Sunday, the 21st, was the hottest day on record—118 in the shade—and no prospect of it getting cooler at the present writing.
I don't see what people will do. Everything is burnt up all over the state. Since I have been here I have often thought that the people in Old Westport ought to feel grateful and thankful that they are where droughts are unknown.
I send you a few prices: Apples 40 cents per peck; potatoes $2.00 per bushel and scarce; bacon 15 cents per pound; beans 15 to 18 cents, very poor; eggs 7 cents per dozen; flour $1.00 to $1.25 per 50 lb sack; corn 40 cents per bushel and very scarce. Everything else in proportion is as high, and no business and work for the laboring class.
As this is my first letter to the GUARD, I will not take up any more of your valuable space, and will close, hoping that this will be the last summer I will have to spend here.
I am very thankful to you for the GUARD, which I read with pleasure. I send my respects to all my old friends.

A Sudden Death.

Flonore West, July 26.
Mr Gilmore, Sr, who was camping on the coast near Minnie postoffice, died suddenly at that place July 23. A letter from a resident of that vicinity gives an account of the circumstances about as follows:
It was thought Mr Gilmore had fainted, and Ira Bray was hastily summoned and came as fast as he could, being crippled, but it was soon found the old gentleman was dying. Mr Bray did all he could to keep life in the body, but death had claimed its victim and poor old Grandpa Gilmore will be no more on earth to cheer us on that rugged road.
The body was put on a wide board which was lashed to a pack saddle and taken to Waldport on a horse. The remains will be shipped to Denison, Texas, for burial. The start for Texas was made in about four hours after his death.
L C Gilmore, a son of the deceased, was out hunting at the time his father died and did not arrive at the camp until about two hours afterward.
L C Gilmore is the owner of the waterworks at Independence, Oregon. His wife and children will stay at camp while he accompanies the remains to the burial place.

TO TOP OF THREE SISTERS

Party of Eugene People Successfully Make the Ascent.

AN ACCIDENT.
Frank R Wetherbee, who has just returned from an outing at the upper McKenzie resorts told a reporter this morning of a successful ascent of the Three Sisters made by himself and a party of other young men on Thursday and Friday of last week. Besides Mr Wetherbee, the party consisted of Prof C A Burden, Ray and Paul Willoughby, Dr L D Smith, Maurice Scharzschild, Geo F Rothery and F E Taylor.
They started Thursday morning and arrived at the top at 8 o'clock Friday morning where they registered their names along with many others who have made the ascent in previous years, and shortly afterward started on the downward trip, which was made on good time. On the way down the mountain Maurice Scharzschild met with an accident which came near costing him his life. While the party was crossing a narrow ledge Maurice slipped and fell and rolled down a precipitous place for a distance of 200 feet or more and would have been crushed to death in some deep crevice had he not landed up against a projecting point of lava from which the snow had melted. No injuries aside from a few bruises, was the result.
This was the earliest trip made to the top of the Three Sisters by any one whose names are registered there. Mr Wetherbee says the snow was very deep and the party was unable to make the ascent by the route usually traveled but had to follow one where there was less snow. Sheep herders in the vicinity say that there is more snow on the mountain for this time of year than has been there for many years.
