TUESDAY - JULY 30

THE LAZIEST MAN.

A dispatch from Central Village, Conn., tells of the laziest man in the U. S.: Joseph A. Bingham, of Andover, was buried today. He enjoyed the unique reputation of being the laziest man in Connecticut. Bingham was fifty years old and never in the memory of any acquaintance had he done a stroke of work.

Born of well-to-do parents, he was supported by their wealth as long as they lived, then a legacy was left him in trust, which the selectmen doled out to him. He boarded at Andover Inn for years, until his money was gone, then the scene shifted to a little house provided by the selectmen.

Here it was charged that he was too lazy to cut the wood given him, too lazy to draw water from the near-by well, too lazy to tie up his shoes. It was too much work to put on a collar, and as for cooking a meal with material all given him—well, he would starve rather than do it.

For the first time in twenty-five years he looked into a mirror on Friday last. What he saw there was his own reflection. He walked out and deliberately stood in front of an approaching train. It ended his life easily.

No exertion on his part was needed, as there would have been if he had used a pistol, rope, or poison.

A WONDERFUL COUNTRY.

We clip the following readable editorial from today's Register, for the benefit of our many Republican readers, and also for the citizens generally. No comment is needed from our hands. Read and digest:

"There seems to be a general demand from all over the state that Lane county name next Governor. Senator Booth is being vigorously urged to allow his name to be used, but at this time he positively declines for business reasons. Senator Kuykendall, whose executive ability is recognized from one end of the state to the other is also being flooded with letters urging him to get into the race. Of course Lane county has some of the ablest, brainiest and clearest men, politically, in the state and if Oregon insists that the next governor shall come from the queen city of Willamette there should be a disappointment from this direction."

A prominent Philadelphia lawyer successfully worked a clever scheme on a gang of workmen employed by the city recently, which enabled him to win a suit for damages from the municipality. A client of the lawyer was driving along one of the principal streets when the wheel of his wagon struck a hole, causing him to fall and injure himself. After the case had been placed in the hands of the lawyer, on the day following the accident, he and a photographer visited the scene of the accident to make some photographs of the hole in the street to be used in court. He was surprised to find that the city had sent a gang of workmen to repair the cause of the accident. It was impossible for the photographer to make any pictures while the workmen were about, and after a few moments' thought the lawyer invited the entire gang of workmen to have a drink at a near-by saloon. Each of them accepted his invitation, and while they were gone the photographer got in his work. What the testimony of the witnesses in the case failed to show satisfactorily to the jury when the suit was tried was adequately proved by the photographs, and a verdict was rendered in favor of the lawyer's client.

No matter how dull business gets the editor must get out a paper just the same, even if he were to be too rash as to indulge in an outing, so while you are languishing in the shade taking your outing don't criticize him too harshly.

Some Exploded Food Fallacies.
Fish as a food of the brain worker must be consumed to the limit of varieties, though certain forms of fish are the cheapest of all foods, notably the blubber. Oysters and turtle soup are franks. It would take 14 oysters to equal the nourishment of one egg and 223 to provide the same amount of nutriment contained in a pound of beef.

Salt fish, especially salt fat fish, is the most valuable food for the poorer classes, and whole fishes in the south of Europe live on the Newfoundland cod. Canned salmon we see at 15 cents a pound is no more expensive than cod at sixpence. Millions of people live on it, and the North American settler who is not well provided with cash finds it a good substitute and change from fresh meat at times.

Frog's legs are not of high nutritive value, which need not surprise us. Turtle soup from the chemist's point of view is not worth a tenth of the price paid for it—Exchange.

Too Classic For Them.
A resident in a small suburban town had a visit from a German friend who knew little English, but played the violin well. One of the resident's neighbors gave a "vaudeville" and of course he and his visitor were invited. The German took his violin, and when his turn came he played one of his best pieces from one of the great masters. When he had finished, there was an awkward silence and no applause. The people were still looking expectantly at the German, who looked disappointed and flustered. The silence grew painful.

Finally the hostess, quite red in the face, stepped over to the side of the German's friend.
"Can't you get him to?" she whispered.
"What do you mean?"
"Why, now that he's got tuned up, isn't he going to play something?"—London Tip-Blitz.

His Late Hours.
"You never think of staying out late," said the convivial and ill bred person. "Sometimes I think of it," answered Mr. Meekton distantly.
"But you don't care for that sort of thing."
"Not in the least."
"Perhaps you never had any experience?"
"Oh, yes, I have. It was only last night that I was out at half past 2 a. m. Henrietta sent me out to see if I couldn't keep the back gate from slamming."—Washington Star.

A Telltale Door.
Nell—She used to boast that she was one of the charter members of the Woman's Suffrage club. She doesn't appear to be as proud of it now.
Belle—Oh, she's just as proud, but you know, the club was organized 15 years ago, and she must have been at least 20 when she joined.—Philadelphia Record.

Piecing.
That's a word which may not be in the dictionary in this sense of the use, but which is in very common use in some sections of the country. "Piecing" they say of the cupboard at the end of the hall, and of a piece of pie, cake, or some other dainty. This irregular eating is one of the chief causes of dyspepsia and "weak" stomachs.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury

As mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

Sold by druggists, price 75c per bottle.
