"WHISPERING GEORGE."

A Peculiar Character--His Mode of Living.

About the sudden death from heart trouble yesterday of George Roberts, known by men about town as "Whispering George," a short sketch concerning his peculiarities and mode of living would not be amiss.

Since coming to Eugene from Albany ten years ago, the man had no regular place of abode and it is not known that he ever paid anything out for lodging.

As to how Roberts derived the sobriquet "Whispering George," there are different stories. Some say that going along the streets he was often heard to be whispering to himself.

It was seldom ever that the man had more than a few nickels or dimes on his person and the money he did have was given him by saloon-keepers and others, through charity more than anything else.

It is said that the man had some money at one time, his father having owned a sawmill at Albany years ago. Bad luck or mismanagement caused the loss of the mill and all the property they had.

LOCOMOBILE FOR EUGENE

E. H. Ingham Purchased One in San Francisco.

E. H. Ingham, the proprietor of the well known Ax Billy department store, who is in San Francisco, has purchased a locomobile for $1000 and will bring it to Eugene with him next week.

A locomobile is an automobile propelled by steam, and will be a great novelty in Eugene, as a vast majority of our citizens have never seen one in action.
