THURSDAY - - APRIL 10

SAID "GOD IS GOOD," THEN DIED.

Dootor Thomas Dunn English died in Newark, New Jersey, April 2nd, aged eighty-two years. He left his own monument behind in the poem "Ben Bolt," one of the sweetest gems ever written in the Anglo-Saxon tongue. His last words were, "God is good! My wife! My boy."

BEN BOLT.

Don't you remember sweet Alice,
Ben Bolt—
Sweet Alice whose hair was so
brown,
Who wept with delight when you
gave her a smile,
And trembled with fear at your
frown?
In the old churchyard in the valley,
Ben Bolt,
In a corner obscure and alone,
They have flayed a slab of the
granite so gray,
And Alice lies under the stone.
Under the hickory-tree Ben Bolt,
Which stood at the foot of the hill,
Together we've lain in the noonday
shade,
And listened to Appleton's mill.
The mill-wheel has fallen to pieces,
Ben Bolt,
The rafters have tumbled in,
And quiet that crows round the
walls as you gaze
Has followed the olden din.
Do you mind the cabin of logs, Ben
Bolt,
At the edge of the pathless wood,
And the button-ball tree with its
motley limbs,
Which nigh by the doorstep stood?
The cabin to ruin has gone, Ben
Bolt;
The tree you would seek for in vain;
And where once the lords of the
forests waved,
Are grass and the golden grain.
And don't you remember the school,
Ben Bolt,
With the master so cruel and grim,
And the shaded nook in the running brook
Where the children went to swim?
Grass grows on the master's grave,
Ben Bolt,
The spring of the brook is dry,
And of all the boys who were
school-mates then
There are only you and I.
There is change in the things I
loved, Ben Bolt,
They have changed from the old
to the new;
But I feel in the depths of my spirit
the truth,
There never was change in you.
Twelvemonths twenty have passed,
Ben Bolt,
Since first we were friends; yet I
hall
Your presence a blessing, your
friendship a truth,
Ben Bolt of the salt-sea gale!

THE AFTERNOON PAPER LEADS THE MORNING.

The "Editor and Publisher," the leading publication in this country devoted to the newspaper business, devotes considerable space to discussing the question of the relative merits of the morning and evening newspapers. At the present time this authority asserts that the evening papers have the best of it, because they have the largest circulation, citing the Evening Journal and Evening World, of New York City as being the widest read of any newspapers in the world. This condition, says the "Editor and Publisher," is due to the fact that the evening paper contains fresher news and is issued at a time of day when the people have most time to read, especially in the family circle.

What is a sportsman? This question is pertinent through the announcement that W. A. Garvin, a British "sportsman," is in this country in search of American pugilists who will consent to go to England next June to take part in the coronation celebration. And what part may pugilists take in a coronation? The popular conception of a pugilist is that he knocks crows off, rather than puts them on.

King Leopold probably thinks that those Spanish Socialists who surrounded his automobile and called names are entirely too social, especially for people away from home.

FAITHLESSNESS MADE HIM VALUABLE.

Portland Telegram. A California woman has sued another for $50,000 damages for alienating her husband's affections. If her husband had been a man who was faithful and never did anything wrong, she probably wouldn't have valued him at over 30 cents.

Strikes a Rich Find.

"I was troubled for several years with chronic indigestion and nervous debility," writes F J Green, of Lancaster, N. H. "No remedy helped me until I began using Electric Bitters, which did me more good than all the medicine I ever used. They have also kept my wife in excellent health for years. She says Electric Bitters are just what she needs for female troubles; that they are a grand tonic and invigorator for weak, run down women. No other medicine can take its place in our family." Try them. Only 50c. Satisfaction guaranteed by W L DeLano.

Eighth Grade Public School Examination.

The uniform eighth grade examination will be held April 9th, 10th and 11th, 1902. Teachers desiring lists of questions please notify me at once.

Night Was Her Terror.

"I would cough nearly all night long," writes Mrs Chas Applegate, of Alexandria, Ind. "and could hardly get any sleep. I had consumption so bad that I walked a block I would cough frightfully and spit blood, but when all other medicines failed, three $1.00 bottles of Dr King's New Discovery wholly cured me and I gained 58 pounds." It's absolutely guaranteed to cure coughs, colds, la grippe, bronchitis and throat and lung troubles. Price 50c and $1.00. Trial bottles free at W L DeLano's drug store.

OLD FAMILIES OF VENICE.

Their Fortunes Are Dissipated and Their Palaces Sold.

Very few of the fine old palaces of Venice belong to the descendants of the families who built and originally occupied them. Very little of the enormous wealth for which Venice was celebrated in the fifteenth century remains. The most of it has been dissipated by the descendants of the men who made it, the same as in England, France and other countries. The rich men of Venice today are an entirely new class of people, whose names do not appear in the Golden Book, which contained a list of the patrician families in Venice who were invited to festivities at the palace. This book was instituted in 1315 and thenceforth until the Austrian occupation was the index and standard of nobility by which claims to precedence were decided.

Occasionally the grand council, by a vote, rewarded the gallantry or public services of some citizen of humble birth by directing that his name be inscribed upon its pages. None but those whose names were in the Golden Book could use the golden stairs when they entered a doge's palace, and when this right was conferred it was equivalent to an order of nobility in another country. There is one notable exception to the decay of the ancient families, and he is Count Grimani, who traces his lineage back to one of the most famous of the doges, whose portrait, painted by Titian, hangs in the council chamber of the doge's palace. The Grimani palace is on the Grand canal, near the Rialto bridge, and is celebrated for its finely sculptured capitals.

Many of the rich men in Venice today are Jews. They practically control the banking business and manufacturing. They own the fine houses of historical interest and the best paying estates on the mainland in the neighborhood. The present wealth of Venice is invested not so much in real estate as in banking, manufacturing, flour mills, elevators, gas companies, cotton mills, the manufacture of glass and in steamships upon the Adriatic.—Chicago Herald.

MARRIAGE IN ARABIA.

The Wedding Procession an Elaborate and Noisy Affair.

A marriage procession among the Arabs is a very elaborate affair. The camel which bears the bride is decorated with bright henna dye on his neck and shoulders, while there are verses from the Koran inscribed on the hangings. His uncouth legs are often swathed with bright cloths, his head bedecked with plumes and small mirrors, while his back is resplendent with bright colored bits of tinsel, which glisten against a patchwork of many hued cloths. A hood or cage conceals the bride, and no doubt adds to the discomfort of the cramped ride on the beast. There are attendants, and last of all the musicians, chiefly drummers, who attract the crowds by their incessant pounding on small but high keyed instruments.

If the journey to the groom's home is a short one, it is lengthened by stops at frequent intervals, and all the while the lover must not show any eagerness to welcome her, no matter what his feelings may be. The Arab may be affectionate, but he cannot with dignity betray emotion. Among the lower classes buffoons accompany the procession with performing bears or other wild animals, and when the bride is wealthy largess is distributed along the route in the form of clothes or coin. When the groom's tent or fixed home has been reached, the bride is expected to show great reluctance about entering it, and in some cases she has to be lifted by the husband over the blood of a sheep he has just slain.—Woman's Home Companion.
