A Chicago Tense.

A Chicago man who lives in Goethe street gets off the car at Schiller street, two blocks away, because no conductor can understand his pronunciation of Goethe. "I had practiced on the pronunciation for a week," he says, "and I had the sound of the 'unlaut' down dead. I sprung it on the conductor the first evening. He looked at me blankly and replied, 'Huh? I repeated it once or twice, and finally a great light broke over him. 'Oh, yes, you mean Goethe. Why didn't you say so?'"

The next evening the conductor called it Goethe. The third time up it was Goethe. Then there was a raw Irishman in charge of one of the trains who spoke of it as Goaty, with the accent on the last syllable. One morning I left an order for my wife at the grocer's. He looked at me in silence for a minute after I had given my address. "Oh, yes," he said, "you mean Goety. The butcher calls it Goety, the laundryman pronounces it Goaty, and the man who delivers coal alludes to it as Gothy street."

"I have a woman friend who prides herself on her culture who speaks feelingly of Gutter street. But the devoted thoroughfare doesn't really 'get it' in the neck until you hear the janitor talk. He calls it Gottle."

A Strange Target.
In "The Book of the Little" the Hon. T. F. Freeman tells the following amusing story apropos of accidents to marksmen:

"Sir Henry Halford on one occasion—it was not a very clear day—was about to begin shooting at 1,000 yards and, thinking that the marker must now be ready for him to begin, asked him through the telephone, 'Are you all right?' The marker replied, 'All right, sir, in a minute,' but, unluckily, Sir Henry took 'all right, sir,' instead of the whole sentence and removed the telephone from his ear. He lay down and fired his shot, and on looking through the telescope to see where it had hit was horrified to see the marker with a perfectly white face staggering toward his shelter. He was intensely alarmed, and in a moment there came a ring at the telephone. 'What has happened? Are you badly hurt?' 'No, sir, I am not hurt; but I had a bucket of whitewash between my legs painting the target, and you put a bullet into it and spoiled it all up in my face.'"

A Poverty Stricken Queen.

Partly owing to the fact that she was wedded to an avaricious king and partly because she was generous with the little money allowed her Elizabeth of York, queen of Henry VII., spent but a small amount for dress. She was very often in debt, and the sums she spent were ridiculously small, 20 shillings ($5) being the greatest amount expended at any one time. Her gowns were mended and turned, and new waists were made for them, as is shown by the record of bills paid to her tailor. These bills prove that she wore her clothes for a long time, for her gowns were obliged to be newly hemmed, and also that, though a princess of the great house of Plantagenet, she wore shoes costing but 24 cents, which were decorated with tin buckles!

East Indian Idols.

The images of the gods in India are not made by a separate caste, but the carpenters and masons respectively make the large wooden and stone idols set up in the temples, the potters the clay idols consumed in daily worship and the bronzers, coppermiths and goldsmiths the little images in brass, copper, mixed metal and gold and silver that are always kept in private homes. The East Indians regard an alloy of brass with five other metals—gold, silver, iron, tin and lead, making, with the copper and zinc of the brass, a mixture of light metals—as a perfect alloy, and this is highly prized as a material for sacred images.

Palmerston and His Muscles.

Lord Palmerston died at his post two days before he was eighty-one, his faculties undimmed and his physical strength little affected by his advanced age. A hidden witness recorded a touching anecdote: A fortnight before his death he saw the old statesman come out of his London house early one morning, look around to assure himself that he was alone, then climb over the area railing around the house and back again to test the strength of his muscles.—Lippincott's Magazine.

One Price.

Customer (after beating the price down from $3.50 to $2.25)—"What right have you to call this a 'one price store'?" Dealer—"Why not?" Customer—"Why, you ask all kinds of prices." Dealer—"But, my dear sir, the price of a thing is not what is asked, but what is accepted for it.—Philadelphia Press.

A Broken Neck.

"Did you hear about the catastrophe down at the Browns' last night?" "No. What happened?" "Why, Mrs. Brown gave the baby a bottle to play with, and while she was in the kitchen it fell out of the cradle and broke its neck."

"What, the baby?"

"No, the bottle."

Ingenuity in a Flat.

Alice—"What a lovely cozy corner, Maymie! Such a pretty couch!" Maymie—Isn't it? It's made out of five trunks and a hatbox, seven pillows, two bolsters and an old piano cover.—Detroit Free Press.

A Measure of Time.

The Pupils—it seemed to me I must have practiced all of two hours. The Professor—But I'm sure you did not. If you had practiced two hours, I would have scented like six.—Puck.

CASTORIA. The Kind You Have Always Bought

An Unusual Contribution.

A number of years ago Mr. and Mrs. Leland Stanford were traveling through the middle west incognito. They happened to be in Bloomington, Ind., one Sunday, and, pursuant to their usual custom, went to church. They attended the Christian church of Bloomington, then, in the hands of Amos A. Weaver. When the plate was passed for the collection, Mrs. Stanford dropped in a ten dollar goldpiece. Mr. A. Weaver was the deacon in charge of the collection taking. It was noticed that the tithers held a hurried conference with him when the money was taken forward.

At its conclusion Mr. A. Weaver said: "Ladies and gentlemen, there has evidently been a mistake. Some one has dropped a ten dollar goldpiece into the collection. If he will pass up after the services, we will be glad to allow him to exchange it for the amount he intended to give."

It is, of course, needless to say that Mrs. Stanford did not take advantage of the opportunity.

Superstitions About Babies.

The Manx people believe that it will dwarf or when a baby if any one steps over it or walks around it. In some parts of England people bind the infant's right hand, so that it may have riches when it grows up. In Yorkshire a newborn babe is placed in a maiden's arms before being touched by any one else in order to insure good luck.

In South America a book, a piece of money and a bottle of liquor are placed before the infant the day it is one year old to ascertain its bent in life.

In Scotland a baby is considered lucky if it handles its spoon with its left hand, and it will be perfectly happy and successful if it has a number of falls before its first birthday. In the north of England, when a child is taken from a house for the first time, it is given an egg, some salt and a small loaf of bread and occasionally a small piece of money to insure it against coming to want.

How Oriental People Wash.

"European tourists in the east," said a traveler, "have before now remarked on the various degrees of dirtiness manifested by the oriental races. But their dirtiness is not only to be differentiated in degree, but also in kind. Your only partially civilized man is clean in spots. Civilization must be measured by the size and number of the spots until, in the perfect civilization, I suppose, it will be all clean spot. But different races put the spots in different places; so, observing this, there has grown up a saying among the Europeans in the east that the Chinese wash their clothes, but not themselves; the Japanese wash themselves, but not their clothes; and the Koreans wash neither. Were there nothing else to judge by, it might be a pretty question whether the Chinese or the Japanese are the more civilized."

The Earth to Be Like the Moon.

The water of the earth is all destined to disappear from the surface of the globe by being absorbed by subterranean rocks, with which it will form chemical combinations. The heavenly spheres exhibit sufficiently striking examples of such an evolution. The planet Mars shows what will become of the earth in some thousands of centuries. Its seas are only shallow Mediterranean of less surface than the continents, and these do not appear to be very high, and in the appearance of the moon, all cracked and dried up, we have a view of the final state of the earth, for the absorption of the water by the solid nucleus will be followed by that of the atmosphere.

Wild Horses in Russia.

In the steppes of Russia, where wolves abound and the horses lead a wild life and have to shift for themselves, it is said that a young colt will sometimes be made so furious by the persecutions of his enemies that he will rush wildly among a drove of wolves and bite and strike until he has slaughtered a large number of them. These horses are exceptionally fierce, rendered so, it is supposed, by the extreme variations in the climate. At one time of the year they suffer from the intense heat of a tropical sun and at another they live among raging snowstorms and extreme cold.

Napoleon on Work.

Napoleon had his particular mode of meditation and work. When he was not in council, he stayed in his study, talked to himself and sung or, like a child, cut the arms of his chair, then, suddenly rising up, would give the plan of a monument to be erected or of one of the great military movements which astonished the world.

An Interesting Problem.

A celebrated explorer was the lion of the evening at a certain party. His hostess said to him, "What is the most interesting problem of a north pole expedition?" "To get back home," was the answer.—Woman's Home Companion.

Her Perpetual Cry.

Jimson—He married a saleslady, you know. Jameson—Yes. Jimson—Well, the very next day she began calling, "C-a-s-h!" and he says she has kept it up ever since.—Somerville (Mass.) Journal.

Not Thirsty.

Lady—Have you given the goldfish fresh water? New Servant—No, ma'am; they have not finished the water I gave them the other day.

Conscience in some people is that which tells them when their neighbors are doing wrong.

Night Was Her Terror.

"I would rough nearly all night long," writes Mrs. Chas. Applegate, of Alexandria, Ind., "and could hardly get any sleep. I had consumption so bad that I walked a block I would cough frightfully and spit blood, but when all other medicines failed, three 10-cent bottles of Dr. King's New Life Pills, every bottle cured me and I gained 25 pounds." It's absolutely guaranteed to cure coughs, colds, la grippe, bronchitis and throat and lung troubles. Price 50c and $1.00. Trial bottles free at W. L. DeLano's drug store.

She says Electric Bitters are just splendid for female troubles; that they are a grand tonic and invigorator for weak, run down women. No other medicine can take its place in our family." Try them. SAVES LIFE

Willard, Ill., August 1, 1906.
I was in bad health this spring and could not get up in bed for four weeks. When I was cured my child died. When I began to feel better I felt so weak and had such terrible pains in my back and hips, I had kidney trouble and falling of the womb. I also had hysterical spells. I was in a bad condition when I received your "Ladies' Friend Wine of Cardui" and read the advertisement of Wine of Cardui and Theodor's Black-Draught. Since April 28th I have taken four bottles of Wine of Cardui and Theodor's Black-Draught. I feel like a new person now. I can do all my work and can walk out to see any of my neighbors. I believe I would have been in the grave had it not been for Wine of Cardui. IT SAVED MY LIFE.
Mrs. ALICE DAVIS.

WINE OF CARDUI

It is well that women are more patient than men. Few men could bear the bitter pangs, the agony and distress that women endure. Thousands of women have come to us, suffering as a duty of their sex. But there are many instances of this heroic fortitude which now renders unnecessary. Women need no longer suffer for modesty's sake. Wine of Cardui brings relief to modest women in the privacy of their homes. Many of the best homes in this city are never without this great medicine. It cures whites and falling of the womb and completely eradicates these dragging periodical pains. Mrs. Davis' cure shows you conclusively what you may expect if you follow her example and take Wine of Cardui. Theodor's Black-Draught and Wine of Cardui by regulating the stomach and bowels. When you ask your druggist for these medicines, be sure you get them. It was Wine of Cardui and Theodor's Black-Draught that saved Mrs. Davis' life. Never take a substitute.

For advice and literature, address giving symptoms, "The Ladies' Advisory Department," The Chattanooga Medicine Company, Chattanooga, Tenn.

A Horrible Outbreak

"Of large sores on my little daughter's head developed into a case of scald head" writes C. D. Labill, of Morgan-ton, Tenn., but Bucklen's Arnica Salve completely cured her. It's a guaranteed cure for eczema, tetter, salt rheum, pimples, sores, ulcers and piles. Only 25 cents at W. L. DeLano's.
