AN OLD GARDEN.

The Joy It Gives Even Though the Plot Be a Small One.
Perhaps no word of six letters concentrate so much human satisfaction as the word "garden." Not accidentally indeed did the inspired writer make paradise a garden, and still today, when a man has found all the rest of the world vanity, he retires into his garden. When man needs just one word to express in rich and poignant symbol his sense of accumulated beauty and blessedness, his first thought is of a garden. The saint speaks of "the garden of God." "A garden inclosed is my sister, my spouse," cries the lover, or "There is a garden in her face!" he sings, and the soldier's stern dream is of a "garden of swords." The word "heaven" itself is hardly more universally expressive of human happiness than the word "garden."

And you have only to possess even quite a small garden to know why—a small old garden. So long as it is old it hardly matters how small it is, but old it must be, for a new garden is obviously not a garden at all. And most keenly to relish the joy which an old garden can give you should perhaps have been born in a city and dreamed all your life of some day owning a garden. No form of good fortune can, I am sure, give one a deeper thrill of happy ownership than that with which one thus city bred at last enters into possession of an old garden—Julius Noregard in March Harper's.

A Disastrous Dream.

This story is told by a man from Harlem: He dreamed one night that there was concealed about the flat in which he lived a quantity of silver. The next night he dreamed the same dream and told it to his wife. After a consultation they decided that there must be "something in it" and began to sound the walls for it. At one place in the dining room they came upon a space which sounded hollow. The wall there was of brick, but the husband got a pick, and the next night, with great stealthiness and care, they managed to make an opening, when they came upon an array of silver spoons and forks, cake baskets, teapots and other valuables. These they arranged upon the dining room table and were gloating over when there came a furious ring at the doorbell, and an irate man who lived in the next flat came in to know "why in thunder they had broken into his dining room cupboard."—New York Press.

A Friendly Tip.

During his term as congressman Major William A. Smith, ex-president of the North Carolina Central railroad, made a visit to New York and stopped at one of the American plan hotels. Upon sending himself at dinner he was obsequiously handed a bill of fare by the waiter. Tossing it aside, he passed the waiter a dollar, with the remark, "Bring me a good dinner."

The dinner proving satisfactory, the congressman pursued this practice during his entire stay. As the last tip was changing hands he mentioned that he was about to return to Washington. "Well, sir," said the waiter, "when you or any of your friends that can't read the bill of fare come to New York, just ask for Sam."—New York Times.

Stuttering and Stammering.

Stuttering and stammering are terms that are confounded. They are not synonymous by any means. Stammering is an inability to properly enunciate certain elementary speech words; stuttering is a vicious utterance, manifested by frequent repetitions of initial or other elementary sounds. Both are caused by improperly acting muscles of the vocal chords, soft palate, tongue, cheeks, lips, etc.

Some of these muscles are under easy control of the will. Over the muscles of the pharynx, the soft palate and at the base of the tongue, which move its root upward and downward, our power is not so complete, and this causes the affliction.

When Snow Is Smoke.

When Professor James Dewar inserted a small jet of flaming hydrogen into a vessel of liquid oxygen, the hydrogen continued to burn, giving off snow instead of smoke. The snow was formed by the instantaneous freezing of the water created by the combination of the burning hydrogen with the oxygen inclosing it. When he cooled liquid air until it became semisolid, he found he could draw the oxygen out of the mass with a magnet, leaving a jelly of pure nitrogen.

Touching.

"Are you a married man?" inquired the inquisitive stranger.
"No, sir," replied the other sadly.
"Oh," said the first, "I trust you will pardon me for referring to your bereavement. I should not have opened such a touching subject."
"Touching describes it beautifully," murmured the other. "It is hard to pay $15 a week alimony."—Ohio State Journal.

The Reason.

"Then, when you have finished your lecture," said the professor of elocution and deportment to young Dulle, "bow gracefully and leave the platform on tiptoe."
"Why on tiptoe?" queried Dulle.
"So as not to wake the audience," replied the professor.

A Child's Phrase.

He was only four and coalescent from the grip. Lending his little hand to his mother's arm, he said warily, "Oh, mamma, I feel like a broken toy."—Boston Herald.

A FAMOUS HIGHWAY.

The Cumberland Road, Which Was Projected by Henry Clay.
The most remarkable highway built in the United States early in the nineteenth century was the so-called Cumberland road, which was to extend from Cumberland, Md., through south-western Pennsylvania, over the Allegheny mountains to the Ohio at Wheeling, W. Va., and then on to St. Louis. It was so well constructed that it is a good road today. Henry Clay was its projector and chief supporter, and his services in its behalf are commemorated by a monument near Wheeling. We are told by letters written at that period that "there were sometimes twenty gayly painted four horse coaches each way daily. The cattle and sheep were never out of sight, and canvas covered wagons were drawn by six to twelve horses."

On this great road, which eventually passed into the hands of the states through which it runs, the government expended no less a sum than $7,000,000. Within a mile of it on either side the country was a wilderness, but on the highway itself the traffic was as dense as in the main street of a large town. Ten miles an hour was the usual speed for coaches. From Baltimore to Wheeling ran lines of freight wagons, which carried ten tons, drawn by twelve horses and with wheels ten feet in diameter.—Pearson's Magazine.

Curious Migrations.

In Norway and Sweden a curious migration takes place, the irregular migration of the lemming. There is no telling where this strange animal will begin its march southward through Norway and Sweden in search of food. The interval between one migration and the next is seldom less than seven years, or, as in one instance, more than seventeen years.

The lemming is a species of rodent and resembles in some ways our common water rat. Once started, these strange creatures press on in a straight line. There is no checking their march. If a wall or a house is in their way, they will try to climb it rather than go around it, and if they come to a stack of corn they will eat it and then go forward. The lemmings are good swimmers, and so they do not mind rivers and ponds, although they cannot keep afloat in rough water.

The migration comes to a fatal finish. Taking a direct course toward the southwest and southeast, the animals arrive after awhile at the seashore. Still they must press on, and the lemming migration ends for another seven years.

Too Familiar.

It was the 6 o'clock rush hour, and the Sixth avenue elevated station at One Hundred and Sixteenth street was packed with an impatient crowd trying to escape to their homes.

In the thick of it was a cloaked figure, apparently that of a plump little girl of eleven or twelve. She was having a hard struggle in the crush, and a big, good natured man behind her just put his hands on her shoulders to help her along.

"Sir!" piped a shrill but quite mature voice as she turned so violently that she created an eddy in the crowd and turned upon the big fellow a pair of snapping black eyes.

"Cesar's ghost! It's a woman!" he exclaimed as he made an opening for himself through the laughing throng and fled in pink faced dismay.—New York Mail and Express.

Shakespeare's Genius.

"An Old Baconian" asks—very foolishly—"Where is the trace of genius in the youth, manhood or old age of the man William Shakespeare?" And a correspondent of Public Opinion answers pertinently enough:

"The same question might be asked with much more reason and answered with much more certainty of the man Oliver Goldsmith. To all his acquaintances he seemed little better than a fool, and yet he was undoubtedly a genius. The proof of his genius is to be found—like Shakespeare's—is—in his works."

Diplomats Without Missions.

"Well," said a senator who had been engaged in a sharp tilt with a colleague, as he met a senate employee, "do you think that I made a fool of myself?"
"Senator," was the reply, "if I said that you made a fool of yourself I would be disrespectful; if I said you did not, I would be saying what is not true."

All the diplomacy is not in the state department.—Washington Post.

France's Red Ribbon.

So freely has the ribbon of the Legion of Honor been distributed in France that it is no longer considered such an overwhelming honor to be presented with it.

A pertinent story is told of a Parisian who suddenly disappeared. The police on being appealed to for aid asked how he might be identified. "Oh," was the answer, "that's easy. He doesn't wear the ribbon of the Legion of Honor."

None Missing.

"Dear me!" exclaimed Mrs. Droptin as she heard Mr. Spatter in the next room. "What dreadful language!"
"I hope you won't mind it," replied Mr. Spatter. "My husband is merely giving an imitation of a missing word—content without any words missing."—Columbus (O.) State Journal.

His Various Vocations.

One of the old time darkies on being asked how he was making out replied in this fashion:

"Well, wh, times is mighty tight wid me, but I manages ter make a livin' by doin' a little plowin', a little rovin' in a little baptizin'."—Atlanta Constitution.

City Property for Sale

HENDERICKS' ADDITION TO EUGENE.—To those desiring to purchase city lots, I have laid out an addition on the south side of the city and north of College Hill Park. I have 120 lots in this addition, and am selling them very low so as to enable every one to have a home of their own. The price of these lots is from $50 up.

ELIAS STEWART ADDITION TO EUGENE.—I have some very desirable lots in this addition, in the very heart of the city and within a few blocks of Willamette street.

WHITEAKER'S ADDITION TO EUGENE.—I have a few lots in this addition within two blocks of the First National Bank.

COLLEGE HILL PARK.—I have 100 lots in this addition. The price now is $50 each. We will advance the price soon. We expect College Hill Park to become the most desirable residence property in or near the city.

HENDERICKS' ADDITION TO COLLEGE HILL PARK.—We have 70 lots for sale cheap in this addition; also 40 or 50 acres of very choice fruit land. I have on this place 1300 young prune trees, about 400 Bartlett pear trees, and 200 black walnut trees, also apples, plums and small fruits. This place has a good farm house, barn and out-houses, and is a most beautiful suburban piece of property. It is known as the Louest Hill farm, and there is no place in the state more beautifully and pleasantly situated.

I am not in real estate business as a business—we sell our own lands only. I employ no agents. Any one desiring to purchase any of this property will find me at the First National Bank. I will be pleased to show property and give prices. I might exchange some of this property for good timber land. Come and see me.

MISS SARAH FINLEY,

Vice-President of the Palmetto Club, Memphis, Tenn.

WINE OF CARDUI is a thoroughly scientific and modern remedy, meeting the needs of the modern woman in the modern way—without the torture of an operation. Wine of Cardui has cured them in the privacy of their homes and it has found a place in the hearts of American women that no other medicine has found. In their gratitude over 10,000 American women have written letters commending Wine of Cardui. Wine of Cardui meets their wants as no other medicine does. It sustains the young girl at the shock of her entrance to womanhood. Women who take Wine of Cardui have little discomfort during pregnancy and little pain at childbirth. When the change of life appears they enter a happy, healthy old age. Every month it comes to the rescue to assist Nature in throwing the impurities from the body.

Miss Sarah Finley, of Memphis, Tenn., vice-president of the Palmetto Club of that city, speaks for herself and many friends when she bestows the following praise on Wine of Cardui:

"Among the numerous medicines placed before suffering women for their relief none can touch McEline's Wine of Cardui. It towers above them all as a reliable female remedy. It simply drives pain and disease away and restores health in an incredibly short period. I have taken great interest in this medicine for the past two years, since it brought health and strength to me. I have also recommended it to a number of my friends and they who have used it speak of it in the highest terms and I feel that it is praise well bestowed."

If you are suffering from female weakness Wine of Cardui is the medicine you need. You can have health the same as Miss Finley if you will take the Wine of Cardui treatment. If you need advice further than the complete directions given on the bottle, address The Ladies Advisory Department, Chattanooga Med. Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

WINE of CARDUI

A million suffering women have found relief in Wine of Cardui.
