WOULD BENEFIT OREGON.

If the Election Should Go Democratic.

Portland Journal.

Supposing this state should go Democratic and elect the entire Democratic ticket and send a Democrat to the United States senate. What disaster would come to the state? The state of Washington elected a Populist governor a few years ago and also sent a Democrat to the senate. Yet, the state remains on the map. It has also outstripped Oregon in population, so that at the present time it has three congressmen while Oregon has only two.

Again, Oregon has always voted the Republican ticket. The Republican administration has been, for the past few years, spending about $50,000,000 per annum for war and other supplies for the Philippines; how much of that $50,000,000 has been expended in Oregon? Why is it not spent here? The answer is simple. It is not necessary. The state is "solid" for the Republicans and the administration spends the money in California and Washington, where it will do the most good.

California was Democratic also about the same time Washington was. If this state should also go Democratic and the administration should think it advisable in order to get this state into line to spend $10,000,000 per annum here, what of it? From a purely Republican standpoint, would this be an irretrievable disaster?

KUYKENDALL'S RECORD.

Senator Inman Says He Voted Against the Chinese and Japanese Exclusion Memorial.

HIS INDIAN WAR VOTE.

Senator Kuykendall occupies the most of Sunday morning's Register trying to excuse his action in the last legislature, regarding the Chinese and Japanese Exclusion Memorial. His explanation is evasive and he tries to dodge the exact question at issue. The facts are these: Senator Kuykendall, upon January 24th, 1901, made a motion to strike out (page 137 Senate Journal, 1901.) parts of the Memorial to Congress asking for the re-enactment of the Exclusion Laws, including the part excluding the Japanese. His motion to strike out, was defeated, and the Memorial passed, BUT SENATOR KUYKENDALL VOTED AGAINST THE PASSAGE OF THE ENTIRE MEMORIAL.

In the final vote, Senator Inman, of Portland, who introduced the Memorial, neglected to call for the ayes and noes, but we have taken the precaution to have in our possession a certificate from Senator Inman, stating that Senator Kuykendall voted against the Memorial upon its final passage.

SENATOR INMAN'S STATEMENT.

PORTLAND, Oregon, May 5, 1902.

TO ALL WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

In regard to the action of Senator Kuykendall upon the Memorial asking for the exclusion of Chinese and Japanese from the United States, will say that upon the 24th of January, 1901, in the Senate of Oregon, he voted against the Memorial. I neglected to call for the ayes and noes, but remember distinctly that he voted against the Memorial.

Very truly
ROBERT D. INMAN,
Senator from Multnomah County.

The defense published in the Register is that Senator Kuykendall favored the memorial as proposed to be amended. But the memorial was never amended, and was never an issue before the senate in the way as amended and published in the Register. Hence the amended memorial in legal phraseology would be called immaterial, irrelevant and frivolous, and the senator's defense is based upon something never before the senate for discussion. But if such an amendment had been passed and if the memorial as published in the Register had been discussed, the report of the proceedings as given in the Oregonian would indicate that Senator Kuykendall would have opposed the passing of the same.

The Weekly Oregonian of that date, using the exact words, says: "In discussion of the memorial, Senator Kuykendall provoked a spirited debate by moving to strike out the sections, extending the act to Japanese and other Mongolians, on the plea that the Japanese were progressive and civilized. He further declared that he was personally opposed to all exclusion laws and believed that the United States could compete with the entire world."

The Daily Oregonian of January 25, 1902, in words used, says: "Kuykendall denied that his motion was for political purposes, and said that he was opposed to exclusion laws on general principles. He believed the intelligence and skill of American labor will enable it to compete successfully with the whole world and that exclusion laws are unnecessary." The quotations are exact and can be seen at our office. In other words he moved to strike out the Japanese clause because he did not believe that he could succeed in defeating the entire memorial, but was personally opposed to all exclusion laws and voted in accordance with his conviction, when it came to the final vote upon the memorial.

He voted against the memorial. The senator is more mindful of public opinion upon the eve of an election than he was during the last legislature, and that he is trying to squirm around his record is further proved by the following clipping from last week's Oregon State Journal:

TO LANE COUNTY INDIAN WAR VETERANS.

A circular letter has been sent to each of the Lane County Indian War Veterans asking them to vote for the reelection of Senator Kuykendall.

The letter tries to excuse his action in moving to indefinitely postpone the bill in the last legislature asking for $30,000 for the Indian War Veterans by stating that he did so because the amount asked for was not large enough.

If the reason was bonafide why did he not move to amend by making the amount larger instead of killing the bill.

We print the following letter from T H Watts of Salem, which explains it all.

"To the Indian War Veterans and their friends of Lane County Oregon:

"I see there has been quite a lot of stuff in print as to what ex-soldier Kuykendall should have said in regard to the old Indian War Veterans when he was in the last Oregon senate."

"I was in the lobby at the time he spoke, and heard with shame and indignation (and I don't believe there is a citizen of the county that is honored by being named after that great old man, Gen Lane, but would have felt as I did) to have heard Mr Kuykendall say, that these old men (they were young men then) that went to the front did not deserve any compensation; they were not patriots, they only went to the front to save their wives and families from the tomahawk or bow and arrow of personal interest."

"I don't dwell entirely upon that point and scored the old men (who nine-tenths of them now lie in their graves) most unmercifully."

"Please think of it, honorable citizens of Lane County."

"If Mr K denies my statement of the above facts, tell him, as I am nearly eighty years old, it would be easy for him to come down to Salem and make the writer retract."

"My place of business is No 194 State street, Salem, Oregon."

"From Your Comrade,
T. H. WATTS."

"Who served one year in the Indian War of 1855-6."

"Salem, Oregon, April 26th, 1902."
