HIS FOOT CUT OFF.

A Tramp Fell Under the Train Last Night.

The night men at the S P depot received word by wire from Oakland that about 12:40 o'clock this morning, shortly after the northbound overland train which arrives here at 3 a m had passed Oakland, the night agent there found a tramp on the platform of the depot in great agony. Upon inquiry and investigation it was found that one of his feet was completely severed from the leg.

It is supposed that the tramp had been riding on the brakebeam or was attempting to get on when he fell underneath the wheels. He dragged himself to the platform, and the night agent took him into the waiting room of the depot, bound up his leg as well as possible and sent for a physician.

NO TRACE OF RAY.

The officers have no trace of Bert Ray, the man thought by everyone to have murdered Benton Tracey at Junction Monday night.

Ray had been at Junction only a few days and no one knew where he came from or anything about him. For that reason it will be a hard matter to trace him. Descriptions of him vary widely. For instance, his weight is guessed at all the way from 135 to 180 pounds, hence it will be a hard proposition to find him by sending out a description.

Sheriff Withers left this afternoon for points north in search of the man, being morally certain, for various reasons, that he did not come south.

It is hoped by all that the culprit may be caught and given his just dues.

LATER.—Since the above was in type it is learned that Ray spent a few days in Eugene about two weeks ago. He made his headquarters at a certain saloon and is known to quite a few here.

RUYKENDALL'S "CHARACTER."

Written By The Guard's Campaign Poet.

When the word came back from Aceme, Sent by wireless telegraphy, That the campaign guns were booming, All K's friends began to laugh. But when they heard how Travis Had demolished curly K They were seized with consternation, And they laughed the other way. For he hammered him at Florence, At Elmira gave him fits, At Walkon and at Junction Smashed him into little bits. Without a shred of character To wrap him from the breeze He left poor K to shiver 'Till exposure made him sneeze. Then resolved the corporation With a sympathetic throb, "We'll patch him up a character, 'So he can hold his job." In all the town was not a man Who had sufficient art To pick those tags and tatters up And fit them part to part. So the agitated organ Wrote to Scott and Bean to say, Would they lend a hand to reconstruct A character for K? They telegraphed to Washington, To Mitchell, staunch and true; Oh! Would he help them in their need? And Binger Herman, too. Then swift the wires flashed back, Expect Material by mail To patch that tattered character We can't afford to fail. And Ruykendall is wearing it, While chill May breezes blow. He fondly tries to fancy that The patches do not show.

When this road is opened teams can travel down the road from Yaquina nearly to the California boundary.

LAST NIGHT'S PLAY.—Another full house greeted Mr Lowe's company at the Parker last night when "Kathleen Mavourneen" was the bill.
