FRIDAY - - JUNE 20

HEROIC AND THOUGHTFUL.

Not only heroic but coolly calculated and carried out was the act of James McKenzie, an Eastern Washington man, in shooting off part of his own hand. He had lain down to drink from a spring in the Tukanon, Columbia county, district, when a rattlesnake drove its fangs into his hand. McKenzie saw death staring him in the face as his hand began to swell rapidly. His knife was too dull to cut out the injured part of his hand, and there were no caustics near. In desperation the ranchman finally drew his big revolver and literally shot away a portion of his hand. The shot made a terrible wound, but the poisoned blood gushed forth and McKenzie's life was saved. It was 48 hours later before the plucky ranchman reached Dayton to have his wound dressed.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT AS AN EQUESTRIAN.

No man in Washington who is fond of horseback riding is more considerate of his mount than is President Roosevelt of Bleistein, the magnificent thoroughbred which carries him through the outskirts of the city almost every day. Washington's asphalt is especially hard on horses' feet, and the president, realizing this, seldom urges Bleistein to a pace faster than a walk until the dirt roads are reached. Then the pace is frequently such a merry one that the sergeant of artillery, who habitually rides fifteen paces behind the president, has to touch his horse with the spur in order to keep up. The result of this careful treatment is that President Roosevelt has never lost a day's ride because Bleistein has been lame or out of condition, a record which few gentlemen can boast who are in the habit of cantering their mounts on city streets and avenues.

French troops killed fourteen hundred natives down in South Africa the other day—murdered them to speak correctly. And why? Well, the Frenchmen are in the scramble for territorial expansion, and if the natives object they just kill them. It is the worst kind of murder, for the occupants of the land are as helpless before the terrible fire of the deadly rifle as the babe in the hands of its nurses. "Darkest Africa?" Such acts make it dark, indeed!

There is a movement on foot to rehabilitate trotting races in public favor by changing the heat system in vogue to a single dash. The long waits between heats and the opportunities to fix the race or heats, and with them the pool box, have about ruined trotting contests in public estimation.

That outlaw chase just across the Columbia river over in Washington is a good deal like the confidence man's "shell" game. "Now you see the shell, and now you don't; where is it?" Now they think they know right where the convict is, and now they don't; where are they?

A pioneer Columbia river steamboat man has named his newly arrived daughter Telephone, after the racer steamer of that name of several years ago. There is only one objection. When she grows up the boys may claim the right to speak into her ear—to telephone to her.

Governor Geer has done the right thing in pardoning the convict Frank Ingram, who lost a leg in saving the life of a guard in the recent Oregon penitentiary escape. More should be done for the man. It is not charity to turn him out partially helpless at least.

India's cup of sorrow may not yet be full. Weather forecasts predict a scarcity of rain and warn the government to prepare for famine conditions.

A DOUBTFUL COMPLIMENT.

"I suppose," said the effusive lady who was visiting the Meek-ton, "that your wife is sure that she has the best husband that ever lived?"

"Yes," answered Meekton, with something like a sigh; "but at the same time I don't believe she thinks that is saying much for me."
