Two Men and A "Widow"

By WILSON PARKS

Copyright, 1921, by the S. S. McClure Company

It was a struggle between Anson Davis and Caleb Jones as to who should win the love and the hand of Mary Doyle. There was rivalry, but no ill feeling. When Caleb won the prize, Anson slapped him on the back and said: "All right, Caleb. You are the lucky man. I don't believe I was ready to marry just yet anyhow. I'll wait two or three years and then marry your widow."

"That's mighty kind of you," answered Caleb. "I have heart trouble and may not live a year, and the thought that you'll take my place will make me die content."

Six months after the marriage Caleb Jones went down to the city on business. He had never been drunk in his life, but he got drunk to celebrate this occasion. While in a befuddled state he was carried aboard of a ship bound for the east, and when his sober senses returned he was on blue water. Meanwhile, as he did not return to his village home, an alarm was raised, and for the space of three weeks Caleb figured in the public press and police reports as "mysteriously missing." Then a body was found in the river, identified as his and shipped home for burial.

Soon after the funeral Anson Davis called on the widow and said: "Mary, I don't know whether Caleb ever told you about it or not, but there was an understanding between us that in case he died I was to step into his shoes."

"I believe he did mention something of the kind," replied the widow.

"That was kind of him and saves any further explanation. I guess you thought almost as much of me as you did of him, but he happened to save your life from a cow one day while I was out of town. Poor Caleb! He shall miss him and mourn for him, but at the end of the year we'll be married."

That settled it. The days and weeks and months went by, and the widow put off her weeds and Anson bought his wedding suit. The marriage day was set, the friends were invited and

HE HAD RECOVERED FROM HIS STREZ AND RETURNED FROM CHINA.

The mischievous Greyhound puppy. Greyhound puppies have the reputation of being the most mischievous of the mischievous brotherhood of puppies. They inherit this to some extent, for a large percentage of greyhounds when grown up are inveterate thieves and chicken killers not from any particular vice, but because "it is their nature," and they have not the moral sense which other dogs possess.

The writer recently remarked when stopping in a country inn that one of the greyhounds which were allowed the run of the house had stolen the butter from the breakfast table. "Ah," was the reply, "I reckon he's most live on that."

It is considered specially good for young greyhounds to be "boarded out" or "walked" when there is danger of overbreeding at home; but, as a high authority puts it, "the list of their delinquencies, including murdered cats, fowls, ducks, torn clothes and home-steads laid waste and devastated," may be made up for by a win at Altair in compensation for the puppies' misdeeds.—London Spectator.

An Old Superstition. A curious example of superstition was made public the other day through the medium of the law courts of Berlin. A tree growing opposite the gateway of a farmer was noticed to be withering away and dying. On further investigation it was found that a deep hole had been bored in it, probably by some person who wished to kill it. As the tree somewhat incommoded the entrance to the farmer's house, he was charged with the deed and fined. He, however, appealed to a higher court and succeeded in proving that the hole had been bored by some superstitious person who believed in the old superstition that if illness attacks a household it can be driven away by "burying" it in a healthy tree. A hole is bored in the tree, and all kinds of medicines are buried in the hole, which is then carefully stopped up amid the singing of weird incantations. This could have been done by any superstitious person in the neighborhood, the farmer pointed out. The judge acquitted him.

The One Thing He Wanted. One day soon after Aguilado's capture and arrival at Manila General MacArthur decided to go to see him and find if he was being rightly treated. At the close of the visit the general asked Aguilado if there was anything he would like to have, whether papers, magazines, clothes, cigars or other articles. He said that there was nothing at all that he wanted.

Just as the general was about to close the door Aguilado's face suddenly brightened, and the look in his eyes showed that he was trying to remember some name.

"What is it?" asked General MacArthur.

"There is just one thing in the world I want," said Aguilado, "if you can only get it for me. I have had it but once in my life, and that was at Baguio. They said it was an American thing and that all Americans had it. It is—ice cream!" he said with great enthusiasm.

Saved From Awful Fate. "Everybody said I had consumption," writes Mrs. A. M. Shields, of Chambersburg, Pa. "I was so low after six months of severe sickness caused by hay fever and asthma that I thought I could get well, but I learned of the marvelous merit of Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption, used it and was completely cured." For desperate throat and lung diseases it is the safest cure in the world and is infallible for cough, colds and bronchial affections. Guaranteed bottles 50c and $1. Trial bottles free at W. L. DeLoach.
