Residents of East Portland are urging the removal of the Standard Oil Company's tanks from the city, proper to some place where they would be no danger from them in case of fire. The recent $400,000 blaze on the east side came so near embracing the immense tanks of oil in its grasp that the people in the nearby vicinity were given such a scare as to warrant them unwilling to take any more chances on their presence.

A story of bravery and presence of mind comes from Portland where, yesterday morning, 13-year-old Michael Cohn saved his mother and four little brothers from being cremated alive at a fire which destroyed the family residence. Young "Mike" as he is called by his associates, dived into the parlor, which was filled with smoke and flames and dragged out his unconscious mother, and then returned and carried out each of his four little brothers in turn.

REMOVED TO SALEM.

Remains of the Late Rev. H. K. Hines Taken From Portland

"The remains of the late Rev H K Hines, D D, and that of his deceased wife were removed recently from the Lone Fir cemetery, Portland, to the Lee Mission cemetery, Salem, and interred in the Dimond Square where so many of the early missionaries are buried. A year ago last Decoration Day Dr Hines visited the graves of his heroic associates, and he talked of the people who are buried there and of the duty of our church to erect a fitting memorial. It ought to be done. In the Dimond Square there should be a monument to the men and women who brought Christianity to this Western shore."

The above item we clip from the Pacific Christian Advocate, Portland, a Methodist publication. The Lee Mission cemetery of Salem belongs to that denomination and in it repose the remains of many who were prominent in Oregon's early history. Among them are Jason Lee, Cyrus Shepard, P L Edwards, J H Wilbur, "Father" Waller, Gustavus Hines and Bishop Erasmus O Haven.

PROSPEROUS BLUE RIVER.—A correspondent writing the GUARD from the Blue River mining district says: "Everything has a very prosperous look about camp. Several small parties are doing excellent development work on the east slope of Gold Hill and all with splendid possibilities. Blue River has a big future, better than the Bohemia. The district is extending in circumference all the time."

P.O. HOURS TOMORROW.—Postmaster H F McCornack informs the GUARD that the postoffice will be open tomorrow from 8 to 4 o'clock p m. The carriers will not deliver tomorrow at all. Those who are served by carriers can get their mail by calling at the carriers' window between the above named hours.

RESOLUTIONS.

Upon the Death of J. A. Burlingame.

Headquarters J W Geary Post, No 7, Department of Oregon G A R.

Whereas, the Supreme Commander of the universe has in his infinite wisdom, seen fit to remove from our midst our late comrade, J A Burlingame, and Whereas, Comrade Burlingame was a faithful and conscientious member of J W Geary Post No 7, and ever ready to advance its interests, therefore be it

Resolved, by this Post that in the death of Comrade Burlingame, this Post loses a true and faithful member, and the family a kind and affectionate husband and father. That feeling the loss which we as a Post have sustained we are prepared to and do, unqualifiedly sympathize with his bereaved family.

Resolved, that while we deplore the loss of our late comrade, we bow submissively to the will of the Supreme Commander, realizing that our loss in him is a gain.

Resolved, that these resolutions be spread at large upon the records of the Post and a copy thereof be transmitted to the family of our late comrade.

Resolved, that the charter of this Post be draped in mourning for the space of 30 days.

R A BARTLETT,

Adjutant.

KATE KELLEY,
KATHERINE PATTERSON.

SOLD OUT.—W D Hampton, who recently bought out J A Gordon's drug and transfer business, has sold out to J R Brown, recently from Nebraska. Mr Brown is the father-in-law of Henry Schweninger, the popular Ninth street tonsorialist.

Point of Law.

An English writer gives a good example of those quibbles in legal practice that have a sort of fascination for certain minds. Some years ago, while traveling on the continent, he met the principal lawyer for the government of one of the principalities, who told him of a curious legal question. It had reference to a railway station at the boundary between two principalities.

Some one standing outside the window of the ticket office had put his hand through and robbed the till inside. The boundary line lay between where the thief stood and the till, so that he was actually in one territory while the crime was committed in the other.

Here was a nice nut for the gentlemen learned in the law to crack. Which of the principalities should undertake the prosecution of the culprit?

At it they went in good earnest, and the arguments on either side were long and vehement till the whole case was embalmied in many volumes. At last one side yielded so far as to say:

"We will permit you, as an act of courtesy, to prosecute, while at the same time reserving all our sovereign rights."

At this point of the recital the Englishman asked, "And how did the prosecution end?"

"Ah, that is quite another matter!" said his friend. "There was no prosecution; we were only arranging what we should do when we caught the robber, but we never caught him."

Too Effective.

The German proprietor of a sawmill in a Minnesota town used for fuel the refuse from the lumber. The fuel cost nothing, but it took four men to provide it, because the machinery was old fashioned.

An agent for mill machinery persuaded the German to put in new equipment which would reduce the amount of fuel one-half. It looked like a good proposition, says the Duluth News-Tribune, and the agent, sure of success, called on the German after the machinery had been installed, expecting to be congratulated. But the German gave him a gloomy stare.

"What's the matter? Doesn't the machinery do all I claimed for it?" asked the agent.

"Yes, but it overtook somethings," "What was that?"

"Well, it takes only two men to handle the fuel, but it takes five to add two men to haul away what we didn't use before and a team besides."

THE SOCIAL REALM.

After the regular business meeting of the Rebekahs last night, at which time the new officers for the ensuing term were installed, the members repaired to the banquet room where a feast of good things was enjoyed.

WEATHER FOR THE FOURTH.

Mr Beals Says it Will Be Partly Cloudy and Warmer.

This rain if it keeps up will spoil many a Fourth of July celebration in Oregon. The barometer, however, shows indications of the weather being better tomorrow, and Mr Beals, the Portland weather forecaster, says that it will be "partly cloudy and warmer," as a glance at our daily illustrated weather forecast at the top of the first column of the last page will show.

THE RAIN.

It Benefits Hops, Potatoes and Grain—Hay Damaged.

The cold rain which began Tuesday has thoroughly soaked the ground, which was parched and baked. The general opinion among farmers is that more benefit than harm will result. There is some hay and this is being damaged, but the spring grain now has a chance of making a fair crop, while hops, potatoes and all kinds of vegetables are greatly benefitted.

No Daily Guard Tomorrow.

Following the usual custom of country dailies no GUARD will be issued from this office on the Fourth of July, tomorrow.

PUBLISHERS.

Virulent Cancer Cured.

Startling proof of a wonderful advance in medicine is given by druggist G W Roberts of Elizabeth, W Va. An old man there had long suffered with what good doctors pronounced incurable cancer. They believed his case hopeless till he used Electric Bitters and applied Bucklen's Arnica Salve, which treatment completely cured him. When Electric Bitters are used to expel bilious, kidney and microbe poisons at the same time this salve exerts its matchless healing power, blood diseases, skin eruptions, ulcers and sores vanish. Bitters 50c, Salve 25c at W L DeLano's.
