A TELLING SHOT

By ANNE ALLEN
Copyright, 1907, by the S. S. McClure Company

"I don't see what you want a gun for," said Tom crossly. Tom was cleaning his golf sticks, and it always makes him cross. Margaret lay in the hammock and watched him.

"I don't see what you want a gun for," he repeated.

"To shoot with," she explained. "You're getting very sporty," he remarked, scowling at his midriff.

any pigeons. She had shot a few clam shells before, but she knew this would be harder because the shells are still, while the pigeons sail about in the air. The gun was a little beauty, light enough for her to lift easily and firm against her shoulder. Rastus got down behind his shelter. He raised his black head above the boards.

"Better shoot while day's high up, Miss Margaret," he suggested and ducked again.

"Ready!" she called in a loud, firm voice. The disklike object rose from behind the shelter and sailed away into the air. She followed its course with her finger on the trigger, but some way she did not seem to find the right time to fire, and the pigeon floated unshattered to the ground.

Rastus' head popped up again.

"Nothing's the matter," she said. "It went rather fast, that is all." Rastus' grin as he disappeared was annoying, and she called "Ready!" for the second time, determined to shoot without fail and also to give Rastus only 50 cents instead of a dollar. Up rose the second disk, and she followed its upward course to where it began to descend.

Just then she saw two people coming along the shore—Tom and Mabel. Here was her chance to show them what she could do. Down came the pigeon faster and faster. She pulled the trigger, stepped back, her ankle turned, and down she went in a most ungraceful heap.

The report of her gun, the twinge of her ankle and her fall all seemed to come at once, and she thought, "I've shot myself," and then tried to laugh as she realized the gun did not shoot out of that end. Then everything turned black and she felt no more pain.

The next thing she heard was Tom talking in a strange voice and in a most peculiar way.

"My darling," he was saying, "my own little girl." She thought he was speaking to Mabel. She had suspected—

Some way the pain in her ankle and the thought of losing Tom—men never are the same good friends to you after they are married; wives seem to make a difference—all brought a big bunch to her throat. Then she felt Tom's face close to hers, and his voice sounded more natural.

"Oh, Margaret!" he said. "Look at me. Open your eyes, sweetheart." And she opened her eyes to find that he had been talking to her all the time. Womanlike, she did not let him know she had heard anything, but murmured, "Where is my gun?"

Tom said, "Confound the gun!" and Mabel seemed annoyed about something too.

Rastus and Margaret were the only cheerful ones. Rastus said, "You done hit de pigeon, Miss Margaret," in a comforting tone.

Tom was still on his knees beside Margaret. The latter exclaimed, "My ankle pains me quite a bit, but if you will help me up, Tommy, I think I can hobble back to the inn." So Tom raised her gently, and she smiled sweetly at Mabel over his nice broad shoulder. Then she gave a little moan.

"Let me carry you, Margaret," Tom said. Mabel bit her lip.

"I'm afraid I am dreadfully heavy," Margaret murmured, "but it does hurt so." Then, as Tom lifted her in his arms, she said, "Oh, Mabel, dear, if you don't mind—I will be ever so much obliged—will you carry my gun?"

An Artificial Pearl.

A ball of beeswax introduced into the shell of a living fresh water mussel has resulted in producing the most remarkable artificial pearl in existence. It is about an inch and a half in length, oval in form and pink in color and is now the property of the Smithsonian Institution. The ball of wax was placed near the hinge of the bivalve, which, being kept in a tank of fresh water, was carefully watched. The irritation of the wax caused the mollusk to protect itself by coating the foreign object with a smooth coating of pearl stuff—the same material as that which is used in lining the inner surface of its shell.

In the case in question the result was an enormous pearl. Owing to pressure, however, the wax ball lost its spherical shape and became oval in form. At the end of two years the mussel was taken out of the tank and opened and the pearl removed. The wax afterward contracted, owing to dryness, which caused the pearl shell to crack. This accident, while destroying the commercial value of the pearl, made it possible to observe the thickness of the nacreous covering, which is somewhat greater than that of an ordinary sheet of letter paper. If the pearl were not flawed, it would be worth an enormous sum of money, but even as it is it is priceless as a curiosity.—Washington Star.

Her Lovely Lettuce Dish.

"I want," she said hesitatingly as she poised her basket in front of her pretty chin with a thoughtful air, "to get some lettuce."

"Yes'm," said the marketman. "Here's some. Very nice it is too."

"Is it all that color?"

"Why—er—yes'm. All lettuce is green, you know."

"Oh, of course! But it's too bad! I got a lovely blue dish to put lettuce in, but I'm sure there would be something in it. I never thought about there not being any shades, you know."

And as she turned away the marketman was almost sure he saw a tear of disappointment in her eye.

The Anchor.

"Captain," remarked the nuisance on shipboard who always asks foolish questions, "what is the object in throwing the anchor overboard?"

"Young man," replied the old salt, "do you understand the theory of seismic disturbances? Well, we throw the anchor overboard to keep the ocean from slipping away in the fog. See?"—Baltimore News.

Saved From Awful Fate.

"Everybody said I had consumption," writes Mrs. A. M. Shields, of Chambersburg, Pa. "I was so low after six months of severe sickness caused by fever and asthma that I thought I could get well, but I learned of the marvelous merit of Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption, and it did me completely cured." For desperate throat and lung diseases it is the safest cure in the world and is infallible for cough, colds and bronchial affections. Guaranteed bottles 50c and trial bottles free at W. L. City Property for Sale

HENDERSON'S ADDITION TO EUGENE.—To those desiring to purchase city lots, I have laid out an addition on the south side of the city and north of College Hill Park. I have 120 lots in this addition, and am selling them very low so as to enable every one to have a home of their own. The price of these lots is from $50 up.

ELIAS STEWART ADDITION TO EUGENE.—I have some very desirable lots in this addition, in the very heart of the city and within a few blocks of Willamette street.

WHITEKIRK'S ADDITION TO EUGENE.—I have a few lots in this addition within two blocks of the First National Bank.

COLLIER HILL PARK.—I have 100 lots in this addition. The price now is $50 each. We will advance the price soon. We expect College Hill Park to become the most desirable residence property in or near the city.

LENDRECK'S ADDITION TO COLLEGE HILL PARK.—We have 70 lots for sale cheap in this addition; also 40 or more of very choice fruit land. I have on this place 1300 young prune trees, about 400 Bartlett pear trees, and 200 black walnut trees, also apples, plums and small fruits. This place has a good farm house, barn and out-houses, and is a most beautiful suburban piece of property. It is known as the Lendreck Hill farm, and there is no place in the state more beautifully and pleasantly situated.

I am not in real estate business as a business—we sell our own lands only. I employ no agents. Any one desiring to purchase any of this property will find me at the First National Bank. I will be pleased to show property and give prices. I might exchange some of this property for good timber land. Come and see me.

City and Nearby Country Property for Sale.

I offer for sale at a low price 120 acres of land 2 1/2 miles southwest of Eugene; about 45 acres of same cleared; plenty of water. Also 41 acres 2 miles west of Eugene, and 5 acres close to the corporate limits on the west. Also 16 acres of nice bottom land 3 1/2 miles north of Eugene on river road.

I also offer for sale some desirable building lots at residence, Pearl and Sixth streets. Anyone desiring such property will do well to see me.

DAVID CHERRY,
Eugene, Oregon.

New Addition to Eugene.
