TUESDAY - JANUARY 14

Factories are closed all over the East, with thousands of people thrown out of employment, through lack of coal.

The terror of the bubonic plague, which has reached Mexican ports, is intensified through convalescent victims being seized with the plague a second time.

Lane County is honored in the selection of a native son to the second highest position in the state government, that of Speaker of the House. Mr. Harris will fill the place well and impartially.

State Printer Whitney has appointed his late opponent, E. J. Godfrey, foreman of the state printing office. The latter is the responsible man, with ordinary wages, while Mr. Whitney will draw down his thousands.

Can it be that Governor Geer is a candidate not only for senator but the place in the lower house of congress made vacant by the death of Mr. Tongue, as reported in the Portland Telegram? We cannot believe that our Governor is such a miscellaneous candidate.

It is reported that President Castro of Venezuela "persuaded" foreign merchants at La Guayra to contribute the five thousand dollars necessary to pay Minister Bowen's expenses to and at Washington while acting as intermediary for the South American dictator. What is the use of having power if you don't use it?

That controller of the Delaware & Hudson Railroad is an unsophisticated individual. Asked on the witness stand as to the price his company received for coal he said five dollars a ton. And he did not know anything about the dealers selling it for ten dollars a ton, except through newspaper reports. Of course he did not tell all he knew. Men do not sell a ten-dollar staple article for five dollars.

While the big daily press of the United States holds a somewhat irreverent opinion of the Commoner, Mr. Bryan has no reason to complain of its success in the pecuniary sense, if rumor can be depended upon. The paper is now reputed to be one of the most desirable newspaper properties in the West. According to a prominent Chicago politician who was one of Mr. Bryan's lieutenants during the last campaign, more than $750,000 has been received for subscriptions since the Commoner was established two years ago, and the same authority avers that none of this money has been used for expenses, as the advertising revenue has exceeded cost of production by $125,000.

A correspondent questions the quotation in yesterday's GUARD as to a man who has been robbed not being loser, so he does not find it out, application being made to the tariff that fosters trusts and combinations, always at the cost of the consumer. The sentiment of the quotation fits the tariff exactly. If people realized what the tariff was costing them in particular instances they would smash it instantly. That they may be doing well does not excuse the robbery that is perpetrated under protective tariff laws enacted through the direct influence of the beneficiaries. However, as to the full quotation it is from Othello: "He that is robbed, not wanting what is stolen; Let him not know it he's not robbed at all."

Remarkable Cruise Of the Forgetmenot

A few weeks ago there sailed into St. John's, N. F., the Forgetmenot, a little Yarmouth trawler of only forty-six tons register. Considering her size, she may be said to have made one of the most remarkable voyages on record. She had traversed over 3,200 miles, and it was over a year and a half since she left her English port.

The vessel sailed from Yarmouth north the north of Scotland and then away to Cape Farewell, in Greenland. In fifty days she arrived at her station, and the crew commenced to shoot and trade. About the end of September they were thinking of packing up and voyaging off southward, as their plan had been, when down upon them came the great ice pack from the north, blocking the entrance to Probiar strait by a wall fifty feet high and hemming them in for the ten months of arctic winter. Fortunately for them a local tribe of Eskimos came to know them and proved stout companions, sharing in the hunting and the dangers endured therein.

Walrus hunting is exciting enough as a sport, for there is a great element of danger attached to it, especially when the animals have young ones with them or when they are hunted in boats or kayaks. On one occasion an In-ated bull tore a strake clean out of one of the boats with a single stroke of his tusks, but fortunately no one was hurt.

Many minor accidents and casualties occurred on the various hunting trips, but on Sept. 4 of this year came the worst of all, for two Eskimos were shot dead by one of their companions.

The boat was manned by natives who were after seals. One stood in the bow with his rifle. A seal came up, and Onecko aimed at it, but the seal dived, and he lowered his weapon. In doing which the charge went off, the bullet going through the heads of both men who were pulling the oars, killing them instantly.

The bodies were brought ashore amid the loud lamentations of the entire tribe and in the afternoon buried in native fashion. Tonnichilling's body was taken to an island, laid on a rock and then covered, coffinless, with large stones.

Poor Calegevan, a youth of seventeen, had made himself beloved by all at the station, both whites and natives, so out of the only odd pieces of wood we had we made him some kind of a coffin. His friends took him to a hill to the northwest and buried him above ground by piling rocks on the coffin.

On Sept. 5 the hooping of a steam whistle was heard. A boat's crew was gathered and the entering steamer boarded. She proved to be the Windward, Captain Bartlett, with no less a person than Captain Peary, the arctic explorer, aboard. From him they heard for the first time that the Boer war was finished.

Next day the Windward took the Forgetmenot in tow and kept her so for nearly the whole day, but at 4:30 p. m. parted from them, promising to send a cable to their friends on arrival at a port.

During all these long months the little Forgetmenot had been given up as lost, and Lloyd's was only waiting for the claim to be preferred to pay the amount of the insurance when the telegram from Peary proved her existence. She had 1,500 miles to sail when she parted from the Windward, and it took her three weeks to make port.

The foolish fears of men. The sight of a gun or pistol, even if known to be really unloaded, will frighten some people almost beyond the verge of sanity. Any position of height exerts a similar effect over others. A harmless, impotent, creeping worm or garter snake will do the same for other temperaments. To demonstrate the foolishness and lack of reason of and for such fears is quite unavailing. Even if the one terror is by some means removed or lessened another is immediately substituted and dreaded in its place.

Two Slightly Building Lots for Sale. The two corner lots on the left hand where the old street railway began to go up College Hill are offered for sale. They have a gentle slope to the street corner and towards the town, with an elevation of probably twenty feet above the level of the business part thereof. This slope is protected by a fairly respectable one extending over several blocks. These lots were the first purchase when Mr. Atherton laid out College Hill into a city addition. When you see them you will say we did not fail to select the choicest property. If you are thinking of buying and building, a few minutes' walk will take you to this property. No need to inquire of owner as to location. It lies just across the street from the end of the 'lengthwise' plank walk when you come to College Hill, in the angle of the first two residence properties. Turn squarely to the right at the plank walk and you cannot miss it. A good substantial sidewalk direct to the lots. No city taxes. Street in front of property is city corporation line. J. R. CAMPBELL.
