SATURDAY — — JUNE 13

Alexander's and Draga's Death.

A dispatch to the Berlin National Zeitung from Semlin under date of June 11, agrees with other reports that the bodies of the king and queen were thrown from their bedroom into the park. King Alexander was shot through the neck at the first fire, and the rush of blood suffocated him. Queen Draga received several shots, and after she was dead the regicides slashed her body with their swords and thrust it through and through.

The rugs in the royal chamber were soaked with blood which flowed over the floors. The window hangings were torn down and trampled under foot, the windows broken and the objects of art shattered in wanton destruction. The murderers afterwards embraced and congratulated one another on the success of the plot, and announced joyfully to those below that the king and queen had been disposed of.

With all the reigning dynasty killed off, Servia is bound to get a new deal.

Count Casini took leave of the President yesterday. And thousands of disappointed people are taking leave of casino every day.

Assassinations do not deter those of royal blood accepting or contending for thrones left vacant by the bomb, knife or pistol. The next king does not have the least idea that it will be his fate.

The Mississippi has fallen a few inches at St. Louis, but there is still more than thirty-seven feet of water crowding the levees on three sides of East St. Louis. And with all this the people are suffering from thirst, for drinking water.

It certainly was no satisfaction for Alexander and Draga to play king and queen in Servia. Why, a number of efforts had been made to insure their lives but no life insurance company was willing to take the risk of just what has happened.

The Missouri River flood brings the fact to mind again that Kansas City is in Missouri, at least the main part, the part in Kansas being little more than a suburb. Originally the town was founded for Kansas but the Missouri side of the river proving the more desirable, the great bulk of the city and business grew up there.

The Karageorgevich's having killed nearly all the members of the Obrenovitch claimants to the Servian throne, together with their most prominent adherents, seem to have a complete cinch of affairs. Some places the common people would take a hand in affairs, but over there they don't do things that way.

Most men want to keep out of jail. Carl Steinman of Portland, however, asked to be locked up. He wanted to get away from people who, he said, were following him and making his life miserable. And he pointed at a big dog he could not get away from. The police saw no people, nor dog either. All in his mind of course.

New England is praying for rain to put out the forest fires. But the moisture fell over the country reached by the headwaters of the Missouri river, and while Topeka, Kansas City and the low bottom lands are flooded New England is burning up with forest fires. There is great inequality of distribution in this world. Drouth and flood, famine and plenty, poverty and great wealth are but a few of the most striking examples.

In cities built on rivers it is almost invariably the part across the river from the main city that gets hurt in floods. Why? For the reason that a stream almost always has a companion low bank for a high one, a river "bottom." Locally we see it at Eugene and Springfield, and going down the Willamette the same condition obtains at Harrisburg, Albany, Salem, and Portland. In big cities land is so valuable that people take the chances and build on the low banks. Then with great floods come big loss of life and property. People know the danger but such things happen so seldom they take the chances.

In years gone by when any Indian tribe needed particularly prompt punishment General McCook was the man to settle the business. And after he subdued them they stayed subdued. He marched his forces with equal celerity as the Indians, fought them in their own way, from brush and rock, every soldier for himself in a fight. And he showed true humanity by showing them no mercy—he wanted no prisoners. It was the Indian way and he made them fear him as the devil. The old general is dead at Washington at seventy-two.

THE VERDICT.

"What was the coroner's verdict?" asked the stranger of the man who was returning from a lynching party.

"Suicide."

"Suicide!"

"Yes. He deliberately courted destruction. He let hisself get caught cheatin' in a poker game."

Springfield Notes.

(From the News, June 12.)

There is, approximately, 310 children in the Springfield school district who are of school age. This is a gain of about 60 over last year.

Recorder Roberts tendered his resignation to the town council Monday evening, and L. E. Thompson was unanimously elected to fill the vacancy.

The surveyors left behind to finish the plans for the Springfield-Henderson connection will leave tomorrow for San Francisco. The plans have been completed and turned in to the company.

Fin Roberts, who has been employed in the postoffice, left yesterday for Marcola, where he has accepted a position in the Hyland lumber yard. Mr. Roberts is a good accountant and will make a valuable employe for that company. He will move his family there shortly.

It is reported that a large number of poles, for the electric light plant at this place, will be taken out of the river near the old mill, shortly, by the Booth-Kelly Company.

The engine that has been used in Mr. Walker's shop, was sold last week to the Hyland lumber company of Marcola. It was taken to the foundry at Eugene where it will be converted into a locomotive to be used to haul cars from the mill to the yards, a distance of about 2 miles.

E. C. Martin, foreman of the planing mill, had his foot badly crushed by getting it entangled under one of the planers. He had stopped the machine to adjust something about it and while thus engaged the feeder mistook a signal to start. The injury is a painful one and it will be some time before he can again use the foot.
