

"Soon after I began to take Wine of Cardui I could see that I was beginning to get back my strength."

That is the comment Mrs. Seymour makes.

If you are sick you can take Wine of Cardui and secure health and strength. If other medicines and other treatment have failed, that will make no difference. Few women have taken Wine of Cardui at first. By far the greater number of Wine of Cardui cures are women who could not be helped elsewhere. All druggists sell $1.00 bottles of Wine of Cardui.

WINE OF CARDUI

No. 48 Straight St., GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.

I am pleased to endorse Wine of Cardui as I found it so beneficial to my strength after my baby was born. I could not seem to get well up to be up and able to do my work, and as I had been in bed for six weeks this was rather serious, but soon after I began to use Wine of Cardui I see that I was beginning to get back my strength. In another week I was able to sit up most of the day and in a month I was able to be up and about of my work. I think it is a good medicine for a woman and certainly give it highest praise.

THE FIRST FOURTH IN THE PHILIPPINES

"On the Fourth of July, 1898," writes a soldier who was with General Otis in Manila on that day, "the main part of the American troops were away in the interior of the Philippines, strung out on long lines in front of an active enemy. All our outposts were close to the native camps. Not only the men on post and in actual touch with the enemy, but the reserves as well, were under strict orders to be ready at a minute's notice to meet an attack. Fourth or no Fourth. These orders were obeyed. By the way, up in San Fernando General Young's men were treated to a Fourth of July salute from across the lines. The Filipinos opened a fusillade about sundown and out-classed all the firecracker bands of Manila in getting up a celebration racket. However, all over the islands, even in the isolated districts covered by our troops in the Visayas—that is, in Cebu, Negros and Panay, where the garrisons were but handfuls in comparison to the natives under arms or prepared for war—the holiday was formally observed.

"When the day was officially ushered in by the bugle notes of the army reveille the regimental bands along the miles and miles of camps, a perfect girdle across Luzon and the Visayas, played 'The Star Spangled Banner.' At noon, when the guns of the Sixth artillery thundered the national salute on the Luneta at Manila and the warships in the harbor and along the coast echoed in response, the field batteries of the army all over Luzon swelled the salvo; so, too, in Negros and Panay and in the robber infested mountains of Cebu. And to make the soldiers on routine duty feel that they were Columbus's children as well as her bodyguard every man had an extra good dinner, served with the best delicacies of the camp and the available markets afforded.

"The Escolta, which might be called the Broadway of Manila, although it is a very narrow street in point of fact, was alive with bunting. Every flag that had a mission in the Philippines was in evidence along the Escolta—Old Glory here, there and everywhere, the union jack ditto, then the red, white and black standard of the German fatherland, alternating with and peacefully caressing the tricolor of La Belle France; Spain's flag was in the display and waved as proudly as ever. There were flags, too, of the yellows and flags of the blacks—all flags but Aguinardo's. But if Aguinardo's standard was missed by any one on the Escolta that day the disappointed individual didn't let his neighbor know it.

"The Luneta was the scene of the real show. The Luneta of Manila is a crescent shaped plaza overlooking the beach. There the bands play for the populace, and there all the parades and public demonstrations are held. It was crowded like a country fair ground on prize day.

"On the Luneta were held the formal exercises, without which no Fourth of July celebration is complete. School-boys in holiday attire gathered around the band stand made the most picturesque feature of the scene. There was a swarm of them in clothes of variegated hues—Filipinos and Japs and Chinese, trained to sing patriotic songs in English.

"At first the school children were timid, like average American children unused to appearing in public. They began with 'America,' then struggled through 'Hall Columbia' and 'The Red, White and Blue.' The band played popular airs between the songs. Finally, when the enthusiasm was verging on the bursting point, the little ones gave their masterpiece, 'The Star Spangled Banner.' Some of the impromptu choruses at home would have been put to the blush by that performance on the Luneta. The soldiers cheered as only soldiers can when 10,000 of them let their lungs loose; flags waved all over the plaza, and even old ocean became patriotic and lashed the beach with great waves like some monster eagle flapping his wings in a frenzy of delight. This was the climax. After that Uncle Sam's celebration dominated Manila. The transplanted holiday was a 'go'."
