 Weather prediction for tonight and Wednesday, fair.
 The Springfield baseball boys will give a masquerade ball there Thanksgiving night.
 G. W. Taylor's crew of men left this morning to construct a small county bridge near Elmira.
 The W. C. T. U. will meet with Mrs. Wheeler, 215 East Eleventh street, tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

 The Guard has received the Okanogan Record, of Concoquilly, Wash., the paper being edited by E. J. Moore, formerly of Eugene.
 Mrs. H. Selfridge, who was stricken with apoplexy yesterday, remains about the same as at first and her death is expected at any time.
 Oscar Taylor, a bricklayer of Salem, has returned home. The report that he had charge of the work on the new library is an error, as the contractors state they are competent in that line themselves.
 J. F. Woods, formerly editor of the Springfield News, is now associated with Wm. V. Smith in the publication of the Flint, Mich., Daily News, a splendid looking seven-column, six-page paper. These two gentlemen recently purchased the Daily News plant and business.
 Some one entered the J. H. McClung residence at East Tenth and High streets, early Monday morning and helped himself to eatables, but nothing of value was taken. The man was heard by Dr. and Mrs. Chas. Friedel, who occupy the house, but they thought it was Mr. McClung moving about in the kitchen.
