Note and Comment

Because she stepped too high or carelessly kicked her dress about, Mme. Sanadi Hansen, a musical celebrity of Eugene, has created a sensation. The society women at whose reception this occurred were looking low when they should have been looking high and saw bare flesh, no stockings. What business of theirs or anybody else if Mme. Sanadi prefers to go stockingless. Still, under such conditions she should be careful of exposures. "In Rome do as Rome does," you know.

A New York dispatch says the quality of the liquor sold there is not only bad, but that a million dollars a day passes over the bars for the stuff. The surprising statement is made that this is more than the city spends for bread and vegetables, and is about equal to its meat bill.

The New York American gives astonishing figures as to the cost in dollars and lives of maintaining racetracks in the vicinity of New York. During the 182 days of racing just closed they took from the public $7,700,800, according to sworn statements required by the law. And what else? The police and criminal court records show that the racetrack was responsible for the downfall of 6205, nearly all young men, by tempting them to rob employers, forge, embezzle, any way to get means with which to satisfy the racing, gambling passion. Too bad that the noblest animal of God's creation should be made the means of man's downfall.

With knowledge of a Canadian bank draft forged at Portland in which the forger went free through a technicality, banks are liable to hesitate about accepting Canada bank drafts without telegraphic advice as to their authenticity. There was no way to prove the forgery except by an officer of the bank, and as there is no process by which the witness could be forced to come and very naturally the bank declined to send a man on the long trip where it was not involved, there was nothing to be done but release the guilty man.

The Dallas Chronicle shows a marked improvement. It has added Scripps press service and now gives the world's latest telegraphic news. Like all evening papers, the Chronicle takes Scripps service in preference to the Associated Press.
