boundary of said claims 62 and 63, to the place of beginning, containing about 160 acres, the same more or less, all in Lane county, Oregon.

To all whom it may concern: Take notice that on the 15th day of January, A. D. 1902, an application was filed by said Annie M. Douglas in the circuit court of Lane county for initial registration of the title to the land above described. Now unless you appear on or before the 17th day of February, A. D. 1902, and show cause why such application shall not be granted, the same will be taken as confessed and a decree will be entered according to the prayer of the application and you will be forever barred from disputing the same.

OLD BANBURY TOWN

IT HAS SEEN MANY STIRRING EVENTS IN ENGLISH HISTORY.

One celebrated since its discovery.
More Famous For Its Rhymes and Its Cakes Than For Its Part in the Annals of State.

Would you not think, if you found the following lines:

ES ROUTE CO CAED IR!
Search engine arch melange with regard to the above rhyme
regard to the above rhyme
regard to the above rhyme
regard to the above rhyme that you had discovered some quaint old rhyme or a verse in some language so ancient that it would take an antiquarian to decipher it?

That was exactly what an enthusiastic band of archaeologists did think one time, so the story goes, when they found this inscription cut in the corner stone of a very old building in Ban-bury, England. These gentlemen were on the lookout for just such quaint old bits, and you can imagine how excited they were over this when they discovered it.

"This is certainly prehistoric Welsh," said they and took it straightway to the president of the archaeological society to which they belonged. He rubbed his hands softly and smiled. "This discovery is something quite worth while," he said. And all these wise gentlemen felt very virtuous as they crinkled their brows and wondered what story or what great secret the ancient words would unfold.

But they puzzled in vain. They could not read it, so then they telegraphed to a widely known professor of dead languages, asking him to translate it for them.

Very soon the return message arrived, and all clustered around the president to hear the telegram.

"Read backward," it suggested, "and when it is deciphered it will be found to be a well known rhyme."

So it is, as you see for yourselves, and these wise gentlemen found that a line had been played upon them.
You all know how it goes:

Ride a cockhorse to Banbury Cross To see a fine lady upon a gray horse; Rings on her fingers and bells on her toes, She shall have music wherever she goes.

Banbury is best known the English speaking world over by this nursery rhyme, although, as a matter of fact, this famous little town is in the heart of a country that has seen many stirring times in English history. It is in Oxfordshire, seventy-seven miles from London.

One of the first conflicts known to have taken place there was that in 550 between Cymric, king of the West Saxons, and the Britons. Later, during the wars of the roses (1442-44), it was besieged, and again in 1644 and 1646, during the struggle between the parliamentary troops and the royal armies. It was here that the leaders of Cromwell's forces discussed and perfected many of their plans, and it was here that some of the fiercest conflicts were waged.

Battlefields are shown in many places near by, and every village for miles around can display something of historical interest either in Roman relics or mementos of the civil wars.
The hundreds of dramatic or tragic stories that are told by the people would fill many volumes.

Mother Goose has, however, been quite as valuable as history in keeping green the name of Banbury, and to a student of the immortal nursery rhymes it is interesting to observe how many of them are founded on fact, record quaint customs or mention real places or people, even though not absolutely accurate historically.

The procession of the fine lady of the rings and bells mentioned in the rhyme takes place each year in Ban-bury with considerable ceremony. The lady is usually mounted on a white horse, however.

The present cross, which stands at the top of High street, in a wide open space at the junction of four crossroads, is an ornate affair, with a steeple point, erected in 1859 near the site of the old Banbury cross. It commemorates the marriage of the late Emperor Frederick III. of Germany to the princess royal of England on Jan. 25, 1858, and is decorated with the arms of Banbury, those of the German emperor, of Queen Victoria and of several other sovereigns, earls, knights, bishops and vicars.

One more thing makes Banbury famous, and that is its cakes, which are known throughout the kingdom. They are said to have been introduced in 1608. Banbury cakes are undeniably delicious tidbits of pastry. They must be eaten when quite fresh, preferably at Banbury town itself. They are like extremely rich turnovers, filled with a mince of fruits, which melts delectably down one's throat and causes a pronounced sensation of desire for more.
There is a rivalry in the bakeshops as to which is the really true, original one. Who knows? Perhaps the cakes are, after all, the real Queen of Hearts' tarts!—Millicent Olmsted in St. Nicholas.

White Sands.

The sands at Blackpool, in Lancashire, are said to be the whitest in the British Isles. From Penzance to the Land's End, on the coast of Cornwall, the sand on the seashore is very white, while in St. Mary's, one of the Scilly Islands, the sand on the shore is exceedingly white and glistening. On the other hand, the sand about Plymouth is bluish gray in color, probably owing to the shells of mussels broken and mixed with it, and on the coasts of the North sea the sand of the seashore is yellowish brown or reddish. The sand on the coast of Argyllshire, in Scotland, is remarkable for its whiteness.—London

SUMMONS.

In the Circuit Court of the state of Oregon for the county of Lane.

Quincy A. Christy, Plaintiff, vs.
Lara L. Christy, Defendant.

To Lara L. Christy, the above-named defendant:

In the name of the state of Oregon:
You are hereby required to appear and answer the plaintiff's complaint filed against you in the above entitled suit on or before six weeks from the date of the first publication of this summons, which date of first publication is January the 10th, 1902, and you are hereby notified that if you fail to so appear and answer the said complaint within the time aforesaid, the plaintiff will apply to said court for the relief prayed for in said complaint, to-wit: For a decree of divorce declaring the marriage contract now existing between plaintiff and defendant forever dissolved and held for naught and for full relief herein.

This summons is published for six consecutive weeks in the Daily Eugene Guard by order of the Hon. L.
T. Harris, judge of the above entitled court, which order is dated January 15th, 1902, and directs said summons to be published one each week for a period of six consecutive weeks.

L. BILLYEU,
Attorney for Plaintiff.

Stop at the Courthouse Lodging House when in Eugene over night.

25 Cent Beds.

Nice, clean beds. Every room on the outside. No noise from street or sidewalk travel. Well lighted roomy, comfortable office with safe but handy baggage room. On same block and just back of courthouse.

BEN BLAIR

THIS is a picture of the young ranchman who came out of the West—like another Lochinvar —after the girl he loved.

He looks as if nothing could stop him—which is the quality that we like best in the hero of a story, after all.

"Ben Blair" is making a tremendous stir. Five editions—thirty thousand copies—have been printed.

Nothing more vigorous, fresh, and exciting, or more Western has been published in years. Ask your bookseller if this is not so.
