AN INDEPENDENT PAPER.

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 1

The first of last week the Rock Creek Indians some 300 strong a few miles from Arlington in Kitchikan county, state of Washington, closed their big pot wew and feast, which occurs each year. There were present Indians from the Umatilla, Yakima and Warm Springs reservations. The festivities had been running since January 1. The days were spent in gambling, horse racing and betting. The nights were spent in all kinds of dancing, such as war dances, spirit dances, skull dances, etc. Every few days a large bullock would be killed and roasted. The Indians are loverate gamblers, and it is stated that one young buck from Umatilla went home with five new squaws—all won with the cards. The women were not asked about their change of masters, either. And they made no question about it—the new owner taking them along more unconcernedly than he did the ponies that also fell into his possession.

That is bad procedure the prosecuting attorney at Portland dismissing penitentiary charges of malfeasance in office and obtaining money under false pretenses against the former city engineer, W. C. Elliott, on his promise to testify against members of a former city council. Self protection is the first law of nature, and a man in danger of his liberty should not be allowed immunity on such conditions except he is a minor offender. A city chief engineer has pretty full control of his department, and should not be permitted to make Adam's contemptible plea of being tempted by the other.

The way China is taking our flour is shown by the Asiatic liner Argonia steaming out of Portland harbor Tuesday with nearly six thousand tons of freight, four-fifths flour. And she had to leave five hundred tons on the wharf for the following steamer, due to arrive Saturday with a full cargo of Chinese goods. Nearly all the flour goes to Hongkong.

The Portland police commission has issued an order warning all members of the police force that they must not accept drinks or cigars from saloon proprietors. Breaths unflavored with the Kentucky or Gambrian product are too conspicuous in the department and it is thought they will not be so much in evidence should their owners have to pay for the flavoring extract.
