"Hollering" Don't Count

A resident of the swamps of Arkansas once wrote to a caterer in St. Louis and asked him if he could sell him frog legs, saying that they were a very toothsome diet—more so than those which came from any other section of the country.

The caterer answered that he could use the frog legs, if properly dressed and shipped on ice, and wanted to know how many he could furnish.

The Arkansas man replied that he could, in all, probably furnish one thousand dozen, and solicited an early reply.

The St. Louis man in return said to ship fifty dozen at once.

A week elapsed and the express company delivered three dozen frogs in St. Louis. The United States mail brought a letter from the frog farmer, as follows:

Dear Sir:—I ship by express today three dozen frogs, all I could secure. I was disappointed in the crop. I had supposed by the "hollering" they did that a million could be secured.

Very respectfully,
JOHN JENKINS JONES.

Which goes to prove that those who make the most noise do not always prove out when it comes to the final test.

Note and Comment

"The president and Mrs. Roosevelt request the pleasure of your company at the marriage of their daughter, Alice Lee, to Mr. Nicholas Longworth on Saturday, February 17, 1906, at 12 o'clock." The foregoing invitation, which is headed by the United States' coat of arms, invites the criticism of a New York publication. It well says that the president, unlike an emperor or king, has but a temporary title, and being incorporeal can have no children. Mrs. Roosevelt is not the mother of Alice, so "their daughter" is misleading. Then 12 o'clock may mean noon or midnight. The use of the national coat of arms is also criticized.

That was very nice, even if unthoughtful, for Mr. Yerkes' to accumulate a fortune for young Mr. Mizner.

That was a terrible fire at Prentice, Wisconsin, Saturday, in which the husband, a babe born the day before and two other children were burned to death. Singularly the mother of the day before was the only one of the family to escape. She broke through a window, but may die from exposure.

The Chinese not only placate the devil, but on occasion treat him sorely—probably just as they think they or he has the better of it. Saturday afternoon at the Portland joss house cannon and ordinary firecrackers were set off in profusion, while Chinese fiddles, cymbals and tom-toms added their quota of infernal din, the purpose being to drive his satanic majesty out of Portland's Chinatown.

The Northwest is shipping some wheat this season. 27,200,000 bushels in round numbers having already been shipped from Portland and Puget Sound ports. This is a very large increase over that of previous years, the figures for which are:
