AN INDEPENDENT PAPER.

THURSDAY, MAY 24

The "Maid in Oregon" will be a more important factor than ever in our affairs if woman suffrage should carry the day at the coming election.

A splendid serial story, "Hesper," the masterpiece of Hamlin Garland, will begin in Saturday's Guard. Do not overlook the opening chapters.

The Oregonian says Governor Chamberlain was born in a state that seceded from the Union. It might go a little farther. His state, Georgia, seceded from Great Britain. By the way, Dr. Withycombe did not "secede" from Great Britain till he wanted office here in Oregon. Then and not till then did he get naturalized.

Tomorrow will be the cleaning-up day for Eugene, and every resident should get an early start and work late beautifying his premises. Eugene is undoubtedly the "city beautiful" of Western Oregon, and it should be the earnest endeavor of every loyal citizen to do all in his power to prove the distinction honestly earned and fittingly applied.

Every day better news is coming out from the Blue River district. The mines there are proving their richness by a steady output of bullion and many promising locations are yet in the stages of development. These mines are sufficient when fully opened up to turn a vast amount of trade into Eugene, enough in fact to build up a city here such as have sprung up all over Colorado and other mining states. Knowing the wealth that is hidden in these adjacent mountains it is a matter of business wisdom to advertise the facts to the world; that capital may be attracted for the more rapid development of such resources, and to this end our commercial organizations should direct their best efforts.

Hon. J. D. Matlock is assured of a splendid majority in Lane county because he is one of us—the only local candidate on either state ticket. Moreover, the record of the life he has lived is an open book wherein all men may read a story of honest, earnest endeavor, of manly effort and achievement, and these are the essential elements of a well-directed life. Mr. Matlock has passed through these successive stages that are common to most self-made Americans—he has been a laborer, farmer and business man and at all times he has kept his own self respect and secured as well the confidence of those with whom he has come into contact. No man has ever been nominated for the responsible position of state treasurer who is better fitted to fill the office; he desires no graft, no perquisites outside of the constitutional salary and will see that all interest earned by the public funds will go into the treasury, where of right it belongs. In his platform Mr. Matlock makes this pledge and every Lane county voter knows that his word is as good as the best bond ever written.

Sheriff Fred Fisk seems to be meeting with such universal endorsement and hearty encouragement in his canvass for re-election that it is about in order for a motion to make it unanimous. This state of affairs leads to the reflection that the people of any community may be trusted implicitly to discriminate between good official service and readiness to public duty. Mr. Fisk has served his constituents faithfully and in turn they show their confidence in him by decreasing that he shall retain a position of trust and responsibility. It is this erasing of party lines upon occasion that is the strength of popular government, when citizenship is placed above partisan prejudice and worth is recognized at its true value. The same spirit that in a larger sense caused two million lifelong Democrats to cast their ballots for President Roosevelt crops out in state, county and municipal elections all over the nation, and the growing independence of the voter is the most cheering tendency of the times. Sheriff Fisk is a Democrat in politics for reasons sufficient to himself, conscience being a man's truest guide in such matters, but above all party considerations he is a faithful official and as such is loyally supported by hundreds of Republicans, who realize that after all parties are organized and maintained only that good and sufficient government may be secured. That is the Rooseveltian idea and it is growing in popularity among all classes of good citizens.
