At Eugene in 1848

It is a long way back to 1848, yet there is a man still living and in full possession of his faculties who made his home with Eugene Skinner in the spring of that year—the only home on the present site of Eugene. That was fifty-eight years ago. Judge Smith, of Douglas county, was the man. In part he writes the Roseburg Umpqua Valley News:

In the spring of 1848 I was making my home with Mr. Skinner and family, on the present site of Eugene, and we had been expecting some papers and authority to hold an election at the residence of Mr. Skinner, the only house at that time for some distance. As the time was close at hand, we concluded to send a man down as far as where Corvallis is now to see what he could find out in regard to the election. Remember, we had no mails at that time and communication with other parts of the country only as some one happened to pass up or down. On his way, at the point where the Long Tom trail left the wagon road down the valley, in the forks of a tree, he found the necessary papers and returned. When the proper time came to hold the election, the few voters within the district organized by appointing Elijah Bristow and Ben Davis, two of the judges, but I cannot recall to mind who the other judge was at this time, 58 years later. Mr. Skinner and the writer acted as clerks. We polled 15 votes in a distance of 20 miles, and thought that was doing pretty well in a district that had contained only three voters the October previous, the rest being all newcomers.

If I remember correctly it was a unanimous vote, as we all voted for Geo. Abernathy for governor and J. C. Avery and E. V. Skinner for representatives to our provisional legislature. The whole proceedings did not amount to anything, as nearly all the men elected to the legislature went to the California gold mines the following fall and there was no legislature held. That was the last election held under our provisional government, as General Joseph Lane arrived at Oregon City on March 3, 1849, and took possession of Oregon in the name of the United States just one day before the president who appointed him went out of office. After that we considered we were in charge of the United States. Previous to that we had been fighting our own battles against the Indians—the Hudson Bay Company.

Last evening's Guard told about an appropriation by congress for a federal building in Eugene. This, with some $45,000 that is to be spent by the university for new buildings, the expenditures in the water system, new gas works and various other public improvements, will keep many men employed for a long time. If the city council would rise to the occasion and act upon the pending electric road franchise so that the biggest enterprise of all could be inaugurated at once, it would create a great boom in Eugene property values, as well as an increase in population and business. Now is the accepted time to get in and drill for the upbuilding of Lane county and its metropolis.

Attorney General Moody has decided that the employees of the trusts and railroads may be prosecuted and punished but that the heads of such concerns, like Rockefeller and Harriman, cannot be reached by law. This view of the situation will make employment by the great corporations rather a precarious means of earning a livelihood in the future.

Thomas Waggaman, who made a very pretty failure for over four million about a year ago, died at a farmhouse near Annapolis Wednesday.

You get the same news in the morning papers today that you read in the Guard last evening. Today's news today—telegraphic and local—is the cause for the big home circulation of the evening papers all over the West. And it is the home circulation that brings results to the advertiser.

The New Hampshire is the next battleship. She will first greet the water tomorrow, when she will receive her name.

THE SUMMER EXCURSION.

Excursions up and down the land
That cheer the summer season
Are now pulled off on every hand
Without or with a reason.
They sail forth in ships or rain,
The zodiac and the jolly,
By boat or auto bus or train,
By trolley or trolley.

Some quit society or clan
To sail upon the ocean,
To hire a train or form a plan
To sail upon the ocean,
And then they send their ladies out
To put both friend and foe to rout
By loading them with tickets.

The cars are crowded to the door,
If happily it's a winner;
The children play about the floor
And play catch with their dinner.
Or, if by boat they sail away,
Before they leave the landing
Enough are coaxed to go and pay
So there is hardly standing.

Oh, was there ever on the earth
Or elsewhere such confusion?
You never get your money's worth
In all the rank confusion.
But that is where it is a joke,
Because the people know
They'll come back mad and lame and
In spite of all keep going.

Adaptable.
"What are your husband's politics?"
"That depends somewhat on the politics of the man with whom he is trying to make a trade."

Under Difficulties.

We try to love our fellow men,
But, oh, our hearts will harden
If they are patrons of the hen
While we support a garden corner.

Excursion to Yellowstone

At 7 a. m. Saturday, July 7th, the Oregonian Yellowstone Park special train carrying the thirty-eight prize winners in the Oregonian voting contest will leave Portland. In order to afford the many friends of the successful contestants an opportunity to accompany them on the trip, special rates have been made of $80 from Portland, including rail and stage transportation also between six or seven days' meals and lodging in the park, and rate of $14 covering Pullman accommodations in both directions, making a round trip fare of $94, exclusive only of meals between Portland and Salt Lake City, where sufficient time will be allowed to permit passengers to see the sights of Utah's capital before the journey to the Yellowstone is continued. After spending about a week in the park the return trip to Portland, including side trip to Boise City, will be commenced. Any one wishing reservations on this trip should apply at the ticket office without delay.

The Influence of The Predatory Rich

By Rev. WASHINGTON GLADDEN, D. D., Columbus, O.

WITH respect to predatory wealth the function of the moral teachers is clear. It is their business to testify against it. TO AROUSE THE CONSCIENCE OF THE NATION to resist its encroachments. Has this function been fulfilled? Very imperfectly. This is proved by the fact that this particular kind of wealth has been growing of late much faster than any other form of wealth.

When we seek for the reason we are at once confronted with the fact that relations of great friendliness have been gradually forming between a number of this class of rich men and those who should have the leadership of the moral forces. Large amounts of money have been given by men OF THE PREDATORY CLASS to the churches and colleges and theological seminaries.

The relations thus formed have a suspicious look, but the case is not so bad as it appears. The rise of this class of the predatory rich has been rapid; their social and moral status was not at first well defined; many of those moral teachers who have come into relations of dependence upon them did not AT THE BEGINNING fully comprehend the nature of the snare in which they were being entangled. But the case is becoming very clear.

IT IS NOT ANY LONGER POSSIBLE TO DENY THAT ANY CLOSE RELATION BETWEEN WEALTH OF THIS SORT AND THE MEN WHO STAND FOR THE MORAL ORDER IS WHAT THE OLD PROPHETS WOULD HAVE BLUNTLY TERMED LIBIDINOUS.

A Poem for Today

THE MOUNTAINS

By Bayard Taylor

HOWEVER the wheels of time go round,
We cannot wholly be discrowned,
We bind, in form, and hue and height,
The finite to the infinite,
And, lifted on our shoulders bare,
The races breathe an ampler air,
The arms that clasped, the lips that kissed,
Have vanished from the morning mist;
The dainty shapes that flashed and passed
In spray the plunging torrent east.

Or danced through woven gleam and shade,
The vapors of the sunbeam's braid,
Grow thin and pale; each holy haunt
Of gods or spirits ministrant
Hath something lost of ancient awe;
Yet from the stooping heavens we draw
A beauty, mystery and might.
Time cannot change nor worship slight
The gold of dawn, and sunset sheds
Uncertainly glory on our heads;
The secret of the skies we keep
And whispers, round each lonely sleep,
Allure and promise, yet withhold
What hard and prophet never told.
While man's slow ages come and go
Our dateless chronicles of snow
Their changeless old inscription show,
And men therein forever see
The unred speech of Delty.
