A. A. CLEVELAND ELECTED PRINCIPAL OF HIGH SCHOOL

Graduate of University of Oregon.
With Class of 1898 Tendered the Position - Miss Minnie Evans
Chosen to Fill Vacancy at Central School.

At the meeting of the board of education Saturday evening Professor A. A. Cleveland, formerly of Astoria but now teaching at Worcester, Mass., was tendered the position of principal at the high school, made vacant by the resignation of Professor W. C. McKee, who has accepted the superintendency of the Oregon City schools. Professor Cleveland is a graduate of the University of Oregon with the class of 1898, and is highly recommended as a teacher.

New committees were appointed by chairman W. O. Zeigler as follows:

On teachers—W. L. Cheshire, E. W. Osburn, R. McMurphy.

On buildings and grounds—E. W. Osburn, W. L. Cheshire, O. J. Hall.

On finance—R. McMurphy, E. W. Osburn, O. J. Hall.

Frank Reiser was re-elected clerk of the board.

Miss Mertie Anton, teacher of the third grade at the Central school, was transferred to the first grade, at her own request, to take the place made vacant by the resignation of Mrs. McKee. Miss Minnie Evans, of Eugene, who has been teaching in the Harrisonburg schools for the past ten years, was chosen teacher of the third grade.

The time of the regular meeting of the board was changed from the first Saturday to the first Thursday of each month.

that never make mistakes. The white cloth is folded in forty-five thicknesses and placed beneath the stars. Every time the ponderous press comes down the sharp steel cuts forty-five stars, a whole constellation. The rapidity with which the stars are created depends on the agility and skill of the workman in removing the cloth.

Long rows of girls at each side of long tables, covered with blue cloth, are always ready for the stars as soon as they are handed to them. It is the task of these people to place the five pointed emblems of statehood on the familiar blue fields, a feat not so easily accomplished as might be imagined. The position of the stars must not vary even a sixteenth of an inch. The stars differ in magnitude to correspond with the dimensions of the different flags, and each size has its ratio of position. The stars of the union on every flag are arranged in six rows alternating eight and seven.

After they are placed in position the basters are summoned, who after accomplishing their task pass the stars and cloth to the girls, who sew them firmly in place with an artistic stitch at the same rate of speed that the stripes were linked together. The union, as the field with its starry clusters is called, passes to the trimmers, who remove the basting threads and the stray pieces of silk and wool. After the unions are properly dressed they are given to another set of workers, who unite the stars and stripes.

The flag then passes to the finishers, who sew strong canvas bands across the headings, in the corners of which are placed grommets, or eyelets, that are clinched together by metal teeth. In the large flag rope passes through the canvas. Thus is the flag completed and ready to be mounted on a staff or to float from halyards "from the dawn's early light to the twilight's last gleaming."—Los Angeles Herald.

SOUTHERN PACIFIC'S PROPOSED COAST ROAD

A Southern Pacific Co. surveying party of 31 men left Roseburg one day last week for Marshfield to survey the connecting link of the railroad between Coos Bay and Eureka, Cal. Quite likely this is to be a part of the coast road of the S. P. Co., the first section being the Drain-Marshfield division, now in course of construction. The party was composed of seven regular surveyors, the rest being University of California students, who are working during vacation.

Making the Flag

THE largest American flag in the world, herewith illustrated, was exhibited last year for the first time in Denver. It was designed as an ornament for the building used for Grand Army encampments and other great meetings, and it covers almost the entire front of the huge structure. It is 115 feet in length, 55 feet in width and has stars two feet across. The stripes are four feet two inches in width, and there are 1,450 yards of bunting in the flag. The intention at first was to have the flag float from a staff in front of the building, but no pole of sufficient strength could be obtained, the bunting weighing 450 pounds.

You may be interested in learning how such big flags are made. The bunting comes in huge rolls of solid colors, and the first step is to cut it into strips, some red, others white. Experienced hands do this work. These stripes are then passed to the hands of girls, who sew them on machines of special manufacture that are unlike those of the patient housewife. The lock stitch at the rate of 2,400 a minute is the rapidity with which they are sewed, the thread being fed from spools that hold 24,000 yards.

There is no stitching more faultless than that on the silk flag, even though it is accomplished faster than any other sewed by machinery. There are no "skipped" stitches, a fact proving that the ingenuity of the machine is aided by the skill of the girls, whose duty it is to see that the stripes of the flag never stray from the straight and narrow way that crosses the table, on which thousands of yards of silk and bunting travel annually. The stripes of the flags now being sewed together by the aid of electricity, the ends of the flag are hemmed, not a broad hem, but a narrow one, so finely done that it would take the eye of an expert to distinguish it from a selvage.

Now the flag is ready for the union, a blue field upon which sparkle forty-five bright diamond-like stars, "a star for every state." The stars are five pointed, and each point is precisely like the other. No hand can ever become so skilled as to have every point a counterpart of the other, and for this reason the stars are cut out by dies
