European Combination

History will repeat itself if Germany and Austria come to the aid of Russia, says the Seattle News. If the two first named powers march their troops into Russian Poland to hold the Poles in check while Russian troops carry on rapine and slaughter in Moscow and elsewhere, Europe will be profoundly shocked.

These acts did not suffice to warn the monarchs so there came the uprisings of 1848-9 when there were popular disturbances in Germany, Ireland and Italy. All Europe seemed ablaze. Russia marched troops into Hungary to crush Kossuth, and Austria aided in repression in northern Italy.

Germany and Austria have now fears alike to those that were so common in 1848. They apprehend that should Russian Poland become free they may in due time have to surrender their part of Poland. Their title is unsound. They dare not submit it to popular vote.

The European masses will be profoundly disturbed if the monarchs engage in what might be deemed an imperial trust. They will sympathize with Poland and with the oppressed Russians, who may try a revolutionary combination themselves.

Blue River Mines

There is no question but the Blue River mining district is destined to become one of the great wealth producers of the West. Many miners and prospectors are at work there and the number is constantly increasing. New properties are being opened and old ones more systematically developed with good results.

There is already talk of a railroad to the Blue River camp, and it is only a question of time when one will be built. It should go from Eugene and no doubt will if our people are awake to the situation.

Now, if the people who recently offered $210,000,000 for Panama bonds, bearing only two per cent, when only $30,000,000 was needed, will send their money Westward they can gain much more interest with as good security.

A good many people think Eugene ought to have a band. A city of this size without such an organization to furnish music for public gatherings is considerably behind the times. Besides an open air concert these warm evenings would just about fill the bill and be greatly appreciated by the public. Of course a band will cost some money, because to creditable organization can be maintained without generous support.

Professor G. L. McKay, the Iowa dairy expert, has certainly done good in this state by arousing interest in dairy farming. This is one of his statements: "In Germany, Holland, Belgium and Denmark I found dairy-men operating on land worth from $500 to $1000 an acre—and making money too—under conditions generally far from as favorable as conditions in Oregon."

As long as the rival evening papers of Portland are able to keep a supply of poster type, the people of that city are reasonably certain of having two sensations daily. Really, it is astonishing how much rot the newspapers can print when they must fill from 12 to 20 pages whether there is any legitimate news or not.

Secretary Shaw says he will vote for anybody or anything that's republican. Such old-fashioned partisanship does credit to no man's intelligence and independence. Few voters of either party belong to the 'yellow dog' class in these days—but it's about Shaw's size.

The S. P. Co.'s advertising folders give the population of Salem as 5000, and the Journal of that city is exceeding wrath. Heretofore they have included the inmates of the insane asylum and penitentiary in the city's census enumeration.

Bryan is wary. He writes his reception committee not to accept money for expenses from questionable sources. No tainted money in his'n—especially when the big boom is to be launched.

The dispatches say that Mrs. Thaw has obligingly allowed her son to be sane, since he insists on it. Having is own way too much and too long is what spoiled that promising youngster.

If Charlie Nickell goes to prison, he will be the only newspaper man there. But Charlie is not of a disposition to feel lonely even if his companions are all doctors, lawyers and preachers.

Humor and Philosophy

By DUNCAN M. SMITH

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

The only thing that can be said of the line of talk that some people put up is that it is long and thin.

The unexpected is apt to be disagreeable in spite of the fact that people are looking for trouble.

People who borrow trouble seem to be sticklers for returning it with interest.

At present a big graft seems to be a fruitful branch of many establishments.

It is a good thing that the world is growing better, for there isn't so very much room in the other direction.

A woman who knows how to cook a good dinner is apt to be a good judge of men.

No man would approve of his wife's doing as he does.

A popular character takes the imprint momentarily of its associations; so does a piece of putty.

Love is sometimes like trouble—it comes without invitation and stays without sanction.

A bachelor thinks he knows a lot of men that are second choice.

Sometimes Helps. "The horse won by an eyebrow." "How could the judge make such a fine decision?" "He had a little money bet on that horse."

False Teaching of the "Realists" By Rabbi EMIL G. HIRSCH of Chicago

MAN is much the same as he was a thousand years ago. The same elemental passions, ambitions and appetites obtain. THEY ARE THE SAME AS THOSE OF THE ANIMALS. Science has brought us to realize this, and our peep into the workshop of nature has had a tendency to brutalize humanity.

Our knowledge that man is only one of the company of brutes has led small men to teach that man IN ALL THINGS is merely a brute. In their desire to unify the world they have jumped at the conclusion that man is no different from the other creatures that tenant the earth.

The French are the worst in this. They have a facility of language which enables them to speak glibly of things which could not be mentioned in any other tongue. Their literature destroys their home life, and virtue is regarded as something rudimentary—an arrested development. THEY KNOW NO MORAL LAW.

The excuse advanced by Bernard Shaw and others that the books are written with good intentions will not suffice. They are pandering to the LOWEST in man.

Society is drifting without a compass. It is a period of transition. The old canons are gone, and the new ones have not yet been found. The latest announcement of modern philosophy is that you may do what you want to, but DON'T GET CAUGHT AT IT. If you do, commit suicide. In this philosophy of brutality you have an explanation for the fact that literature always paints life as a struggle between the forces of desire and duty.

NEVER BEFORE IN THE HISTORY OF THE WORLD WAS THERE SO GREAT A NEED OF MASTERS—MEN WHO WILL INTERPRET LIFE IN TERMS OF SANITY AND SANCTITY, OF DUTY AND RIGHTEOUSNESS.

Writers should see life in its brightest aspects and have no right continually to present it in its lower forms. The "naturalists" preach the right of a woman to sever EVERY TIE which binds her to her husband when she feels a stronger love for another man.

Ibsen, in "The Doll's House," strikes a false note and falls far short of solving the problem, the "woman problem," which he attempts to do. Sudermann mirrors perfectly the BRUTALIZED SPIRIT OF MODERN LITERATURE.

Nietzsche, the German disciple of materialism, or of COMMERCIALISM, as we call it in America, preaches that the world will belong to the strong men—men like Bismarck and Napoleon.

A Poem for Today

THE SONG OF THE CAMP

By Bayard Taylor

BAYARD TAYLOR, poet, traveler, editor and diplomat, was born in Pennsylvania Jan. 11, 1825, and died in Berlin on Dec. 19, 1897. Of Bayard Taylor's active life it is impossible to give an adequate idea in a brief sketch. His first poems were published when he was sixteen. He traveled afoot over Europe in 1844-46 and in 1849 was seeking gold in California. "His life was a series of long travels and trips abroad, letters and other contributions to the press and innumerable lecture tours." At the time of his death he was United States minister to Germany.

"GIVE us a song!" the soldiers cried. The outer trenches guarding. When the heated guns of the camps allied Grew weary of bombarding.

The dark Redan, in silent scoff, Lay, grim and threatening under; And the tawny mound of the Malakoff No longer belched its thunder.

There was a pause. A guardsman said: "We storm the forts tomorrow; Sing while we may, another day Will bring enough of sorrow."

They lay along the battery's side, Below the smoking cannon; Brave hearts, from Severn and from Clyde And from the banks of Shannon.

They sang of love and not of fame; Fought for Britain's glory; Each heart recalled a different name, But all sang "Annie Laurie."

Voice after voice caught up the song. (Until its tender passion Rose like an anthem, rich and strong— Their battle-eye confession.

Dear girl, her name he dared not speak, But as the song grew louder, Something upon the soldier's cheek Washed off the stains of powder.

Beyond the darkening ocean burned The bloody sunset's embers, While the Crimean valleys learned How English love remembers.

And once again a fire of hell Rained on the Russian quarters, With scream of shot and burst of shell, And howling of the mortars!

And Irish Nora's eyes are dim For a singer dumb and gory; And English Mary mourns for him Who sang of "Annie Laurie."

Sleep, soldiers! still in honored rest Your truth and valor wearing, The bravest are the tenderest— The loving are the darest.

A Tragic Finis'

A watchman's neglect permitted a leak in the great North Sea dyke, which a child's finger could have stopped, to become a ruinous break, devastating an entire province of Holland. In like manner Kenneth McIver, of Vanceboro, Me., permitted a cold to go unnoticed until a tragic finis was only averted by Dr. King's New Discovery. He writes: "Three doctors gave me up to die of lung inflammation, caused by the neglected cold; but Dr. King's New Discovery saved my life." Guaranteed best cough and cold cure, at W. L. DeLano's drug store, 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free.
