AN INDEPENDENT PAPER.

FRIDAY, AUGUST 31

Startling Idea

Dr. Alexander Graham Bell has evolved an idea in connection with aerial navigation that is somewhat startling, says the Boise Statesman. Heretofore the question of power for flying ships has been a serious one to solve. Some headway has been made with gasoline, but that is not altogether satisfactory. It has been felt that, if a light storage battery for electricity should be secured, it would solve the problem, but the only successful battery is of great weight, making it impracticable to utilize it.

Now Dr. Bell has hit upon the idea of furnishing the power by wireless apparatus from the ground. He has constructed a machine which has made a flight with such power. While the flight was neither long nor sensational, the fact that it is possible to catch up the power needed as the airship moves along is suggestive of interesting possibilities. While it is impossible to see how the power could be concentrated and yet be available at widely separated points, it remains true that the suggestion opens up a new field to be explored by those who are seeking to find a solution of successful aerial navigation.

Wednesday evening the Daily Guard printed a clipping, credited to the Saturday Evening Post, on "Off Year Elections," which seems to be mixed in its facts. The Register takes the matter up at considerable length and proceeds to make the desired corrections—which are really further from the truth than the article in question. For instance, the morning paper says: "Now, as every one knows, who keeps tab on national politics, Massachusetts elected Curtis Guild, Jr., as governor in November, 1095, and his term of office does not expire this year." Now, "as everybody knows," except the editor of the Register, Massachusetts elects a governor every year, and the coming fall will be no exception to the rule. So also does Rhode Island. In fact, the only material errors in the Post article seem to be in respect to Virginia and Maryland, and the Register, in calling attention to these has made more glaring, mistakes than the Post writer, indicating that its editorial department is for reliability on a par with that of its much vaunted "special telegraphic service" that comes by mail from the East at 85 a month. This incident gives color to the rumor that the only reference book doing duty in the Register office is a last year's copy of Iri Hicks' weather forecasts.

There will be mud slinging galore in the coming New York campaign for governor. Already Hearst declares Jerome to be the hired man of the corporations. Jerome retorts by declaring that the Democratic party is in the hands of bad men who should be driven out. And the Republican factions are just as bitter and vindictive toward each other.

There are intimations that Persia is in a state of approaching collapse and that Germany has designs on her territory. This historic, interesting country equals in area one-fifth of the United States, Alaska excepted. It has about 9,000,000 people who are of a high type of Asiatics. Turkey, Russia and Afghanistan have contiguous territory and British India is not remote. England has assumed a protectorate, somewhat resembling our Monroe doctrine, over the Persian gulfs. Persia is a country of the highest strategetic importance, and might easily become a cause of war, involving Germany, Russia and England.

Those discharged Portland detectives might get a job on Russia's police force. The terrorists have succeeded in causing 101 vacancies there in ten days.

The railroad pass is passing away, or it is generally supposed that it will, now that the new railroad rate law is in full force and effect.

The Eugene advertisement in the Pacific Monthly is well written and attractively set up. It ought to do good.

GOVERNOR FOLK, HEAD OF RECEPTION COMMITTE

waved his hands as a signal for silence.

In part Mr. Bryan spoke as follows:

"Ladies and Gentlemen: Like all travelers who visit other lands, I return with delight to the land of my birth, more proud of its people, with more confidence in its government and grateful to the kind providence that cast my lot in the United States. My national pride has been increased of by the abundant evidence I have seen of the altruistic interest taken by Americans in the people of other countries. No other nation can show such a record of benevolence and disinterested friendship. My love for our form of government has been quickened as I have visited castles and towers and peered into dark dungeons, and I am glad that our nation, profiting by the experience of the past and yet unhampered by traditions and unfettered by caste, has been permitted to form a new centre of civilization on new soil and erect here a 'government of the people, by the people and for the people.' I also return more deeply impressed than ever before with the responsibility which rests upon our nation as an exempler among the nations and more solicitous that we, avoiding the causes which have led other nations to decay, may present a higher ideal than has ever before been embodied in a natoinal life and carry human progress to a higher plane that it has before reached. I desire, moreover, to acknowledge indebtedness to the American officials who have everywhere shown us all possible courtesy and kindness. I don't know that I can better show my appreciation of the welcome accorded me by my countrymen than to submit some suggestions drawn from observations during the past year. A Japanese educator, addressing me through an interpreter, said:

"'I wish you would find the worst thing in Japan and tell us about it so that we may correct it.'

"I commended the generous spirit which he manifested, but assured him that each nation can give lessons to every other and while our nation is in a position to make the largest contributoin, as I believe, to the education of the word, it ought to remain in the attitude of a pupil and be ever ready to profit by the experience of others."

Mr. Bryan stated that he brought a message of peace from the Old World, and reviewed the efforts of The Hague tribunal to bring about universal arbitration.

He contended that the landlordism of Europe was an innocent institution in comparison with the American trust. The man who argues in favor of private monopoly is aiding socialism and to socialism, as he understands it, the Democratic party is opposed. It offers an alternative competition where competition is possible, and public ownership where circumstances prevent competition.

His antagonism to socialism is that while it attacks confessed evils, the remedy it offers is worse than these evils. The best way to oppose it, he said, is to remove the abuses which have grown up under individualism, but which are not necessarily a part of individualism. He wishes to see trusts exterminated, so the door of opportunity may be opened to every American citizen.

On another occasion, he said, he will call attention to the growing expenditures of the government. Even the desire to find ways of spending the revenues brought into the treasury by the tariff cannot, he said, account for the reckless extravagance of congress. At present, however, he desires thought to be centred on the evil of trusts and its plutocratic tendencies. It demands a remedy, and the Democratic party, he declared, offered the solution.

The Democratic party does not menace a single dollar legitimately accumulated, but advocates the repeal of laws which enable men to reap that which they have not sown, laws which enable them to garner into overflowing barns harvests that belong to others. Only those, he said, would suffer by application of the Jeffersonian doctrine of equal rights to all and special privileges to none whose accumulations are stained with dishonesty and whose immoral methods have given them distorted views of business.
