TOURIST RATES FROM EAST

Settle May Be Invited by Making Known Low Colonist Fares. Whole State Can Assist in Work of Bringing People to Oregon

Twenty-five dollars to about any point in Oregon from the great Middle West, including the important cities on the Missouri as well as the Mississippi river, is the rate that will go into effect March 1 and continue in effect until April 30. Tickets will be on sale every day, and as they are available to about 25,000,000 people at about a cent and a half a mile, it will be negligence on the part of Oregon if a great many thousand industrious citizens are not added to the population of the state.

These rates are good on any and all railroads leading west, and while the cities are used here from which the rates are good, it must be borne in mind that the same rates are available from the smaller points adjacent to the cities. For instance a vast portion of the Northwest, including most of Minnesota and the Dakotas, take the St. Paul and Minneapolis rate, while Kansas, Nebraska and a large part of Iowa and Missouri take the rate from Kansas City. The rates which are quoted from St. Louis and Chicago also cover an enormous section of the country, and give the privilege of seeing Oregon at a low rate to many millions.

Rate Applies to Whole State.

In the past a great many people throughout the state of Oregon have felt that these rates were good to Portland only, and as the railroads usually advertise the larger cities because they are more familiar with the general public, the people of the interior of the state felt that the metropolis gets the chief advantage.

"Many of the citizens of Oregon content themselves with the statements that the railroad will advertise these rates, but we must bear in mind that when they are advertising rates to Oregon these same rates are just as good to Texas, the Indian Territory and Oklahoma; the same are good to all points in the south and all points in the West; Colorado and Utah are working for new citizens, as are the Dakotas, and it is generally understood that there is some little activity in California and Canada along these lines, and that Washington is not inactive," said Tom Richardson, of the Portland Commercial Club. "Whenever a colonist rate goes into effect and is good to any portion of the state, it is good to any portion of the Northwest, Middle West and Southwest, and it is the community that gets up and hustles that gets the population and the wealth.

"Through a combined effort, the Portland Commercial Club and the Oregon Development League have been carrying on an extensive advertisement of the state of Oregon, and it might as well be admitted at this time as to tell it later, that the funds are about exhausted and that the several communities in the state must take up and carry on a thorough campaign of advertising if we care to get the full results.

"Every commercial and industrial body in the state, as well as every real estate firm and corporation, should make these rates either introductory or the central feature of their advertising, and if a real estate man's clientele is in the state of Kansas, for instance, let him give the rate as from the state of Kansas, and circulate the matter there, in order to make it local at the other end of the line.

"If citizens from other states who have found a home in Oregon within the last two or three years would write a letter to their old home paper and make especially prominent this low rate to various points in Oregon, the advertising received would be of wonderful benefit to Oregon."

Rates to Eugene.

The rate to Eugene from Kansas City, Omaha, St. Paul and Sioux City is $25; from St. Louis, $30; from Chicago, $33.

RUNAWAY BOYS FROM FRISCO SPEND NIGHT IN EUGENE JAIL

Harry Reynolds and Henry Anderson, Aged 16 and 14 Years, Respectively, Out to See the World.

Two tow-headed youths, aged 16 and 14 years respectively, and whose homes are in San Francisco, spent last night in the Eugene city jail. They were found under a seat in a car of the Cottage Grove local last night and put off here. Officer Purdy took charge of them and locked them up. They said they had been to Seattle and were on their way home, having been "on the road" for several months. The older boy gave his name as Harry Reynolds and the younger Henry Anderson. Reynolds says he has a stepfather who is always drunk and making life miserable for him, so he concluded to run away. The other boy says he has a father on a steamer on San Francisco bay. He thought it would be a novel experience to take a trip north and so accompanied Reynolds. The boys were released this morning and said they would leave immediately for home, although they expressed a desire to get a job on a farm around here.

Humor and Philosophy

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

Photographers do not make pretty women, but they often expose them.

Fortune tellers are rarely on speaking terms with fortune.

Flattery is fine treatment for the blues.

If it were possible to inherit salvation a lot of sinners would stand a much better chance of heaven.

Time may heal a broken heart, but another girl will hasten the process along.

Small children may believe in witches, but not in switches.

It is bloodless but not painless surgery when the doctor operates on the patient's pocketbook.

Put not your faith in political parties. Better invest in the trust that runs them.

Often when people marry it is a mistake of the heart and not of the head.

A fast young man does not necessarily win the race.

If a girl is considerate enough to ward a young man not to sing for him, he ought to take a tumble to himself and clutch her while he can.

A horse if turned loose will go home, but you never heard of an automobile intelligent enough to go to the repair shop.

'Twas Ever Thus.

What a lot of bargains stare you in the face, Novelties and notions, Hosiery and lace; They from every counter Cry with all their might, But there's nothing doing When your purse is light.

Just the things you've wanted, Searched for near and far For a month or longer, And now here they are, Glimming at you head-like, And the price is right. But there's nothing doing When your purse is light.

Return of Romance.

The motor car, says Edith Wharton, has restored the romance of traveling. We should say yes. What can be more romantic than to see an understated man in great goggles and a leather coat whose hands have never been soiled by anything but perfume ink slowly pushing a touring car through the sand to the nearest repair shop while the golden glow of the glorious sunset is tingling the treetops, bringing out their gorgeous autumn tints in a picture that no artist could reproduce, while a sweet 200 pound lady sits complacently in the car and wonders if the neighboring farmhouse would produce an evening meal of chicken and pumpkin pie in exchange for coin of the realm!

Or, if that isn't romantic enough to suit the most exacting, we might turn to the picture of a pair of legs waving in the air while the owner was down under the machine busy re-setting that he had not learned to swear in youth. Oh, there is plenty of romance if one just goes about it right.

Reason Enough.

"I did not know that you were so fond of athletics. Why did you join that club?"

"Oh, its uniform is immensely becoming to me."

RELIGION IN WALL STREET.

Mrs. J. Alden Gaylord and Her Office Devotions.

Wall street is a region in which religion is not supposed to cut much of a figure, but recently a movement to start the business of the day with devotional exercises has been attracting attention. It was started by Mrs. J. Alden Gaylord, the woman bond broker, and the Rev. Henry Marsh Warren, the hotel chaplain. In Mrs. Gaylord's office it has for some time been customary to hold a brief service upon the opening of business for each day. In her personality sharp wits and religious zeal are blended. She may enter old Trinity, at the head of Wall street, for a moment of prayer on her way to her office, but there is nothing about her way of doing business to tempt a man on "the street" into handing her a gold brick. She has a great deal of faith in human nature, even the kind that is on exhibition in Wall street. As to the men with whom she deals she says, "You see, they'll be honest with me because they know I am honest myself."

MRS. J. ALDEN GAYLORD.

The Wall street firm of J. Alden Gaylord & Co. was founded over forty years ago. Mr. Gaylord died about three years since, and his widow determined to continue the business.

As to Imagination.

Let little children spin their dreams; 'Twill teach them to create. Then they'll be able to live when they grow to man's estate. And when they take a fishing trip Far from the madding crowd They'll have a catch to tell about Of which they will be proud.

And when they journey to the shore To watch the great ships sail They'll find sea serpents everywhere, Though other eyes should fail. When some one starts to tell about A wealth producing mine They'll always have a bigger one Just over the county line.

Some man may have a speedy nag That in 2:10 can trot. They'll always have a faster one Out in the pasture lot. Their salaries with figures larger A stranger will impress, Although the money that they draw Will be a good deal less.

The bets they win, the men they lick, The girls they captivate, Would fill a volume three feet thick, To hear them tell it straight. In short, when any one relates Adventures, ready made They have some bigger ones to throw All others in the shade.

Oh, teach the child to fabricate! When he is young and quick, For when he grows to be a man He might not learn the trick, And he can use the gentle art In trade and trafficking. Should he go into politics, 'Twill be the very thing.
