In Torments a Year and a Half with Terrible Sores on Face and Body—Hands Tied to Stop Scratching and Tearing at Flesh—But

CURE BY CUTICURA COMPLETE AND SPEEDY

"My little son, when about a year and a half old began to have sores come out on his face. I had a physician treat him, but the sores grew worse. Then they began to come on his arms, then on other parts of his body, and then one came on his chest, worse than the others. Then I called another physician. Still he grew worse. At the end of about a year and a half of suffering he grew so bad I had to tie his hands in clothes at night to keep him from scratching the sores and tearing the flesh. He got to be a mere skeleton, and was hardly able to walk. My friend advised me to try Cuticura Soap and Ointment. So great was her faith in it that she gave me a small piece of Cuticura Soap to try and a little Cuticura Ointment. I took it home without any faith, but to please her I tried it, and it seemed to dry up the sores a little. I sent to the drug store and got a cake of Cuticura Soap and a box of Cuticura Ointment and followed the directions, and at the end of about two months the sores were all well. He has never had any more of any kind since. He is now strong and healthy, and I can sincerely say that only for your most wonderful remedies my precious child would have died from those terrible sores. I used only one cake of Soap and about three boxes of Ointment. Mrs. Egbert Sheldon, R. F. D. No. 1, Woodville, Conn., April 22, 1905."

A committee of the G. A. R. men and ladies visited Geary school yesterday afternoon to help the school celebrate Washington's birthday. Speeches were made by Comrade Sam Taylor, late of Coburg, and E. F. Chapman. Mrs. Barthe and Mrs. L. Sylvester were also present. The pupils rendered some good music and recitations and a very enjoyable time was had. The talk of the old vets was along the line of Washington as a general, leading down to the war of the rebellion.

ACTUALLY CURES CATARRH

Mr. Hull's Faith in Hyomei Is So Strong He Sells It Under Guarantee

It is one thing to claim, another to back up the claim by a statement that if it is not proven true, there will be no charge for the service of the goods.

It is in this way that Mr. Hull sells Hyomei, since he has so much faith in its powers to cure all forms of catarrh and bronchial troubles, that he gives an absolute, unqualified guarantee with every outfit that if the remedy does not cure the money will be refunded.

Hyomei is based on Nature's way of curing catarrh. It contains the concentrated healing oils and gums of the pine woods, prepared in such a form that they can be brought into your own home. It gives the health advantages of the Adirondacks in such form that you can be cured of catarrh and affections of the nose, throat and lungs while at home or at work.

A complete Hyomei outfit costs but $1.50 extra bottles, if needed, may be obtained for 50 cents.

With Hyomei you can cure catarrh pleasantly and easily at a small expense, with no risk of the treatment costing a penny unless it cures.

Mrs. Geo. Peters was at Eugene the first of the week, visiting with relatives and friends. Her visit was for the purpose of bidding adieu to Mr. and Mrs. Jno. Peters, who have decided to return to Kansas after a year's residence in this part of the world.

J. S. Bruce was down from Springfield Sunday last, looking after his property interests here, and while here sold his residence property near the M. Mr. and Mrs. Hawk's many friends here will be pleased to learn that they will again make Harrisburg their home.

Lem Endicott returned to New Era Sunday to resume his place in the sawmill at that place. He shipped his household effects to New Era the first of the week, and will make that place his home for the present. Mrs. Endicott, who has been teaching in the public school, has resigned her position, and on March 1 will join her husband in their new home. We regret very much to see Mrs. Endicott quit the school, but the work of the primary department is too trying for her, and she decided that it was best for her to give it up. Her place will be filled by Miss Martin, of Creswell, who is here at present, ready to take her place the first of the month.

An operation of skin grafting was performed by Dr. Wm. Hale, assisted by Dr. Williams, of Junction, in this city Saturday last upon the arm of Wiley Ingram, whose arm was nearly shot away some weeks ago. In all 23 grafts were placed on the arm, and all adhered and the wound is fast becoming covered with new cuticle. Mr. Ingram has been at Mr. Dale's hospital for a number of weeks, and when he had come out he had about given up hope of ever having a good arm again, but now he has every assurance that he will have the use of the arm as well as his fingers, which for a time it was thought out of the question to save. Dr. Dale is meeting with marked success in the line of surgery, and his private hospital is proving a valuable addition to this section of the valley.—Bulletin.

MARRIED IN A TROLLEY CAR

Novel Wedding Ceremony in Jackson, Miss., Unites Two Loving Hearts.

A novel ceremony was performed in Jackson, Miss., when Miss Maud Smith became the wife of Meady Pierce. After securing a marriage license the prospective bridegroom negotiated with a magistrate of the city to meet him at a designated corner and accompany him on a street car ride.

The accommodating justice did so, and after boarding the car he was introduced to Miss Smith and informed that they desired to have a marriage ceremony performed then and there.

This was a little out of the ordinary, but the justice, still accommodating, made his preparations for tying the knot.

STANDING IN THE CENTER OF THE CAR.

nuptial knot while the car speeded onward toward the west end. Just before reaching the end of the track the couple announced that they were ready and, standing in the center of the car, were soon as tightly tied as if the ceremony had been performed in the biggest and most elaborately decorated church in America.

The other passengers were a little nonplused, but soon "caught on" and joined heartily in the proceedings by wishing the young couple as merry a ride through life as they were enjoying on their wedding trip. At the end of the line the car started back, and new passengers offered more congratulations. Near the railroad station the couple left the car to catch a train for their home in Rankin county.

GAVE WIFE AWAY AS CHRISTMAS PRESENT

But She Didn't Like Man Husband Donated Her to and Came Back.

"Where's your wife?" his neighbors asked Ed Garrison at Millville, N. J. "Oh, I gave her for a Christmas present to young Kelley," Garrison answered indifferently. "You have all seen Kelley around here. I began to think she liked Kelley better than she did me, although we have lived together eighteen years and never had a quarrel. I asked her, and she said she thought a great deal of Kelley. So I gave her to him for Christmas. And I gave them all our household goods, too—hung them all on the same tree, as you might say—for after eighteen years I wanted to make her comfortable."

Some neighbors were about to condole with Garrison when he interrupted languidly:

"Oh, it's all right. I got a letter from her today, saying that she has found out she thinks a great deal more of me than she thought she thought of young Kelley. She found that out in three days, she wrote—which isn't long compared with eighteen years. So I wrote her she could come back, but that young Kelley must bring back the furnishings, too, and tack down the carpets and hang the pictures and put up the stovepipe, for I'm blessed if I'm going to do all that again."

"I don't want you to think I'm an 'Indian giver,'" Garrison concluded, half apologetically. "I'm taking her back because she wants to come back. But I'll bet you I won't have to give her away again."

Deer Rides in an Automobile.

A wild doe dashed into the streets of Lyon and caused great excitement. Chased by a crowd, it plunged through a plate glass window in the coffee store of Hutton Bros. & Johnson. A policeman pursued it to the cellar and up the back stairs, where in its wild scramble it smashed crates of crockery and overturned chests of tea. A crowd finally surrounded it and tied its feet with ropes. Game Warden Birney had to order a public automobile to get the animal away from the crowds. It was deposited in the back seat, and the chauffeur whizzed the strange party deep into the woods, where the frightened animal was liberated.

A Stepping Stone To a Throne

During the carnival at Nice, when people from all parts of the world were making merry, a masked figure wearing the dress of Mephistopheles, catching sight of a shapely and graceful girl with two flaxen braids hanging down her back—a Marguerite—followed her. The girl noticed that she was pursued by the demon and pretended to be very much in dread of him. For an hour or more she made efforts to elude him, being assisted by her friends, who found great sport in the demon chasing Marguerite and Marguerite dodging the demon. Finally the girl was withdrawn from the game and taken to a cafe for supper. Then came the fiend and sat at the next table. All being unmasked, Mephistopheles discovered a friend in Marguerite's party and secured an introduction. Then occurred the strange anomaly of a love affair between the devil and the country girl.

Soon after another affair of the heart was brought about, also by an episode between strangers. The king of Wisconsin while hunting became thirsty and, seeing a well house by the roadside, turned in for a drink, followed by all his retinue. A maiden was drawing water at the time, and, as it was not meet for a king to drink from a bucket and there was no cup, the girl offered one of her own construction. Putting her two hands together, cup fashion, she lowered them into the bucket till they were filled, then offered the king a drink.

Now, the king was very thirsty, and the maid was very pretty, and her hands were white and soft, for she was no peasant, but the daughter of a country gentleman, Herr Bischoff, who lived on the estate on which the well was situated. His majesty drank all the water in the improvised cup, then asked for more, and more, till it looked as if he would drink the well dry, but suddenly, noticing that the eyes of his retinue were upon him, he desisted, thanked the girl and rode away.

All that day, all night and the next day the king kept quaffing imaginary drafts of water from an improvised cup formed of the two shapely hands of a young girl whose lustrous eyes were the while looking into his. He was not married, though one of his foreign ambassadors was at the time negotiating for the hand of a foreign princess.

Suddenly he ordered all negotiations broken off. He had formed a plan. He would ennoble the girl who had given him to drink from the cup of flesh and blood and marry her. But when he came to propose the plan his prime minister thought that the elevation would be too sudden; that the king's prestige would suffer. He proposed instead that the lady should marry a prince of the blood, be divorced without having lived with her husband and step from the title of princess to that of queen. The king fell in with the plan at once, though it would occasion delay in his nuptials. An ambassador was dispatched to the estate of Herr Bischoff, the father of the king's choice, to make known the king's intention. Of course Herr Bischoff was delighted with the plan to make his daughter, Leona, a queen and ascended at once. The girl, strangely enough, was opposed to it. When giving her hands for a cup to the king she had given them to him as her sovereign. The king, being ill favored, made upon her a disagreeable impression. However, it was not possible for her to understand the will both of her king and her father, and the temptation to become a queen was of course very great.

Prince Metzgar, a distant cousin of the king, was selected to be the stepping stone on which Leona Bischoff should mount to a throne. An objection was raised by the king that the prince was a handsome fellow, wild and hard to manage. Possibly he might make trouble. But the ministers urged that no woman would choose to remain the wife of a mere prince without prospects when she could be a queen. Besides, there was no other person of royal blood available. So it was arranged that the wedding should take place and the prince should be ordered to a foreign station, his departure to take place at the conclusion of the ceremony.

In order to give prominence to Leona Bischoff in becoming a princess on her way to a throne Prince Metzgar was provided with ample means for a grand wedding. Herr Bischoff also being given a good sum from the royal treasury. A large party of court officials were to attend the wedding, one of whom especially represented the king and bore a magnificent wedding present. When the prince and his suit arrived, as was proper under the circumstances, he met his wife-to-be alone. Being ushered into the room where she awaited him, he made a few steps forward, then stopped. Leona started, and the two stood looking at each other in astonishment.

"Marguerite!"

"Mephistopheles!" The prince, after a brief interview, emerged, and at high noon the same day the wedding took place. The groom started for the coast where he was to take ship for his station, and the bride retired to her apartments. Just before the steamer bearing Prince Metzgar sailed a velled lady alighted from a carriage on the dock and went aboard. She was the bride. From her husband's station she wrote her sovereign begging forgiveness for preferring to remain a princess rather than become a queen. The king, of course enraged, but when finally he learned the prelude to the story he took the couple into favor. The king is still unmarried. HARRIET B. LEE.

Who Does Your Printing

THE best work should go to the best printers. Our job office is the best equipped in Western Oregon. Let us give you and estimate on your work. Every time you dress a job with out-of-date type or send out a job that is poorly done you send out a yellow dog to bark against you. As long as he barks you will lose business. Your business associates and your patrons are apt to form a poor opinion of you if you use cheap and poorly printed stationery. "Cheap" printing is dear in the long run. Our work is artistic and the price is reasonable. When you want any work see us and we will save you money and give you better work than you can get elsewhere in Eugene. If you are "from Missouri" come around and we will "show you". Don't send away for your printing when you can get better work for the same money here at home.
