THE CANTATA "QUEEN ESTHER" AT THEATRE

Will Be Presented Under Auspices of High School Friday and Saturday Nights, April 12th and 13th. Professor M. E. Robinson Directing Rehearsals

There is no more beautiful story in sacred or profane history than the story of the beautiful Queen Esther.

Ahasuerus, the Persian King, having discarded his queen, Vashti, because she had offended him, has all the beautiful women of the realm brought to his palace and from the number he selects Esther, as the most beautiful, to be his new queen. She is an orphan who has been brought up by her cousin, Mordecai, and a Jewess, though this was not known to the king.

This Mordecai was but a porter and when Haman, the favorite of the king, passed by, he did not bow down before him, as all others did, because he was a Jew and refused to worship any but God. Haman swears vengeance. He gets the king to give him power to have slaughtered all the people in the realm who are not loyal to the Persian customs. Mordecai sends word to Esther that their people are doomed and to the intruder. Of course, Esther knew this and when Mordecai sent word for her to go, she asked that he and her people should fast for three days and said that at the end of that time she would go and ask the favor of her people's life of the king and added, "If I perish, I perish."

She goes to the king on the day appointed and when he sees her he holds out the royal scepter to her. She invites the king and Haman to a banquet provided by her for them, and then to a second and when the king asks what her request is she tells him that an evil man has condemned her people to death and that she wished to have the order rescinded. When the angry king asked who should dare to do this, she said, "It is this Haman." Then the king condemned Haman to be hanged on the gallows, which his servants then tell him had been prepared for Mordecai, and Mordecai is raised to the chief place in the realm and the Jews are brought into favor all over the kingdom.

This beautiful story will be told in song by costumed persons at the Eugene theatre Friday and Saturday nights, April 12th and 13th. A large chorus is now practicing for its production. It is under the auspices and for the benefit of the High School. Prof. M. E. Robinson, of Chicago, is directing the rehearsals.

BERRY BOXES DISCUSSED BY THE FRUIT MEN

A meeting of the Lane County Horticultural Society was held in the county court room at the courthouse this afternoon, attended by about 20 members, the attendance being kept down on account of the rainstorm. Berries and berry boxes was the topic for discussion, and speeches were made by Messrs. W. G. Allen, H. F. McCornack, F. B. Chase, E. Terpening, John Maughn, Mr. Rossman and others. A motion by Mr. Allen that the society recommend that all berry growers use the folding "hallock" boxes, that the chair appoint a committee of three berry growers to take orders for the boxes, that the secretary give notice of appointment of the committee to the growers, and that all orders be filed with the committee by May 1, was carried. President McCornack appointed W. G. Allen, M. H. Harlow and F. B. Chase on the committee.

only she can save them by going to the king and interceding for their lives. Now, there was a Persian law that no person had a right to come before the king uninvited, and if any one dared to do this that person would be executed forthwith by the guards who stood at the door of the throne room, unless the king should hold out the golden scepter

There is considerable discussion of the affairs of the city. One who listens and keeps silent soon finds out that the city council is between the devil and the deep sea. If they don't get good there will be trouble, and if they go ahead there will be trouble for them because it will involve a great expense to the city and there are those who will not stand for this.

Our houses are all numbered and our street names are displayed to the public. We are now waiting for the unwinding of the red tape that will allow the government to give us free
