NEW INDUSTRY FOR CITY OF SPRINGFIELD

One of Largest Foundries In State To Locate There Soon. Also a Steam Laundry - Man With Booze Tries to Set Fire to Jail - Another Business Change

The News is in a position to announce from good authority that Springfield will have in the very near future one of the largest foundries in the state. The gentleman who is contemplating locating his plant at Springfield was in the city Wednesday making preliminary arrangements.

The locating of the foundry, like that of the sash and door factory, the bakery and laundry is through the efforts of the Commercial Club and the liberality of our enterprising citizens. They have organized with a determined effort to make Springfield the leading manufacturing city in Oregon, and their earnest efforts are meeting with the desired results. The above mentioned industries are now past the prospective point and are a certainty, though it takes time to get the affairs arranged so as to start building operations. However, by the time the weather is settled Springfield will be one of the busiest, liveliest and best towns to be found in the whole state of Oregon, and all who do not believe that Springfield is forging to the front should come and investigate.

Bad Man With Booze.

A young man by the name of King who hails from the forks of the Santiam and who has gained some unenviable notoriety in Springfield heretofore, was arrested last Thursday and placed in durance vile for making himself obnoxious and disturbing the tranquility of the city. Shortly after his incarceration smoke was seen to issue from the "calabazo," accompanied by yells which the Oregon maidens to the Jamestown exposition would do well to emulate. The fire alarm was turned in, but further than a quick response by our efficient hose company, there was "nothing doing" as the fire was extinguished without the use of a hose.

King was taken before Justice of the Peace Smith Tuesday evening and sent on his way rejoicing without even imposing a fine. This is indeed a poor example and does not help in the least to better the moral conditions of the community.

New Laundry.

Direct information comes to us that a first-class laundry will be established in Springfield within the next thirty days. The project will be partly capitalized by one of our leading business men who has had some experience in the laundry business. The field is certainly large enough for a plant of this kind and we predict success to the undertaking.

Another Business Change.

The Springfield Provision Company changed hands this morning, the new proprietors being Messrs. Frank Whitman and Chas. Hardt. Both young men are well known here, having been engaged at the Peoples' meat market for the past several months.—News.

CAPTAIN HAMMOND FINDS MUCH ENTHUSIASM

Militia Meeting at Cottage Grove Thursday Night Largely Attended —B. K. Lawson Offers to Erect Brick Building, Upper Story to be Used for Armory.

Captain C. C. Hammond, of Co. A, returned yesterday afternoon from Cottage Grove, where he was sent by Adjutant General Finzer to ascertain the conditions looking to the organization of an infantry company in that city. He says the meeting held Thursday night was attended by over seventy of the men who had signed the petition for the company and by over 200 other citizens of the city and that the enthusiasm is great. The whole town wants the company and the people will do everything to encourage it. The matter of suitable quarters was discussed, and the captain learned that provisions had been made for a hall to be occupied for a few months and B. K. Lawson, one of the promoters of the enterprise, who is talked of as being the choice of one of the commissioned officers, has offered to erect a new two-story brick block, the upper floor to be used as an armory. Captain Hammond has sent in a favorable report to the adjutant general, and it is thought that it will not be long before orders come to muster in the company.

QUEEN ESTHER SCORES SUCCESS AT THEATRE

The cantata, "Queen Esther," drew a crowded house at the Eugene theatre last night and every one there seemed to enjoy the production. The affair was a success from every standpoint, and Professor Robinson, who directed it, the high school, under whose auspices it was given, and the members of the cast, all of whom did well, are to be congratulated. The choruses were all excellent and the costuming elaborate. Everything was carried out without the least error, reflecting great credit upon the director, who had only two weeks in which to drill the members of the cast.

Perhaps the best individual performers were Miss Ethelyn Barbour, as Queen Esther; Dr. Ira Bartle as King Ahasuerus; W. D. Farrand, as the high priest; Miss Ruth McCallum, as Haman's wife; W. B. Neal as Haman; W. C. Moran, as Mordecai; Miss Hazel Huff, as Mordecai's sister, and Miss Marjorie Young, as the prophetess. All the others did well, but these, in the order named, in our opinion, were the top notches. A matinee was given this afternoon and the performance will be repeated again tonight. The seats are selling well for the performance tonight and another good audience is looked for.

ALICE NELSEN'S PALM.

"More than this—the palm is destined to move in the atmosphere of nobility." "My! But isn't that just splendid! Will they come to hear me sing?"

And Alice Nelsen searched anxiously Professor Chesterfield's brown piercing eyes. The palmist and thought reader continued in a careless and unemotional monotone:

"This line of sun rising from the upper palms and breaking abruptly at this line in intuition bespeaks of a brilliancy that may rise to recognition from even those of highest descent."

The winsome prima donna was sitting as still as a mouse now, her soul hanging on tenter hooks.

"These broken conditions of this line of the head—and struggling as they are to cross Luan—warn you to guard well your health, your nerve structure.

A shadow crossed the singer's face and the intended interrogation of her maid was abruptly interrupted by Miss Nelsen laying the forefinger of her disengaged hand upon her lips. "You are threatened to act and sing with your nerves, whereas your song, like your intuition, should come from within, untrammelled and free."

Professor Chesterfield now arose to his full height, and then, bending over the child-like hand, spoke privately and at some length upon affairs of privacy.

"No matter where I go," cried the prima donna, "I can never be grateful enough to my own country for what it has done for me. Even if, as you say, Professor Chesterfield, I shall reach these honors, I can never be sufficiently grateful to my friends and the people."

Professor Chesterfield is doing a thriving business in the line of palm reading. His parlors are constantly thronged from morning until night. His parlors are located at 642 Willamette street. They remain open until 8 p. m. week days and all day Sunday.
