REAL TAINTED MONEY

"Tainted money" is no joke to the two Pittsburg bank clerks who are laid up with septic infection of the thumbs from handling the "rags." Just how far our ragged and disreputable paper money is responsible for the spread of disease even the doctors are unable to tell us, but that there is some danger in it is undeniable. These bank clerks each had a small, unnoticed abrasion on the thumb that became contaminated. According to the Pittsburg Dispatch large bundles of mutilated paper currency are daily shipped by the banks of that city to Washington to be redeemed by the treasury department, but the "rags" continue to pile up from depositors.

In our domestic commerce banknotes and United States Treasury notes are the most convenient form of funds, but there should be some way of overcoming the objection of filthiness so inexorably attached to paper bills, especially of small denomination. Even if all the banks agreed to issue none but new notes, the evil would be overcome only to a certain extent, as tens of thousands of these bills pass from hand to hand and never get to a bank at all. Therefore it is quite likely that, notwithstanding the recognized danger and the repugnance with which we handle the ragged and maladorous bills, we shall continue to circulate and possess the tainted money, trusting our safety to the charm of its unassailable power to overcome many of the prosaic ills of life.

The growing town of Lewiston, Idaho, about the same size as Eugene, is preparing contracts for street paving this year that will cost over a quarter of a million dollars. There will be no protests worth while in that enterprising community, and no injunctions against the improvement. Pendleton, Oregon, which did its first paving last year, after a protracted struggle with the mossback element, expects to pave twelve more blocks this year without opposition from any source. It has proved the best investment ever made by that city. Eugene will have a similar experience if the Willamette Valley Company and Warren Construction Company ever rub their eyes open sufficiently to get to work in this city.

Bernadine Buckley, of Whitehall, N. Y., sixteen-year-old daughter of wealthy parents, varied the usual program by eloping with and marrying a street laborer instead of one of the servants. She was afterward kidnaped by agents of the family and a divorce may be expected in due course of time.

Florida's legislature is a "house divided against itself," the senate declaring the fourteenth and fifteenth amendments to the United States constitution to be void, and the house of representatives that the amendments are still there, though not doing much business in Dixie.

Secretary Root says campaign funds are one of the most useful expenditures of money, from a public point of view, because the bulk of it goes for political education of voters. Now if he can prove that the "bulk" goes for that purpose he can get his views unanimously endorsed.

Nothing unusual about the talk of bribery in connection with the Wisconsin senatorial election—it always goes with the deadlocking of a legislature. Better adopt the Oregon plan, even if it does result in putting a Jonathan Bourne into the senate occasionally.

Here's another knock at state's rights—the United States supreme court holds that express companies may deliver C. O. D. packages containing liquor shipped from another state regardless of local prohibition laws, reversing the Kentucy court of appeals.

The writer who said that the shamrock grew in China three or four thousand years ago is doubtless trying to bring about more harmonious relations between the Chinese and Irish, but Pat is a hard man to be bamboozled.

According to Ambassador Bryce, the love of neither David and Jonathan nor Damon and Pythias was a marker to that of John Bull for Uncle Sam. That man is onto his job all right, and earning the big salary he gets.

Many may have forgotten the shooting up of Brownsville, but the members of the senate military committee, which has resumed the investigation, have not been allowed to do so.

Peary's difficulty in getting the coin to pay for another dash at the pole indicates another increase of caution or of common sense among those who usually back such expeditions.

No man as widely advertised as a born fighter as Foraker has been could afford to lie down and be walked over by anybody. Much better a good licking.

General Horatio C. King, who recently declared Christian Science to be a humbug, has deflected some of the firing that was concentrated on Mark Twain.

The report that J. Pierpont Morgan is to change his religion must have been quite a jolt to those who did not know that he had any to change.

Nobody should hold it against the Spanish royal kid that he had nine names tacked to him—he din't have any say about it.

A SORROWFUL TALE

This is the sorrowful story
  Told when the twilight fails,
And the monkeys walked together,
  Holding each other's tails.

"Our fathers lived in the forest;
  Foolish people were they;
They went down to the cornland
  To teach the farmers to play.

"Our fathers frisked in the millet,
  Our fathers skipped in the wheat,
Our fathers hung on the branches
  Our fathers danced in the street.

"Then came the terrible farmers:
  Nothing of play they knew,
Only they caught our fathers
  And set them to labor, too!

"Set them to work in the cornland.
  With plows and sickles and flails,
Put them in mud-walled prisons,
  And cut off their beautiful tails.

"Now we can watch our fathers,
  Sullen and bowed and old,
Stooping over the millet,
  Sharing the silly mold.

"Driving a foolish furrow
  Mending a muddy yoke,
Sleeping in mud-walled prisons,
  Steeping their food in smoke.

"We may not speak to our fathers,
  For if the farmers knew,
They would come up to the forest
  And set us to labor too."

This is the horrible story,
  Told as the twilight fails,
And the monkeys walk together,
  Holding each other's tails.

A Sane College Rush.
(Portland Telegram.)

If evidence were needed to the effect that Oregon University is doing splendid work for the young men and women who attend that institution, and that those same young men and women are possessed of the proper quantity of Oregon common sense, that evidence is at hand in the celebration of Junior day. May 17 was Junior day at the university. An appropriate celebration was due and an appropriate celebration was held. There was no indulgence in the oldtime class rush, or in any similar manifestation of mental and physical foolishness, which leads to violence and conduces to hoodlumism.

In lieu of the traditional practice, which we might assert was presumed to obtain to convince the people of Oregon that the young men who attended the university were not mollycoddles, the day was spent in building cement walks about the grounds. The walks were needed and their construction would have been a matter of expense to the university. The young men did all the work under the direction of the undergraduate civil engineers, and the young women—co-eds— attended to the pyhsical needs of the workers in the matter of providing luncheon.

The state of Oregon acquired added credit and distinction from this event. The celebration of the day was sane—pre-eminently sane—and not only sane, but useful. Neither was there anything of the mollycoddle in the event. This newer method reflects high credit upon the university, on both authorities and the student body. It bespeaks the splendid character of training that obtains, and is complimentary to the sound sense of the student body.

Due to Climate.
(Portland Telegram.)

It is just as well to take note of the fact that the Oregon athlete is a living testimonial to the salubrity and healthful quality of the Oregon climate.

READY FOR THE HUNT.

Even a dog has character—yes, even a pup. It is well worth while to study the faces of these three fine puppies, reposing in the pockets of the old hunting coat. This is no pazzle picture. With half an eye one can read the thoughts of these fine young fellows. They are thinking of home and mother. Which is your 'avorite?

LONG FELT WANT IN EUGENE.

While working in the largest dyeing and cleaning works on the coast and while there seeing lots of garments shipped from Eugene to be dye-cleaned, or dyed, and after investigating and going over the ground thoroughly we saw at once that there was a good opening for a first-class cleaning and dyeing works in Eugene, so we decided to put in a first-class plant and are doing well from the start. We are the only experts in this line north of SanFrancisco, and have had over 12 years' experience and guarantee all work. All articles dyed and cleaned by us are treated separately for sanitary purposes and done by hand. In this way we obtain good results and as no machinery is used in our work that will tear or injure the fabric.

Everything possible in cleaning or dyeing. Eugene Dye Works, 659 Willamette street. 'Phone Red 2861. C. Marx, Jr., manager.
