BETTER MAIL SERVICE FOR SPRINGFIELD

Pouches Will Hereafter Be Dropped Off at the Junction - Planing Mill Will Soon Be in Operation. Change in Free Methodist Pastors - Other Notes

Postmaster Roberts authorized the News to state that he as at last received word that a mail route would be established between the Junction and Springfield, which will go into effect Monday, May 27. Heretofore the mail from both the south and north has been put off at Eugene, taken to the postoffice to sort, and then handed by stage to Springfield. Under the new rule the mail will be pouches, and delivered to the Junction, giving from an hour to an hour and a half quicker delivery. The afternoon mail from Portland, for example, which usually arrives at Springfield at 4 o'clock, will now arrive at not later than 2:30 p. m. Then the outgoing mail will also give more time, for mail that now leaves for Portland at 10:15 a. m. will be held till about 11:30.

Will Soon Operate.
The Springfield sash and door factory will soon be ready to start the wheels rolling. We are informed that the machinery has all arrived, and is being placed in position, and that the only thing that now detains the operators is the electric motor which has not yet arrived but is expected on every train. It is understood that the factory will be ready for operation some time next week, and that several orders are now waiting.

Change in Pastors.
Rev. D. J. Goode, who has been pastor of the Free Methodist church at Springfield Junction during the past year, will go to Salem to take charge of the parish at that place for the coming year and Rev. E. J. Harrington will fill the place made vacant by Mr. Goode. Rev. H. J. Blair, who has held the appointments at Donna, Marcola and Parsons Creek, will go to Falls City.

Postoffice Open.
Postmaster Roberts informs us that hereafter the lobby of the postoffice will be open at all hours on Sunday and holidays. The hours will be from 7 o'clock a. m. to 7:30 p. m. This will be a great convenience to those who are unable to get to the office during the hour that the mail is being distributed. Those who have a box will appreciate the new Sunday service.

Sewer Material.
The first carload of material for the sewer system arrived Tuesday and is now being unloaded along the right-of-way. The shipment consisted of 12-inch laterals. Another car of 14-inch mains is expected at any time and as soon as it arrives work will at once commence.

Billiard Parlor.
Wm. Cheshire has rented the J. E. Stewart building, formerly occupied by Luckey & Anderson, and will convert it into a pool and billiard hall. This will be run in connection with his cigar and confectionery.

NEWS OF JUNCTION CITY AND VICINITY

The Junction second nine defeated Lancaster on the grounds of the latter Sunday by the score of 10 to 3.

While watching a game of ball last Sunday at Lancaster, Bertie Tripp, the nine-year-old son of William Tripp, was struck in the face with a ball. His nose was broken and his face was severely bruised besides. It was a pretty close call, as it might have killed him.

A surprise party was given Mr. and Mrs. S. Nielsen at the Dane church Sunday afternoon, the date being the 25th anniversary of their marriage. A large crowd was present and the event was greatly enjoyed by all. They were the recipients of quite a number of nice presents. The surprise was complete, as Mr. and Mrs. Nielsen had no knowledge of the occasion until they arrived at the church.

A train of cattle consisting of thirty-five cars was unloaded here Tuesday for feed and rest. They were loaded at Bakersfield, California, and were billed for Seattle. The cattle numbered about 800 head and were of the Mexican variety with a great spread of horns. They were driven out to Washburne's field, where they were fed several tons of hay. It was a very attractive sight and many visited the field during the two days they remained.—Times.

A LONG FELT WANT

While working in the largest dyeing and cleaning works on the coast and while there seeing lots of garments shipped from Eugene to be dyed-cleaned, or dyed, and after investigating and going over the ground thoroughly we saw at once that there was a good opening for a first-class cleaning and dyeing works in Eugene, so we decided to put in a first-class plant and are doing well from the start. We are the only experts in this line north of San Francisco, and have had over 12 years' experience and guarantee all work. All articles dyed and cleaned by us are treated separately for sanitary purposes and done by hand. In this way we obtain good results and as no machinery is used in our work that will tear or injure the fabric.

Everything possible in cleaning and dyeing. Eugene Dye Works, 625 Willamette street. Phone Red 2861. C. Marx, Jr., manager.

LINCOLN
THE MAN OF PEACE
BY
GEN. HORACE PORTER

Abraham Lincoln was of humble birth; he early had to struggle with the trials of misfortune, and to learn the first lessons of life in the severe school of adversity. He came from that class which he always alluded to as the plain people. He always possessed their confidence, he never lost his hold on their affections. He believed that the government was made for the people, and not the people for the government, and that true Republicanism was like a torch—the more it is shaken in the hands of the people the brighter it burns. If at the height of his power any one had sneered at him on account of his humble origin, he might well have replied, like the Marshal of France, who was raised from the ranks to a dukedom, when he told the haughty nobles of Vienna, who boasted of their long lines of descent and refused to associate with him: "I am an ancestor; you are only descendants."

Abraham Lincoln possessed in a remarkable degree that most uncommon of all virtues, common sense. With him there was no practicing the arts of the demagogue, no posing for effect, no attitudinizing in public, no mawkish sentimentality. There was none of that puppyism so often bred by power. There was none of that dogmatism that Dr. Johnson said was only puppyism grown to maturity.

While his mind was one great storehouse of facts and useful information, he laid no claim to any knowledge he did possess. He believed with Addison that pedantry in learning is like hypocrisy in religion, a form of knowledge without the power of it.

While he was singularly adroit and patient in smoothing down the ruffled feathers of friends who did not understand him, or even of political opponents, he wasted no time upon the absolute recalcitrants. He never attempted to massage the back of a political porcupine. And, as he once said himself, he always found it was a losing game to try to shovel fleas across a barnyard.

There are two names of presidents that will always be inseparably associated in our minds—Washington and Lincoln. But, from the manner in which modern historians magnify trivial acts, you would suppose one had spent his entire life in cutting down trees and the other in splitting them up into rails. There was one marked difference between them—Washington could not tell a story; Lincoln always could.

But he told them not for the anecdote, but to clinch a fact, to point a moral.

Ah, it was that humor of his that was his safety-valve. It lightened his mind and relieved it for the time from the great responsibilities that were weighing upon him. He could cut the sting from the keenest criticism with his wit, he could elude disappointment with a joke. He knew better than most men that in speech wit is to eloquence what in music melody is to harmony.

But his mind was not always attuned to mirth; its chords were too often set to strains of sadness. There was the slaughter in the field, the depletion of the treasury, complications which arose. All these were so appalling that sometimes even the great soul of Lincoln seemed ready to melt. But just when the gloom was blackest he never, never took counsel of his fears. He always had the courage of his convictions. He never had occasion to look to the past with regret, nor cast to the future with apprehension.

My Best Friend
Alexander Benton, who lives on Rural Route 1, Fort Edward, N. Y., says: "Dr. King's New Discovery is my best earthly friend. It cured me of asthma six years ago. It has also performed a wonderful cure of incipient consumption for my wife. The first bottle ended the terrible cough, and this accomplished the other symptoms left one by one, until she was perfectly well. Dr. King's New Discovery's power over coughs and colds is simply marvelous." No other remedy has ever equalled it. Fully guaranteed by W. L. Delano, druggist. 50c and $1. Trial bottle free.
