Dealers Hasten to Disclaim Connection With Trust and Promise to Be Good

Assistant United States Attorney James Cole was deluged with callers at his office today in the persons of men who were indicted by the Federal grand jury in connection with the furniture tax. The callers not only came in person but many were represented by attorneys, while some came in company with their attorneys.

All were anxious to disclaim connection with the trust, while many were on the verge of hysteria for fear of possible conviction for combining to regulate and maintain prices in the furniture industry. Many knew that the government had a strong case against them and were ready to make almost any kind of stipulation that would tend to mitigate the penalty they stand in fear of.
