TELEGRAPHERS STRIKE IN SAN FRANCISCO

San Francisco, June 21.—The telegraph operators in the employ of the Western Union and Postal companies in San Francisco struck at 1 o'clock this afternoon. This strike is purely local and will not affect the Eastern offices. President Small of the telegraphers' union, is in conference with the local committee. He has seen the statement issued yesterday by President Clowry, of the Western Union, but says that will make no difference as far as the situation in San Francisco is concerned.

President Small said last night after the meeting of the union: "Our plans are fully prepared and we will carry the fight to the halls of congress before we are through. We do not intend to declare a general strike throughout the country, but we will carry on a guerilla warfare which will continue until we secure justice and consideration. We will call a series of local strikes in the various cities of the country which will paralyze traffic. We intend to continue this fight until congress meets, then we propose to place the whole matter in the hands of the lawmakers."

JUDGE MURPHY DEAD AT SALEM

Salem, Or., June 20.—Judge J. J. Murphy, clerk of the supreme court for over 20 years, dropped dead on the street here last night. Heart disease was the cause. He was the father of Chester G. Murphy, of Portland. He was an Odd Fellow and a Mystic Shriner. He sustained a paralytic stroke three years ago, but apparently fully recovered. His age was 75.

AOKI MAY REMAIN IN AMERICA

Tokio, June 21.—While there is a unanimity of opinion here that Ambassador Aoki is unfitted for the post at Washington and it is certain attempts have been made to remove him, he has a powerful political support. Unless strong proof can be furnished that Aoki is persona non grata at Washington, it is not likely that Viscount Hayashi will take the initiative in removing him. There are rumors, however, that the ambassador is very unpopular not alone with the Japanese, but with Americans generally.

SCHMITZ MAY BE RELEASED ON BAIL

MARK TWAIN IN HIS WHITE SUIT.

Mark Twain was already famous throughout the world when he began to wear his white flannel suit. Now he is still more so. He holds the theory that it is nobody's business how a man dresses except the business of the man himself, and he declares that he prefers white. The noted author wears white flannels winter and summer whenever he feels like it. No sort of weather deters him from donning the white clothes. With his silky white hair and mustache, this immaculate raiment completes a very striking picture.

DEFENSE ASKS FOR VERDICT FOR HAYWOOD

STATE CLOSES ITS CASE AT BOISE AT TEN-THIRTY THIS MORNING AND LEAD IS NOW WITH THE DEFENSE

Charles H. Kingsley, Handwriting Expert, Testifies That Writing on Waivers of Telegrams Sent From Pettibone's Store Same That Wrote Letter to John L. Stearns.

Boise, June 21.—The state this morning made its last tender of evidence against Haywood and the lead is now with the defense, which will this afternoon ask for a verdict for the prisoner. The state closed the case at 11:30 o'clock this morning.

Two important pieces of testimony were offered this morning. Charles S. Kingsley, a handwriting expert, was called and testified that the writing of waivers on money telegrams sent from Pettibone's store in Denver in the names of "J. Wolf" and "P. Bone" to "H. Green" in San Francisco was done by the same hand that penned Pettibone's letter to John L. Stearns. A stipulation by the defense admitting the fact that Haywood telegraphed money to Steve Adams at Ogden in 1903 and a ruling of the court denying admission to dissenting opinion in the Moyer habeas corpus case in Colorado cleared the direct work of the prosecution and opened the way to the plea and case of the defense.

Corroborative Testimony.

Jim Seehorn, a colored horse dealer of Denver, testified to the sale of a horse and buggy to Haywood. This was to corroborate Orchard's statement that the team had been bought by Haywood in order to get about quickly in their various undertakings. After describing the terms of the sale Seehorn was asked if he knew who the man was besides Orchard with whom he dealt. The negro replied he had seen the man and would recognize him. The prosecution asked if the man was in the court-room and the negro pointed to Haywood, saying:

"Yes, that's the man."

There was a pause and the silence was broken only by the stir among the spectators. It was the first direct connection of Haywood with Orchard and a strong corroboration of Orchard's story. The negro testified further that the bill of sale for the outfit was made to Pettibone. Seehorn was the state's last witness.

PROFESSOR HERBERT DIES IN HOSPITAL

Portland, June 21.—Professor Geo. H. Herbert, of Walla Walla, who was shot by C. H. Reynolds Tuesday afternoon, died at the Good Samaritan hospital yesterday. Before the end came the dying man rallied long enough to make an ante-mortem statement to Assistant District Attorney Adams, in which he denied having visited Mrs. Reynolds with any wrong motive. He emphatically declared that his trip to Portland was purely on business and that his call at the Reynolds home was for the purpose of looking over some music composed by Mrs. Reynolds, on which she had requested him to pass his opinion and suggest changes he might think best before the music was published.

O'BRIEN SAYS TRAINS WILL RUN ON TIME

Salem, Or., June 21.—The Oregon railroad commission today received a letter from General Manager O'Brien, of the Southern Pacific line in Oregon, saying that he has been advised by General Manager Calvin, of the lines in California, that passenger train No. 12 will hereafter be delivered at Ashland on time. In view of this information Mr. O'Brien feels assured that the train will go through the Willamette Valley on time and reach Portland according to schedule.

It seems that most of the delay has occurred in California. Now that the California management has arranged to get the train over its lines without delay, it devolves on the Oregon managers to see that no time is lost here.

FRENCH TROOPS DESERT AND JOIN THE WINEGROWERS

Paris, June 21.—A battalion of the Seventeenth Infantry, stationed at Agde, after breaking into the arsenal, deserted with arms and ammunition and joined the insurgent winegrowers at Beziers, headquarters of the regiment. The battalion was recruited mostly from the winegrowers and numbered about 400. The deserters tried to enlist the sympathies of the remainder of the regiment, but failing to do this they promised to eject them from their barracks.

After stacking arms the deserters announced their intention to remain in the square until allowed to reoccupy their barracks, from which they were transferred recently. The people gave them a warm welcome and furnished them ample food and supplies of straw, upon which the tired soldiers threw themselves, after stationing pickets and proclaiming their intention to defend their lives in the event of being attacked. News of this momentous defection of troops, together with other mutinous eruptions at various points in revolting provinces, reached the government this morning and is causing the gravest concern.

Beziers, June 21.—General Bailoud arrived here this afternoon and after an interview with the mutineers of the Seventeenth Infantry they decided to return to their regiment.

SANGUINARY CONFLICTS OCCUR AT NARBONNE

Paris, June 20.—Owing to conscription in the south, only brief items of news of the winegrowers' demonstrations have reached Paris. These, however, showed conflicts between the troops and mobs more sanguinary than at first supposed. At Narbonne three were killed and a full hundred soldiers and civilians, including a score of women, are said to have been wounded, several fatally.

The troops, which were ordered to fire in the air, shot straight at the mobs besieging them in the courtyard of the sub-prefecture. A whole army corps has been put in motion to deal with the rebellious winegrowers, but the government claims its forces are so distributed as to isolate different sections and render it practically impossible to effect a general mobilization of disaffected people.

Newspapers are devoting columns to his sayings and doings.

He will take luncheon with the chancellor of the university after the conferring of degrees, and on the following day the dean, canon and students will give a dinner in his honor.
