POOR BABY'S FACE ITCHED TERRIBLY

Face and Neck Covered with Inflamed Skin — Suffered Terribly —Mother Took Her to Doctors and Colleges to No Avail — Lost Faith in Medicines — Friend Suggested Cuticura Remedies and

CHILD IS NOW THE PICTURE OF HEALTH

"My baby's face and neck were covered with itching skin similar to eczema, and she suffered terribly for over a year. I took her to a number of doctors, and also to different colleges to no avail. Then Cuticura Remedies were recommended to me by Miss G—, who was telling me how they helped her. I did not use it at first, as I had tried so many other remedies without any favorable results. At last I tried Cuticura Soap, Cuticura Ointment, and Cuticura Resolvent Pills, and to my surprise noticed an improvement. After using three boxes of the Cuticura Ointment, together with the Soap and Pills, I am pleased to say she is altogether a different child and the picture of health, and now I have a firm belief in Cuticura Remedies and would not be without them in the house. I will gladly let you publish this testimonial as I would like others to have the same benefit that we did, and you may be sure I will recommend them strongly to everybody I know and to those I don't know, too. Mrs. A. C. Brestlin, 171 N. Lincoln St., Chicago, Ill., Oct. 20 and 30, 1906."

SUED BY TWO MEN.

Each Swears Brooklyn Schoolteacher Is His Wife.

ASKS ALIMONY FROM BOTH.

Woman, Undisturbed by Her Odd Fix, Continues to Draw $960 a Year From School Board While Demanding That Plaintiffs Jointly Pension Her.

Though she is calmly teaching the children in public school No. 23, at Conselyea and Humboldt streets, Brooklyn, it was developed in the Kings county supreme court that Miss Ada M. Kollmyer is defendant in two suits entered by two men who are trying to get legal freedom from her. One is seeking for an absolute divorce, while the other is suing to have his marriage to the teacher annulled on the ground that she had never been divorced from the other. Though she is registered as Miss Ada M. Kollmyer in the record of the school board, it was stated in court that her real name is Mrs. Ada M. Kollmyer-King-Hays.

The history of her unusual marriage relations came out before Justice Kelly in the special term of the Kings county supreme court when she appeared, through counsel, in a motion for temporary allmony and counsel fee in one of the suits.

SHE REPRESENTED THAT SHE HAD BEEN DIVORCED.

This suit in which the teacher appeared as a defendant was entered by John P. King, a traveling salesman, who alleges that he married her in 1898.

King in his complaint placed emphasis on the point that he was only twenty years old when he met Miss Kollmyer at a summer resort, while she was several years his senior. But that appeared to be no bar to their happiness till his wife began to show plainly that she had a strong mind of her own.

Exasperated by his wife's determination to have her way, King finally packed his trunk and left her. That was in 1900. He never heard from her again till one day in 1906 when he met a mutual girl friend in Manhattan.

"Do you know that Ada has a divorce from you," asked the girl, "and that she has been married to another man?"

King was shocked by the question. Then the girl told him that his wife had obtained a divorce in New Jersey and had been married to a Dr. Hays, whom she had met in Yonkers. King went home that night thinking hard. He wondered how his wife could have obtained a divorce without his knowing anything about it.

A search through the records of the Jersey courts revealed the fact that Mrs. King had obtained a divorce in some manner unknown to him. The court records stated that the divorce was granted on the ground of desertion. But as King maintained no papers in the suit had ever been served on him he decided to investigate further. He trailed his wife to Yonkers. There he learned that in April, 1906 she had met and married Dr. John R. Hays, who has an office at 429 Sixth avenue, New York city.

King looked up Dr. Hays and explained the case to him. Hays was astounded, King said, when he learned that King insisted that the woman still was his wife.

"Why," said Hays in amazement, "she represented to me that she had been divorced from you."

The two men consulted further. In a few days Dr. Hays entered a suit for annulment of his marriage with the teacher on the ground she was still the wife of King, because in the suit in which she alleged she obtained a divorce no papers had ever been served on King.

King went back to Brooklyn and entered a suit for divorce, naming Dr. Hays as the corespondent. King began his suit in Kings county, while Dr. Hays entered his action in Manhattan. As corespondent in King's suit Hays made an affidavit, in which he corroborated everything said about the alleged illegal divorce and the teacher's representation that she had been divorced from King. In Hays' suit for the annulment of his marriage to the teacher King swore to an affidavit setting forth that the teacher was still his wife.

The young teacher's determination to fight both actions to a finish was indicated by her motion for allmony and counsel fee in the King suit. In opposing the motion, in which she asked for an allowance of $25 a week and $250 for counsel from King, Henry R. Willis of 220 Broadway, counsel for King, argued that the teacher's motion should not be granted because she had made a similar motion in the suit entered by Hays.

Willis also read a letter from Superintendent Maxwell. The superintendent said that Miss Kollmyer, as she is known in school No. 23, is getting a yearly salary of $960. A woman getting such a salary, Willis argued, should not ask such a large allowance from her husband.

When seen in her home in Brooklyn the young schoolteacher smilingly alleged that King and Hays were in a conspiracy against her. She pointed out that the affidavits of one were corroborated by the other in both suits. When asked whether she really obtained a divorce from King she warmly announced that of course she did.

"But are you not afraid that these suits will affect your position as teacher?" she was asked.

"Oh, no; not at all," she replied. "All my principals and the teachers with whom I work have known of the unfortunate suits for a long time."

The teacher, who is a brunette of slender build, said she had been supporting her father and mother for years as an instructor.

When asked whether it was true she had applied for allmony in both cases she said she did not know what her attorney had done and that questions of that nature could best be answered by him.
