EUGENE YOUNG LADY TELLS OF COLUMBIA WRECK

MISS CARRIE MARTIN, WELL-KNOWN SCHOOL TEACHER, REACHES HER HOME IN THIS CITY TODAY, AFTER THRILLING EXPERIENCE AND NARROW ESCAPE FROM DEATH ON THE OCEAN

Miss Carrie Martin, the only Eugene person on the steamer Columbia at the time of the terrible disaster off Shelter Cove at midnight on Saturday, arrived home on the afternoon train from the north today. She came north on the steamer Geo. W. Elder, which arrived at Portland at 5 o'clock last evening, and spent the night in that city, desiring to rest a few hours before coming on up to Eugene.

Miss Martin was met at the train this afternoon by her mother, Mrs. Mary Martin, her sister, Mrs. Wm. J. Gross, and a number of friends. She was a tearful yet joyful meeting. Mrs. Martin was all but overcome with emotion, her joy at seeing her daughter, whom she believed for awhile to be lost in the wreck, was so great.

A Guard reporter called at the Martin home at the corner of East Twelfth and High streets shortly after the arrival of the train, and heard from Miss Martin's lips a brief but vivid story of her experience in the wreck. She was awakened by a slight jar as the two vessels came together. She then heard the swishing of the water as they poured into the hull of the Columbia through the great hole made by the San Pedro's bow, and she at once knew something was wrong. She arose and began to put on a life preserver, but soon heard some one above shout "All is well." She then took off the life preserver and began putting on a heavy coat but again she heard from above the shout, "Life preservers." She fastened the preserver around her body and went on deck. She was unable to stand as the vessel was then going down and the deck was at such an angle that she could not keep her footing. Upon reaching the railing of the vessel some one told her to jump and she did, landing safely in a small boat. This occurred at about 12:30 o'clock. A few minutes after 1 o'clock the boat which she occupied was pulled alongside the San Pedro and the party taken aboard. The San Pedro was in a half sunk condition and was drifting helplessly, but there was no danger of her sinking on account of her cargo of lumber aboard. At 6 o'clock in the morning the Geo. W. Elder lay in sight and the rescued passengers of the Columbia and the crew of the San Pedro were taken aboard.

After an uneventful run to Eureka, where the San Pedro, which had been taken in tow by the Elder, was left, the vessel proceeded north, arriving at Astoria yesterday morning. Miss Martin had no time to observe the actions of the officers on the Columbia, but says the officers of the San Pedro treated the survivors with every courtesy and kindness. She thinks that Captain Doran of the Columbia could have saved himself by the use of a life preserver, even after he saw the last person off the vessel.

At the home of the bride's parents, Counselman and Mrs. A. W. Gilbert, on Olive street in Eugene, Wednesday evening, July 24, 1907, Arthur C. S. Striker and Miss Pearl Ida Gilbert, Rev. H. N. Mount, pastor of the Central Presbyterian church, officiating. The wedding was attended by quite a number of the friends and relatives of the couple, who are among Eugene's best known young people. The bride acted as Goddess of Liberty at the celebration here on the Fourth of July. The groom is a son of A. N. Striker and is engaged in the carpentering business with his father. The couple left this morning for the upper Willamette, where the groom is at work.

At the Brown hop yard, north of Eugene, July 24, 1897, W. F. Greag, of Westfield, and Miss Bertha Fletcher, of Eugene, Rev. O. C. Wright officiating.

EUGENE BUSINESS COLLEGE HAS BRIGHT PROSPECTS

Many Students Coming for the Fall Term—Summer School Now in Session and Number of Students Taking Course in Shorthand.

The Eugene Business College, which was formerly located in the Hall building, but which was moved to the Rankin building during the spring, is one of the city's permanent institutions, and is recognized as one of the best schools of its kind in the state.

The school has been kept open during the entire summer, doing work in shorthand, several students taking the course. The regular fall session begins about the first of September, some earlier than usual. Principal W. J. Hooker says there are very bright prospects for a large attendance this fall, many of the old students expressing their intention of returning and many new ones will be enrolled.

The school's new quarters are very handsomely arranged. The entire upper floor of the Rankin building is devoted to the use of the school, it being divided into several rooms, including an office, a main class room, a typewriter room and a shorthand room. The main class room has a capacity for ninety pupils at present, and more can be accommodated by rearranging the desks and adding others. In the rear portion of this room there will be built an office where practical banking and office work will be taught.

The shorthand room has a capacity for thirty students. There are ten or a dozen typewriters in use at present and more will be added by the time the fall term begins. Principal Hooker is assisted in conducting the school by Mrs. Mary Ransom, who is at the head of the shorthand department. There will be other instructors added as soon as the fall sessions begin.
