WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 7

RAILROAD CARNAGE GROWING EACH YEAR

The killing of people on railways continues to make a horrible record, says the August Reader. Rather more than a death for every hour of the day, and ten persons maimed for every sixty minutes is something a people not seared against slaughter should find to trouble sleep until it is remedied. Every minute there is a collision or derailment. During a year there is one of these accidents for every sixteen miles of track. Of employees of railways one out of every twenty-eight is injured every year and one out of three hundred and seventy-one is killed. If this is true of railway employees in general, the risk in the more hazardous branches of the business must be terrific. If the people killed and maimed were placed alongside the wreckage of the United States at regular intervals there would be a fresh grave every twenty-one miles every year and a cripple every two or three miles. In twenty-one years the graveyards would become milestones, if the slaughter goes on, and the maimed be within an ordinary city block of each other along every mile of right-of-way. Such battles as Bull Run, Fort Donaldson, Shiloh and Gettysburg fill us with horror and consternation, as we read or hear of windrows of slain, streams running red to the sea, and the sickening waste of human life. But for the year ending March 31, 1906, the railways of the United States killed and wounded 95,801 people, while the killed, wounded and missing of both Confederates and Federals for the battles of Gettysburg, Shiloh and the first battle of Bull Run all combined amount to the less heart-breaking total of 92,309. The worst (or best) of it is that other nations run their railways without this daily carnage. Why do not we?

MOSSBACKS DOMINATE SALEM CITY COUNCIL

Oregon's capital city must have a hard bunch of mossbacks and no mistake. According to the Capital Journal they are blocking every attempt at public improvement, until it would seem that the following live roast is fully justified:

"The Capital Journal does not despair of this city ultimately getting some paved streets, but it will be when there have been some funerals—political or otherwise. That all public improvements have been held up, that it has taken over two years to build a little concrete bridge, that mechanics and contractors are driven elsewhere to make a living for themselves and families, is enough to convince any one, that instead of a progressive city administration the objecting elements that want Salem to linger at the tail end of the procession of Oregon cities are not dead but really in the saddle. That Mr. Geener and that element are in control of the city council, and in control of making the new city charter must be apparent to any one. It is simply a prolonged case of civic suspension in the interest of the most selfish element that ever held up a community. The county and state have made their appropriations. The city has the money to pay its part. The property owners have overcome their fears of bankruptcy following a policy of progress. Just at that favorable moment the city council seems to swoon back into the arms of the perennial objector who will neither die nor resign."

Another centralization outrage!

Chemists from the United States department of agriculture are gumshoeing around the country, investigating the contents of "bracers" sold at soda fountains.

Professor S. D. Cromer, who was getting $500 a year for teaching American history in the University of Missouri when appointed treasurer of the territory of Porto Rico, with a salary of $5000 a year, can be depended upon to enthusiastically support the insular policy of the administration.

WILLAMETTE STREET IN THIS CITY

reminds one of San Francisco after the earthquake and fire. But in less than sixty days it will be the finest business thoroughfare in the state, with pavement, street car track and broad cement walks. The improvements now under way will last for years to come.

Well, suppose Governor Glenn, of North Carolina, is feeling a little cheery?

He has a right to, regardless of what the decision of the supreme court may be. It isn't often that a governor gets a fall out of a federal judge and a big railway system, at one and the same time.

Now Albany is going to "demand" a government building.

Uncle Sam will no doubt cave in quickly when the Linx county bunch invade the national capital under the command, probably, of Jigadier Brindle Palmer, of referendum fame.

Professional anarchists should have shown better taste, not to say sense, by being less open in their rejoicing over the Haywood verdict.

They may really consider it an endorsement of their creed, but the people do not.

It would be an exaggeration, perhaps, to say that every nation represented in The Hague conference was more intent upon securing some advantage for itself than in promoting peace, but that some of them are is dead certain.

The paving plant will be shipped to Salem after the work here is completed, says the Statesman. Just so; Salem ranks after Eugene in the matter of improvements and enterprise.

Bryan has promised to make the opening speech of the presidential campaign in Indiana, but it hasn't been announced that Tom Taggart will preside over the meeting.

The two-story billboard at the depot has been taken down. Next to a new depot this is the biggest improvement that could have been made in that part of town.

Great excitement is reported to exist in Washington over the rumor that Secretary Taft will during this month spend an entire week in the city.

Those Filipinos who failed to register and vote, numbering many thousands, probably regard the ballot as the white man's exclusive burden.

With the death of Senator Pettus, of Alabama, the senate lost its best biblical scholar, and it has not been over strong in that line for years.

There's undoubtedly industrial significance in the arrival at New Orleans of 2000 bales of American cotton, shipped from Liverpool.

The Hague peace conference is the most idiotic thing that the governments of late years have discovered to waste money upon.

The hop-growers are scheduled for the next tilt with the labor-supply problem.

(Special Correspondence.)

Unity, Aug. 6.—Rev. Erskine filled his appointment here Sunday, accompanied by Evangelist Ethel, who preached two able sermons morning and evening.

Supervisor Will Larimer is doing some good work graveling the road below the Big Fall creek bridge. He got a subscription of $200 and the county also gave that much.

It is rumored that Mr. Roney is to commence work on the Highland bridge this week.

Messrs. Abe Houck and George Young left yesterday for Portland to be treated for cancer. Mr. Young, who has a cancer on his lip, employed medical aid in Eugene for some time and was relieved, and some time ago he went to San Francisco to see a specialist, but the doctor advised him that he could not do him any good, and as Mr. Houck was going to Portland, he thought he would go too. Mr. Houck has a cancer on his nose which has been coming for about two years. He went to Portland the first of July to consult a land the first of July to consult a Chinese cancer specialist, who gave him one treatment, but for the last few days it has been getting worse.

CANNERY WILL SHIP FRUIT FROM ROSEBURG

W. G. Allen is now on a trip North Looking After His Interests, Especially Prunes.

W. G. Allen, of the Allen Evaporating Company, has returned from Roseburg and started on another trip north looking after his interests. At Roseburg he found that it would pay him to ship products to his cannery here, and when the season is on peaches and pears will be shipped here. Probably some other fruit or vegetables will also be sent up, as tomatoes.

Mr. Allen is now looking after prune contracts and other fruits, he being interested in canning most everything that is profitably grown in the country.

HARD TO BUY CAVALRY HORSES

William Frazier, who buys horses for Uncle Sam's cavalry, is in town today and will stay over until tomorrow. So far he has had but little success here, the kind of horses he wants being anything but plentiful.

The United States cavalry requires the very best steeds, there being an age limit, one in height and weight, color even having something to do with the selections.

The horses in the army are obliged to go through a rigid training the same as men, and learn to know the bugle calls as well as their riders. They have to be taught to lie down at the command or signal of the rider, and to do a great number of other things, including evolutions with their companies.

DIXON IS ON AN IMPORTANT COMMITTEE

A. C. Dixon, of this city, has been appointed by the Oregon and Washington Lumber Manufacturers' Association a member of a committee to fight the proposed high rates on lumber to the East. The committee is as follows: A. C. Dixon, of Eugene; H. C. Mills, of Newberg; George Gerlinger, of Dallas; and Phillip Bauhner, S. B. Cobb and F. C. Knapp, of Portland.

The committee has full power to act and it is expected that it will engage Attorney J. N. Teal to lay the matter before the interstate commerce commission at Washington.

The territory that will be affected by the new freight rate purchases 2,500,000,000 feet of lumber from Oregon manufacturers annually. But this trade will be gobbled up at once by the Southern manufacturers if the proposed railroad tariff is put into effect, for at present the Beaver lumbermen are just able to meet the prices made by the dealers of Dixieland.

NEW POSTOFFICE AT COTTAGE GROVE

Many of our people were April fooled on Monday morning when they made a bee line for the postoffice to get their mail and mail their letters, for they found the old building deserted and given over to the rats and solitude, for on Sunday night the officials made a clean sweep and moved to their new quarters in the brick structure on Fifth street. Cottage Grove can now boast of as fine a postoffice as there is in the state. Neat, clean, commodious and light, it is worth being proud of. Fine new, up-to-date keyless lock boxes, and every convenience that is required by the public, has been installed and the employees have also been supplied with all the necessary for the quick handling of the mail.—Nugget.
