ELECTRIC ROAD ERA IN WILLAMETTE VALLEY

The era of electric road building seems to have dawned at last in the Willamette valley, and it will mean a vast and rapid advance in population and the volume of business. The street railway being constructed in Eugene is only the beginning of an electric system, from all information coming from well-authenticated sources, that will extend down the valley to connect with the Portland-Salem line, and eastward from Eugene up the McKenzie at least as far as the Blue River mines, while to the westward another line will reach an ocean outlet at Florence. That this system will be pushed along without a break in the construction and be completed within three years, the Guard firmly believes.

The importance of inter-urban roads is felt by all who have given the subject any study. They furnish new blood for the arteries of commerce and they supply for the people pleasures of infinite variety that without them would be unknown. The benefits that will come to Eugene as a business centre and to the people of the territory traversed will be inestimable, causing a growth and prosperity beyond the dreams of the most optimistic.

NEWS SERVICE SHOULD NOT BE HAMPERED

The Guard has a great deal of sympathy for the telegraph operators in their strike against the two great companies controlling the lines of this country. They have no doubt been poorly paid, and worked unreasonable hours, receiving of late years no increase in pay commensurate with the increased cost of living. All the while the stockholders of the companies have enjoyed large dividends, extorted by unreasonably high tolls, and augmented by the low salaries paid employes.

We think, however, that the striking operators should have arranged to keep sufficient operators at the keys to handle the work of the news associations, so that the people might be kept informed of the events of the day during the progress of the strike. Telegraphic news has become one of the necessities of the times, and if it is shut off for an indefinite period the strikers will find public sentiment shifting in favor of the telegraph companies. In brief, the public should not be made to suffer more than is absolutely necessary by the strike, and news matter and government business should be taken care of by the union operators, who could refuse to handle anything else.

CENSUS REPORT ON PRINTING INDUSTRY

The United States Bureau of the Census announces the publication of Bulletin 79, presenting the detailed statistics of the printing industry at the census of manufactures of 1905. This bulletin was prepared by William S. Rossiter, chief clerk of the census. It shows that the total number of establishments in this industry in 1905 was 26,422, a number larger than was reported for any other industry. The increase reported from 1900 to 1905 forms a striking exception to the prevailing tendency toward consolidation, for it was proportionately greater than from 1890 to 1900. Here the product of this industry continues to be contributed by a great number of small establishments, accomplishing noteworthy results with a small capital, operated by men of independent thought and action, and contributing materially to the intellectual and financial growth of the country.

The capital required in 1905 to conduct the printing and publishing business was $385,008,604. It was approximately double that required in 1890, and it was doubtless due in a considerable degree to mechanical changes which have taken place in this industry during the past ten or fifteen years.

The total value of products reported in 1905 was $496,061,357. During the brief period from 1900 to 1905 the increase in value of products was nearly double that from 1890 to 1900, or, in absolute figures, $149,006,927 compared with $71,601,915. Had the per capita value of products been the same in 1905 as in 1850, the entire value of products of the industry would have been but $52,007,588; on the other hand, had the per capita production in 1850 been the same as it was in 1905, the total value of products of the industry at the earlier census would have amounted to $141,470,444, or almost ten times as much as the actual amount recorded.

Among the ten industries having value of products in 1905 exceeding $320,000,000, printing and publishing ranked seventh, having advanced to that position from tenth in 1880. The ten leading industries were as follows: Slaughtering and meat packing, iron and steel foundries and machine shops, flour and grist mills, clothing, lumber and timber, printing and publishing, cotton manufactures, woolen manufactures, and boots and shoes. These great industries are characterized, for the most part, by a comparatively small number of establishments and concentration in particular localities. Printing and publishing reports one establishment to every 3076 inhabitants, while at the opposite extreme is iron and steel, which contributes but one establishment to every 134,000 inhabitants.

Last night the city council ordered the paving of Eighth street from Charnelton to High. This now completes practically the entire business section of the city, and, while it will cost a good deal of money, will prove the best investment ever made by the people of Eugene. It will place us, as a community, in a class by ourselves in Oregon, and advertise the enterprise of our property owners to every immigrant and investor. The most serious question now is, when will the paving company be able to do the work?

A mob of Connecticut farmers slipped back several centuries and with "witchcraft" for their slogan stormed with bombs a meeting of itinerant revivalists, whom they accused of mesmerizing the neighborhood. They succeeded in destroying the house and badly burning the revivalist, Henry Spilkins.

The secretary of the Standard Oil Company says it has no intention to raise the price of oil. If true, this indicates that recent raises in the selling price of refined oil and reduction in the buying price of crude oil will produce all the additional coin the bunch thinks will be needed.

Admiral Kuroki has gone home and officially thanked the secretary of the navy for the good time he had "in our midst." The doctors who are trying to get his digestive apparatus fixed up haven't said so, but there is no doubt that they also are thankful.

In Chicago five men die while two women are passing out, but that should not be charged entirely to the women, though it's difficult to accept the theory of the health commissioner—that it is because the men live faster.

Those Canadians who are amusing themselves by raising the British flag over islands in lake Superior belonging to us would better be a little careful. Uncle Sam is just a little bit touchy on island jokes.

It would be a temptation to most of us to play "thimble, thimble, where is the thimble?" with the diamond studded $75,000 gold thimble the king of Siam bought in Berlin for his favorite wife.

China has been so well pleased with the results of educating a few of its boys in the United States that it is sending a batch of girls to Vassar college. Yea, brethren, the world "do move."

No elopement is considered up to the minute unless a high-speed automobile is used by the happy couple, and to be the real thing in latter-day romance there must be a pursuing machine.

Tammany Hall would surely cap its freak record in politics should it support Hearst for president, as the New York Times claims to have learned it may do.

Rockefeller's press bureau is working overtime in its efforts to whitewash His Oiliness, but its mighty hard to make whitewash stick on greasy spots.

There are still a few more governors not engaged in scrapping with the railroads, but they are not filling much newspaper space.

THE MAN WHO WINS

The man who wins is the man who does,
The man who makes things hum and buzz,
The man who works and the man who acts,
Who builds on a basis of solid facts;
Who doesn't sit down to mope and dream,
Who humps ahead with the force of steam,
Who hasn't the time to fuss or fret,
But gets there every time—you bet.
The man who wins is the man who wears
A smile to cover his burden of cares;
Who knows that the sun will shine again,
That the clouds will pass and we need the rain.
Who buckles down to a pile of work
And never gives up and never will shirk
'Till the task is done; and the toil is sweet,
When the temples throb with red blood heat.
The man who wins is the man who climbs
The ladder of life to the cheery chimes
Of the bells of labor, of the bells of toil,
And isn't afraid his skin will spoil,
If he faces the shine of the glaring sun,
And works in the light until his task is done;
A human engine with a triple beam,
And a hundred and fifty pounds of steam.

STAINS

The three ghosts on the lonesome road
Spake each to one another,
"Whence came that stain upon thy mouth
No lifted hand may cover?"
"From eating of forbidden fruit,
Brother, my brother."

The three ghosts on the sunless road
Spake each to one another,
"Whence came that red burn on your foot
No dust or ash may cover?"
"I stamped a neighbor's hearth-flame out,
Brother, my brother."

The three ghosts on the windless road
Spake each to one another,
"Whence came that blood upon thy hand
No other hand may cover?"
"From breaking of a woman's heart,
Brother, my brother."

"Yet on the earth clean men we walked,
Glutton and Thief and Lover;
White flesh and fair it hid our stains
That no man might discover."
"Naked the soul goes up to God,
Brother, my brother."
—Theodosia Garrison.
