

PAVEMENT PLANT IN FULL OPERATION

DESCRIPTION OF PROCESS FROM ROCK PILE TO STREET—QUITE INTRICATE—THE QUARRY IS IDEALLY SITUATED

If the surface of the street is ready 800 to 1000 square yards of the real bitulithic pavement can be laid in a day, says Superintendent Chipman, of the street paving force. Yesterday afternoon a mere sample of the work was done on the street near the Gross Hotel, and all the time then and this morning admiring crowds have watched the process.

But the most interesting part of the work is at the rock crusher, where the pavement is prepared.

There piles of different grades of rock lie ready for their various purposes. At one end of the machine a scraper and two men keep the carriers full, which starts the rock on its first stage. The carrier throws it into the heat boiler, where all the dust is blown out of the crushed stone, and it is heated so that the bitum, the liquid which is mixed with the rock, will stick. Then another carrier carries it to a thirty-foot platform, where it is strained in a revolving strainer, which keeps out all but a certain size of the crushed rock, quite small. From that it is dropped down into a sort of bin.

Meantime, on a lower platform, beneath the one where the rock is strained, the "bitum" is being cooked or melted. From the two tanks an iron bucket with a false bottom is filled and taken over what is called the mixer. In this two sets of pronged shafts revolve. The rock is let down into the mixer and the bitum is poured on top of it. Both are hot and the two shafts with the prongs mix it rapidly into one great oily, gummy mass. When sufficiently prepared a false bottom in the mixer lets the mass fall into the wagons which haul it quickly to the street.

Meantime in the days previous the street has been leveled and rolled, and on top of the earth crushed rock as large as hens' eggs or bigger has been rolled and set with Warren's bitulithic cement No. 24. On top of this the wagon dumps its load, and the big steam roller rolls it solid and level, finishing the surface, and leaving the street with a paved surface of especial strength.

The capacity of the mixer is between thirty and forty wagon loads a day, which will cover about 800 or 1000 square yards of surface.

The Quarry.
Men are blasting out more rock at the quarry on Skinner's Butte. The rock is of a very hard kind, and the formation is peculiar. The bedrock lies in the earth in huge pillars leaving slightly to the north and east.
While the stone is very hard the rock is situated ideally for working.

In the morning the quarry is very cool, but in the afternoon the sun beats down upon the workmen, testing their endurance when very warm.

instrument. The piano will be placed in our west window and the bids will be announced each day in the order they are received by a card placed upon or near it in plain view and also by announcement in the daily sale, for terms can be had that will allow easy installments. Bring in your bid in person or phone, and each will be entered in the order received. Watch the window and place your bids. The wholesale price of the
